SECOND AGENCY TO ACT, $35,000 PAYMENT TO BE STUDIED BY SEC

Both Will Seek to Find if There Was Criminal Violation Under Holding Company Act.

By JAMES DEAKIN
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—The United States Justice Department has entered the expanding federal investigation of Union Electric Co.'s $35,000 lobbying fee, the Post-Dispatch was told today.

With the Securities and Exchange Commission announcement yesterday that it planned "a non-public, fact-finding investigation" into the payment, this means that two federal agencies have decided to look into the utility's payment to J. Roy Browning, Chicago attorney.

The utility says Browning was employed in 1955 to lobby through the Illinois Legislature certain legislation desired by the company. All the money ultimately was received by Orville E. Hodge, ousted Illinois State Auditor, now serving a prison term for thefts from the state.

Holding Company Act Cited.

The Justice Department's decision indicates the two agencies will seek to determine whether there was a criminal violation of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935. This prohibits holding companies, such as Union Electric was in 1955, from making contributions to candidates for political office and to political parties.

Assistant United States Attorney General Warren Olney III, head of the Justice Department's criminal division, told the Post-Dispatch the Union Electric case "certainly will be explored and explored fully by the Justice Department."

He said his division would be "in constant touch with the SEC."

Olney explained that the Justice Department would make the final determination whether to present evidence to a federal grand jury as the SEC inquiry progresses.

If the Union Electric payment is found to be a political contribution "then there is a federal offense" under Section 12h of the holding company act, Olney said.

Aim of SEC Inquiry.

Chairman J. Sinclair Armstrong of the SEC said the fact-finding investigation would attempt to determine "whether any such payments were violative of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, particularly Sec. 12h thereof, and commission rules thereunder; whether any such payments have been properly recorded on the books and records of Union Electric, and whether financial statements published by Union Electric and filed with the commission properly account for such payments."

One of the regulations of the SEC provides that in its annual report the holding company must list all expenditures "directly or indirectly . . . to or for the account

BAR GROUP PLANS INQUIRY ON BROWNING'S ACTIVITIES

Chicago Association Concerned About Statement He Agreed to Split $35,000 Fee With Hodge.

The Chicago Bar Association will investigate the activities of J. Roy Browning, Chicago attorney, as a result of disclosures in the Union Electric Co. lobbying case, an association spokesman told the Post-Dispatch today at Chicago.

The spokesman said the bar association was particularly concerned about Browning's statement that he agreed to split a $35,000 fee, paid by Union Electric, with Illinois State Auditor Orville E. Hodge. It is contrary to bar association rules, the spokesman declared, for a lawyer to split a fee with a layman.

Browning, close friend and business associate of Hodge, said Tuesday he and Hodge were hired by the St. Louis utility to work for a bill it wanted passed by the Legislature.

They were hired, he said, at a meeting in Hodge's Springfield (Ill.) office attended by two Union Electric Co. representatives, Harry Williamson, real estate and tax officer, and Henry F. Driemeyer, East St. Louis attorney.

Browning denied getting any of the money, however. He said he indorsed and turned over to Hodge a $7500 retainer. He never saw three other checks made out to him for a total of $27,500, he said.

Williamson disclosed yesterday, at a closed hearing in the Union Electric Co. offices here, that he carried three checks to Springfield and left them in Hodge's care. This procedure was followed despite the fact that the utility uses the mail to pay almost all its bills.

John S. Rendleman, counsel for the Illinois Budgetary Commission, who conducted the hearing, said it also was revealed that Hodge recommended the hiring of Browning to Union Electric and that Hodge ascertained that Browning's total fee would be $35,000.

The Chicago Bar Association investigation also will deal with a $15,000 check issued by Hodge's office to Browning, which Browning now claims he never received. Hodge has admitted the check was phony and that it was part of his scheme to rob the State of Illinois of about $1,400,000.

However, Browning twice de-

ARAB NATIONS PLEDGE AID TO EGYPT UNLESS TROOPS DEPART

'Immediate and Unconditional' Withdrawal of British, French and Israeli Forces Is Demanded.

BEIRUT, Lebanon, Nov. 15 (AP) — Eight Arab nations pledged today they would support Egypt with force if Britain, France and Israel fail to withdraw their troops "immediately and unconditionally" from Egyptian soil.

An Arab summit conference of leaders of Iraq, Jordan, Syria, Lebanon, Saudi Arabia, Yemen, Sudan and Libya has been in sesion here since Tuesday. Egypt also had a delegate present representing President Nasser.

The heads, or representatives of national leaders, of those Middle East countries wound up their parley with a stern ultimatum, calling Britain, France and Israel "aggressors."

Three kings, one crown prince, two presidents and an assortment of prime ministers, foreign ministers and other cabinet officers met at the call of President Camille Chamoun of Lebanon following the British, French and Israeli attack against Egypt.

Text of Communique.

In a communique, the heads of state said:

"It is unanimously agreed that if Britain and France refuse to comply with United Nations resolutions to withdraw their troops from Egyptian territory immediately and unconditionally, and if Israel refuses also to comply and to withdraw her troops behind the armistice lines immediately and unconditionally, or if the attitude of Britain, France and Israel leads to new tension which would result in a resumption of military operations, then Britain, France and Israel would be held jointly responsible for the continuation of aggression and at that time every state represented in this conference will start immediately, according to the legitimate right of self defense, putting into effect Article 41 of the United Nations charter and taking effective measures in compliance with her obligations under Article 2 of the Arab collective security pact."

Key Phrase.

The key phrase of the communique is "Article 2 of the Arab collective security pact" that says "any attack against an Arab country will be considered an attack against all Arab countries and the signatories will take, collectively or separately all measures, including the use of force, to repel that aggression."

Article 41 of the United Nations charter is less stern. It calls for a complete or partial breaking off of economic and diplomatic relations, as well as rail, sea, air, postal, telegraph and radio communications with an aggressor.

The chiefs said they "reviewed with satisfaction measures adopted by the U.N. General Assembly" against the three powers that attacked Egypt. They urged that "the Suez canal problem be kept separate from circumstances that accompanied aggression against Egypt" and further urged that the canal problem be settled "in a way that will safeguard Egypt's sovereignty and dignity within the framework of the United Nations."

Split Reported.

New York Times News Service

The conferees were reported split yesterday on their relations with Russia and the Western powers.

Syria is pressing all Arab countries to break diplomatic relations with France and Britain because of the invasion of Egypt. It wants all of them to join also in a declaration that Russia is their friend.

There is a strong element in Syria in the armed forces (and has been for a long time) that wants close ties with Russia as the strongest ally they can think of getting.

Even the Egyptians are lag-

Says Aggression Raises Question — Proposes Britain, France, Israel Pay Egypt for Invasion Damage.

MOSCOW, Nov. 15 (UP)—Soviet Premier Bulganin proposed tonight that Britain, France and Israel pay compensation to Egypt for damages caused by the Suez and Sinai peninsula invasions.

(The Associated Press quoted reliable sources as saying that Bulganin warned Israel that "aggression against Egypt" raised the question of "the continued existence of Israel as a state." The informants said Bulganin's stern words were in the note to Premier David Ben-Gurion.)

Bulganin also informed the three nations that the Soviet union no longer opposes creation of a United Nations force to police the Egyptian area of hostilities.

He backed Egypt's demand, however, that the U.N. police force take its positions along the old Israel-Egypt armistice line and not in the Suez canal zone.

New Series of Notes.

Bulganin made the proposal in a new series of personal messages to British Prime Minister Eden, French Premier Mollet and Ben-Gurion. He had sent another set of notes to them 10 days ago.

The Soviet premier said there had been reports of concentration of English, French and Israeli troops in the disputed areas.

"I think that such a position is dangerous," he said. "This can lead not to regulation, but to a more complicated situation.

"We hope that on your side no steps will be taken which might be considered as preparations for a new military operation against Egypt."

This was the second cluster of notes sent to the West by Bulganin in the past two weeks.

On Nov. 5 hesent communications to the United States, Britain, France and Israel. They strongly condemned the British, French and Israeli attacks on Egypt.

Suggested Joint Forces.

In his note to Washington that time, he suggested to President Eisenhower that joint American-Soviet air and naval task forces be sent to the mideast under United Nations auspices to restore peace.

The U.N. Security Council refused to consider the Soviet suggestion and the White House called it "unthinkable."

In the notes sent previously to Britain, France and Israel, Bulganin warned them that their actions in Egypt were inexcusable and that in the end they would do harm to themselves as "aggressors."

The strongest statement in the note sent then to Eden, as disclosed in a Soviet foreign ministry statement summary, was: "We will crush aggressors and bring peace to the Middle East."

(An Associated Press dispatch from London said Bulganin in tonight's note expressed satisfaction at the cessation of military operations in Egypt, but demanded that Egypt be compensated for "damage inflicted by the intervention.")

Secretary Confers With Burns In Rome on Arranging Truce

BRITAIN, FRANCE VIOLATED AID PACT, U.S. SAYS

Defense Department Cites Use of American Equipment in Attack on Egypt.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (UP)—The Defense Department accused Britain and France today of violating their international agreements with the United States by using United States military aid equipment in the attack on Egypt.

The department, however, apparently plans no disciplinary action against the two governments beyond verbal protests.

It said in response to inquiries that the United States "has made representations to the British and French concerning their violation of bilateral agreements concerning military equipment destined for the defense of the North Atlantic treaty area."

Buildup Considered Vital.

The Defense Department would be extremely reluctant to cut off aid to the two countries since it considers the continued buildup of NATO forces to be of paramount importance.

The department's statement included a warning to Middle East governments that United States-furnished equipment is for "defensive purposes only."

Meantime United States officials said Russia and Red China would be risking a major war if they carried out their threats to send "volunteer" forces into Egypt.

President Eisenhower was believed to have discussed these threats and other aspects of the Middle East crisis with his top advisers at a morning session of the National Security Council. He also was to confer with Acting Secretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr. later today.

First Statement.

The Defense Department statement was the first to say officially that the bilateral agreements governing the use of United States military aid had been violated.

It became known early in the fighting, through press reports, that British and French troops were using United States equipment. The Defense Department at that time took a non-committal stand.

The bilateral agreements with Britain and France specify that United States military aid is to be used "to promote the integrated defense of the North Atlantic treaty area."

In the past six years the United States has furnished

Egyptian Plans for All-Out War on Israel Circulated at U.N. Assembly.

By ALVIN H. GOLDSTEIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. — Dag Hammarskjold, Secretary General of the United Nations, was on his way today to take personal charge of the U.N. police force operation in the Middle East.

Hammarskjold boarded a plane late yesterday for Italy shortly after instructing Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns of Canada, commander of the U.N. police force, "to start moving the first units of the U.N. emergency force into Egypt." He arrived in Rome today for conferences with the U.N. commander before proceeding to Cairo to establish the precise functions of the U.N. force.

Force to Be 'Shield.'

The police force was created at the U. N. General Assembly's direction to serve as a "shield" between the hostile factions in Egypt. It was designed also to supervise the agreed evacuation of British-French troops occupying the Suez Canal Zone and Israeli soldiers entrenched in the Sinai desert.

"It is the first experience of its kind," Hammarskjold said on his departure. "It is the first truly international force. Let us hope it will succeed. Let us hope that we will succeed in establishing peace and order."

Hammarskjold was expected to return to U. N. headquarters here Tuesday or Wednesday, a time estimate which would permit him to go to Budapest on a peace mission if he is invited by the Hungarian government.

Documents Circulated.

Abba Eban, Israeli ambassador to the United States and its U.N. spokesman, today circulated captured documents among Assembly delegates which set forth that Egyptian commanders were formally instructed to prepare for "the most brutal and cruel battles" in the inevitable war with Israel with the "exalted aim" of destroying the Jewish state.

These directives for troops training, and huge stores of military equipment and supplies also taken in the Israeli invasion of the Sinai peninsula, proved that Egypt was planning for an all-out war when it had attained "irresistible" strength, he said at a news conference.

He said the captured equipment, including 1,000,000 blankets, had a readily identified national origin, but he declined to name the supplying nation. In answer to a question, he replied: "I'll give anyone three guesses."

He said he knew nothing of a build-up of Russian forces for Arab aid in the Middle East.

Eban said that it would be preposterous to permit Egyptian

EGYPT, OTHER ARAB COUNTRIES SAID TO REJECT RED VOLUNTEERS

Believed to Feel They Are No Longer Needed — Second U.N. Contingent to Arrive Tomorrow.

LONDON, Nov. 15 (AP) — First units of the United Nations police force landed in the Suez Canal Zone today, rushed in on urgent U.N. orders to forestall the threat of Communist "volunteers" being poured into the tense area.

(The United Press reported, meanwhile, that Egyptian Ambassador Ahmed Abdel Razek and Syrian Minister Ibraham Istuany in Bonn, Germany, said that Egypt and other Arab nations had turned down Soviet and Red Chinese offers of "volunteers." The two were quoted as saying flatly that there no longer is any need for the "volunteers" since fighting has ceased and that they would not be accepted.)

Hurry-up orders for the U.N. peace army to get moving to Egypt were issued last night after an Arab diplomatic source had reported in Moscow that Egyptian President Nasser had requested Russia to send so-called volunteer forces to Egypt immediately.

Dependent on Withdrawal.

In Moscow an Egyptian embassy spokesman said Egypt will ask that Soviet volunteers be dispatched to Egypt only if British, French and Israeli troops do not withdraw promptly.

He said he did not know of any time limit on the British-French and Israeli withdrawal.

Egypt, he added, wanted to abide by decisions of the United Nations.

After many hours of silence, the spokesman today apparently made his statement on direct instructions from Cairo.

He said there appeared to have been some slight misunderstanding by the Arab diplomatic source who reported a request for volunteers had been made. He indicated that a formal request for volunteers had not yet been made to the Soviet Union.

At U.N. headquarters, an Egyptian delegation spokesman said the stage of accepting or rejecting volunteers had not been reached.

The first Swiss airliner loaded with 45 Danish troops touched down behind the Egyptian lines at Abu Suweir at 9:30 a.m. (2:30 a.m. St. Louis time). A second plane carrying 47 Norwegians landed at 10:02 a.m. Abu Suweir is on the west side of the canal near Ismailia.

A third plane carrying equipment for the international police force landed 45 minutes later. The Swissair planes were chartered by the U.N. to move the police units and supplies to Egypt.

Word of the planes' arrival was radioed to the U.N. staging area at Capodichino, Italy, near Naples. Swissair official said the aircraft were making a quick turnaround.

Second Group to Leave.

A U.N. spokesman said a second group of about 100 men will leave the staging area tomorrow for Egypt. He said the second contingent would be made up of the first Colombian troops and another party of Norwegians.

The U.N. command at Capodichino announced that the "technical problems with which we were faced seem now to be solved."

A spokesman added that the shuttling of planes between the staging area and the Canal Zone will be speeded up in the next few days.

Nothing was said, however, about solution of the major political problems of where the force would operate in Egypt and for how long.

(In Bonn, Syrian Minister Istuany said "the question of volunteers for Egypt is no longer of interest."

(Istuany, who said he was speaking for all the Arab states, told a news conference:

("We wish now for the United Nations to take the matter (of the Mideast crisis) in hand. Up to now no volunteers have arrived in Egypt. There is no Soviet volunteer on Arabian soil.")

The arrival of the first U.N. troops at Ismailia was only about 15 hours after the Moscow report that Egypt had requested volunteers immediately.

Before the U.N. force's vanguard took off, the international force at Capodichino had swelled to 467 men of four nations—Denmark, Norway, Colombia and Canada. More are to come, with the force finally totaling perhaps 10,000.

There still was no word of a clearcut agreement on the exact

FRANCE CURTAILS USE OF OIL IN FACE OF SUEZ BLOCKADE

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

PARIS, Nov. 15—France is canceling a number of long-distance, fuel-oil driven express trains and cutting deliveries of gasoline from refineries to wholesale distributors by 20 per cent to meet the petroleum shortage caused by blockage of the Suez Canal. The train order is effective Sunday.

With oil stocks sufficient for three to four months, a run on coal supplies has developed in France. Many retail coal suppliers in the Paris area have nothing to sell. They blame this on early buying by consumers who fear price increases and another winter as severe as the last one.

Coal suppliers also estimated there may be a jump of 1,000,000 tons in the demand this winter if rationing of liquid fuel becomes necessary on a coupon basis.

The council of the Organization for European Economic Cooperation met in Paris yesterday and asked its 17 member nations to take common action to make certain that oil supplies are adequately shared in the face of the Suez crisis.

INDIANS LEARN WHITE-MAN WAYS, GO OUT ON STRIKE

New York Times News Service

MEXICAN HAT, Utah, Nov. 15—A strike by 60 Navajo Indians, possibly the first organized walkout by Navajos in tribal history, is under way here, with white construction workers honoring the picket lines.

The tribesmen, hired as laborers at a uranium mill being built by Stearns-Rogers Construction Co., are represented by the union labor group of the Navajo tribe with headquarters in Flagstaff, Ariz. Navajo spokesmen say pay scales are similar for both white and Indian laborers in similar jobs, but white workers are receiving $4.25 daily for subsistence and travel, while Navajos were paid only $1 a day for such purposes.

The construction site, on the San Juan river on the northern fringe of the Navajo reservation, can be reached only by unpaved roads. Most white workers are living in trailers, with Navajo workers "commuting" in trucks.

More Leave for Marines.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (UP)—The Marine Corps yesterday announced a new leave policy which will give recruits an additional five days at home after completing basic and advanced training. Recruits will be given 15 days' leave rather than the 10 days currently authorized.

POLISH LEADERS REACH MOSCOW AND BEGIN TALKS

Parley Likely to Last a Week—Russia Reported Ready to Make Concessions.

MOSCOW, Nov. 15 (UP)—Polish Communist party and government leaders arrived today for talks in which they hope to win concessions from Russia for Polish nationalism.

Soviet Communist party chief Nikita Khrushchev and Premier Nikolai Bulganin headed the welcoming committee. About 200 Polish students from Moscow University were on hand, and several hundred Russians watched in silence.

Gomulka expressed confidence that "our talks will strengthen relations of nations in the Socialist (Communist) camp. He made no reference to Soviet troops in Poland.

Trip Follows Shake-up.

The Polish leaders left Warsaw by train yesterday, one day after the government announced a drastic shake-up in the cabinet and the long-expected resignation of Stalinist Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky from his job as Vice Premier and Defense Minister.

The talks were expected to last at least a week. Observers believed Russian concessions would include arrangements for reduction of Soviet armed forces in Poland and a proviso for their eventual withdrawal from the country.

There were reports of a plan to dissolve the mutual economic aid organization—the Communist equivalent of the Marshall Plan—because of new plans by east European Communist leaders to put less emphasis on industrialization and to step up production of consumer goods.

Observers also predicted a substantial revision of existing trade agreements among the Soviet Union, Poland and other satellite countries to provide more favorable prices, interest

FIVE MORE U.S. WARSHIPS ARRIVE AT PEARL HARBOR

PEARL HARBOR, Nov. 15 (UP)—Pearl Harbor was teeming with combat-ready warships today as part of the Navy's "accelerated schedule" to improve American's defense in the Pacific during the Middle East crisis.

The aircraft carrier Philippine Sea steamed into Pearl Harbor yesterday with four destroyers. Already at the base were three cruisers and four other destroyers, which arrived Sunday.

The carriers Yorktown and Shangri-la left San Francisco Tuesday and were expected at Pearl Harbor this weekend. Navy officials refused to confirm west coast reports that the Carrier Wasp was being readied at San Diego for Far East duty.

A Navy spokesman said the stepped up activity is "all part of the same acceleration schedule" ordered last week by Adm. Felix Stump, commander in chief of the Pacific.

SURPRISE S.A.C. TEST CANCELS AIR BASE DANCE

WESTOVER AIR FORCE BASE, Mass., Nov. 15 (UP)—The Strategic Air Command ordered an undisclosed number of units into an "operational training mission" today. The order canceled a huge "victory dance" that had been scheduled on this base tonight.

The base command said, "The Strategic Air Command frequently exercises its units in operation training missions in order to insure that they are ready at all times."

A public information officer was asked if the flight had anything to do with the critical Middle East situation and he declined to comment.

OFFUTT AIR FORCE BASE, Nebr., Nov. 15 (UP)—Strategic Air Command officials today described a sudden "operational training mission" called at Westover Air Force Base, Mass., as "strictly routine." SAC headquarters explained the move was neither aimed particularly at the Mideast situation, nor divorced from it. It was simply part of the over-all training requirement of instant readiness for mock or real attack, they said.

Is Astor Married to Wife No. 2 Or No. 3? --- Court to Decide

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15—John Jacob Astor III, faced with a court decision in Florida that he is legally married to his third wife and a subsequent New York decision that he is still married to his second wife, has asked the New York Supreme Court to decide the issue.

Astor, 43 years old, obtained a Mexican divorce in 1953 from Mrs. Gertrude Gretsch Astor, his second wife, an action in which she was not represented. In August 1954 he married Dolores Fullman, who left him 46 days later.

In contesting the third Mrs. Astor's Florida action in November 1954 for separate maintenance, Astor's lawyers argued that the Mexican divorce was invalid. The court, however, found that since Astor had initiated the Mexican action it could not consider the argument.

In February, New York Supreme Court Justice Owen McGivern ruled that Astor's Mexican divorce from his second wife was invalid.

By bringing the three principals in the case into one court, the attorneys hope to solve Mr. Astor's marital problem.

Children Garble Lord's Prayer: 'Lead Us Not Into Penn Station'

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

RED BANK, N.J., Nov. 14—The Red Bank school board has decided it might be a good idea for teachers to teach the words of the Lord's Prayer in the classrooms.

They decided this after Dr. M. Gregg Hibbs, school superintendent, reported the following phrases had been overheard by teachers standing near small children in unison recitation of the prayer in assemblies:

". . . Harold be Thy name . . ."

". . . Give us this day our jelly bread . . ."

PREMIER GIVES HUNGARY PLEDGE OF 'FREE AND SECRET' VOTE

Also Promises to End Mass Deportations, but Says Russian Troops Will Remain for Present.

BUDAPEST, Nov. 15 (UP)—Soviet-backed Premier Janos Kadar promised "free and secret" elections today to Hungary and an end to the mass deportation of Hungarian youth.

He said Russian troops would remain in Hungary until "order is restored," and that the "time for neutrality has not yet come."

Kadar fired 12 Stalinists from top party posts and announced agreement to a series of worker demands in hopes of ending the nation's paralyzing general strike.

The concessions were announced in a last-minute panic to prevent workers in gas, electric and other vital utilities from joining the strike.

Program Given to Him.

Kadar was presented with an eight-point program by the Central Hungarian Workers Committee last night and promised:

1. To hold "free and secret elections" in the near future.
2. To open negotiations with former Premier Imre Nagy on his return as premier.
3. To admit all parties in principal agreement with the Socialists.
4. To publish the Hungarian trade pact with Russia.
5. To stop the punishment and mass deportation of freedom fighters.
6. To abolish the hated secret police.

Kadar, however, rejected the other two points: a demand for the immediate withdrawal of Soviet troops and a declaration of Hungary's neutrality.

Budapest radio announced the abolition of all laws compelling farmers to hand over agricultural products and meat to the state. It said also the government would buy apartments to house those who lost their homes in the fighting.

(The Associated Press reported from Vienna today that a reliable source said he had received information by telephone from Budapest that 10,000 Hungarians demonstrated before Parliament building today against deportations of revolutionaries by the Russians. He said there were no disorders and that the Russians released 30 persons who had been held.)

Pledge to Continue Strike.

Despite Kadar's promises the Central Workers Council representing all industrial plants in Budapest renewed its pledge today to continue the strike until its demands are met.

Officers of the council told reporters the Russians were continuing their mass deportation of Hungarian youths in violation of Kadar's promise.

The officers showed newsmen scraps of paper purportedly thrown from a train and bearing the names of 25 persons in one deportation shipment. One of the notes said, "We are in a transport of 1500 on the way to Russia. Your Hungarian brothers and sisters."

The Workers Council met first today in the steel and iron workers' building. It broke up when men described as "Kadar agents" tried to introduce a resolution calling for a return to work.

When the meeting reconvened in the streetcar administration building a strong force of Soviet tanks and military arrived. All persons in the building were searched and held under guard until one of the workers' leaders called Kadar and protested.

General Strike Goes On.

Workers have demanded the immediate withdrawal of Russian troops and tanks as the price for calling off the general strike, now more than three weeks old. The strike continued today but the threatened walkout of the gas and electric workers did not materialize.

Kadar told the workers' delegation that Nagy "presently is staying at the legation building of a foreign state, therefore negotiations are impossible at the moment." Nagy took asylum in the Yugoslav embassy when the Soviet tanks moved into Budapest Nov. 4.

The Premier expressed his readiness to open talks with Nagy "as soon as he will leave extra-territoriality and enter Hungarian soil." Kadar stressed that "it should be possible to reach agreement" with Nagy.

Nagy headed the revolutionary government after the ouster of the pro-Soviet regime of Premier Andras Hegedues. He in turn was deposed by the Kadar puppet regime which Moscow said called for Soviet troops to "restore order."

Kadar told the workers that the Hungarian Communist party is "prepared to give up its monopoly position and enter into competition with several parties."

"We are expecting a heavy beating at the forthcoming elections," he added, but stressed "we (the Communists) are ready to take it since we want to regain our nation's confidence."

Why Russians Were Called.

Kadar then made strong efforts to tell why he had called in the Soviet armed forces. "I was forced to do so since the popular forces were threatened to be crushed by the counter-revolutionaries," he said.

But, he added, it was "evidence that true revolutionaries were marching together with the reactionaries."

Kadar complained bitterly over what he termed the murders of Budapest party officials and their families by rebels. He also accused the leaders of newly-formed anti-Communists parties of having "grabbed for cars, money and good positions."

He assailed Cardinal Josef Mindszenty, the Roman Catholic primate of Hungary who was released by nationalist freedom fighters after eight years in Communist captivity. Mindszenty now is in refuge at the United States legation in Budapest.

Mindszenty's speech broadcast by radio Budapest Nov. 3, Kadar said, contained "nothing but heavy strikes against our Socialist system." He said it became "obvious" after the Cardinal's broadcast that Nagy's cabinet would be ousted by reactionaries within a week.

The purge of the Hungarian Communist party was the biggest since the Reds seized power in 1947. Among those ousted were Ernoe Geroe, who succeeded Matyas Rakosi as party strongman, and former puppet Premier Hegedues.

By the Associated Press.

Others purged were: Col. Gen. Istvan Bata, former Defense Minister and Politburo member; Laszlo Piros, former Interior Minister and at one time acting chief of Hungary's state security police, the AVH; Istvan Hidas, former first deputy premier; Erzsebet Andics and Andor Berei, both former members of the party central committee; Istvan Kovacs, Lajos Aes and Bela Vegh, former secretaries of the central committee and the politburo; Bela Szalai, former president of the state planning office who later was a party secretary, and chief state prosecutor Gyoergy Non.

First Food Shipment Through Israel for Arab Refugees in Gaza

Accord Reached With U.N. Relief Agency —Leaders Had Said Arabs Would Not Eat Jewish-Handled Food.

By RICHARD DUDMAN.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JERUSALEM, Israeli Sector, Nov. 15—A blue-painted United Nations truck today carried the first shipment of food through Israel to the Arab refugees in the Gaza strip.

The delivery was the first under an agreement signed last night by the Israeli Foreign Ministry and the U. N. Relief and Works Agency.

Significance of the action is that in about two weeks the estimated 200,000 refugees will begin eating Jewish-handled food, something Arab leaders had declared the refugees never would do.

UNRWA, responsible for some 700,000 to 900,000 Arab refugees from Jordan, Syria and Lebanon, has been a firm protector of refugees' rights. It insists they must be repatriated to their former homes in what is now Israel or else get adequate compensation from Israel for their lost homes.

But the U. N. agency now is seeking a practical answer to the sizable task of bringing in the supplies which used to come by railroad from Cairo.

The new agreement says food for the refugees now may be shipped to Haifa, Israel's big modern Mediterranean port in the north, and carried by truck to the UNRWA warehouses at Gaza in the strip. It would have been difficult to unload the supplies from ships at Gaza because Gaza has no docks and ships must discharge cargoes to small boats or barges.

UNRWA agrees to purchase food in Israel when possible.

This represents an amicable settlement of a question that sometimes has gone to court. Some Arab governments have tried unsuccessfully to force UNRWA to buy its supplies locally.

When Israel seized Gaza two weeks ago as part of its invasion of Egypt's Sinai peninsula, UNRWA officials said they had a month's food left in their warehouses. Some item already are running short, however, and some of the new supplies may be distributed within a few days.

Inspection of the refugee camps indicates that Arab leaders have exaggerated the political awareness of the individual refugees. When the women line up with their patched bags and earthenware jars for their biweekly scoops of flour, lentils, rice and grease, they appear not to stand on principle as to where the food comes from.

Stories about their refusal to eat food coming through Israel seems on a par with stories that the refugees were on point of walking unarmed into machine gun fire in a passive march toward their old homes. The often heralded march never came off.

NEHRU MAY SPEND CHRISTMAS DAY WITH EISENHOWER

NEW DELHI, Nov. 15 (UP)—Prime Minister Nehru may spend Christmas with President Eisenhower, informed sources said today.

Nehru said last week he plans to visit Mr. Eisenhower "in the near future," but no definite date was announced. Observers here said he will probably accept an earlier United States suggestion that he spend Christmas in the White House or at Mr. Eisenhower's farm at Gettysburg, Pa.

He also plans to stop in New York for two days and to visit Ottawa at the invitation of the Canadian Government.

SOME WALK OUT ON SPEECH ASSAILING U.S. SUEZ POLICY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP)—Some two dozen members of the District of Columbia Bar Association quietly walked out on a speech by a French embassy official who criticized U. S. policies in the Middle East last night.

Robert Valeur, counselor of the embassy, put most of the blame for the Suez-Middle East crisis on the United States. He called American policies in the area "a tragic failure" and was especially critical of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

FIREMEN TO JOIN FOLICE IN SEARCH FOR MURDERER

PATERSON, N. J., Nov. 15 (AP)—Twenty-five firemen will join police in patrolling the streets of this city tonight following the killing of a 25-year-old secretary.

The hunt for the killer of Giovanna Loraine Giambra continued meanwhile. Miss Giambra, a secretary for Glamour magazine in New York, was struck on the head Monday night while on her way to a Catholic Youth Organization meeting at St. Therese's Church. Before she lost consciousness, she was able to tell a priest that a white man in a brown leather jacket had attacked her.

MEDIATOR REPORTS GAINS IN DOCK DISPUTE TALKS

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (AP)—A federal mediator reports "a definite turn for the better" in efforts to avert a possible waterfront strike on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts starting at midnight tonight.

Mediator Robert Moore made the statement last midnight as negotiations between the International Longshoremen's Association and the dock employers were adjourned to today.

A twice-extended contract between the independent ILA and the New York Shipping Association, which represents 170 shipping and stevedoring companies in this area, expires at midnight.

The ILA represents about 22,000 longshoremen and other dock workers in the port of New York. Union spokesmen predicted some time ago that any strike here would spread to ports along both Atlantic and Gulf coasts.

7,200,000 ACRES OF PUBLIC LANDS OPENED TO MINES

Department of Interior Announces Proposed Rules for Administering New Law.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP)—The Department of Interior announced yesterday proposed regulations for administering a new law which opens to mining claims 7,200,000 acres of public lands set aside for potential water and power development.

The lands are in 17 states and Alaska and have been reesrved for water and power purposes for as long as 40 years.

Secretary of the Interior Fred Seaton said "These regulations spell out the procedures for unlocking a vast area of mineral resources that have been closed to the staking of claims for many years, except in rare instances where restorations were obtained under section 24 of the Federal Power Act—a procedure now rendered unnecessary."

Section 24 permits the filing of applications for restoration in exceptional cases where conditions are such that mining claims would not interfere with a power site reservation.

The new regulations require that prospectors notify the appropriate land office of the Bureau of Land Management of mining claims made in power site withdrawal areas, and to wait 60 days before starting mine operations if the claim is a placer claim.

In the case of placer claims, the Secretary of the Interior is authorized to determine whether mining operations would be detrimental to other interests.

Lands opened under the new law include: California, 1,500,000 acres; Arizona, 1,045,233; Utah, 816,472; Oregon, 734,705; Alaska 502,603; Arkansas, 31,488; Colorado, 532,028; Florida, 1131; Idaho, 574,210; Mississippi, 10; Montana, 251,973; Nebraska, 921; Nevada, 165,794; New Mexica, 216,886; North Dakota, 181; South Dakota, 1264; Washington, 457,149, and Wyoming, 247,263.

Al Sarena Mines, Inc., obtained patents or title to 475 acres of forest land in Rogue River national forest in southern Oregan in 1954. It "has not mined one cupful of ore," from the land, a House Government Operations Committee reported last June, but has cut more than 2,000,000 board feet of timber from the land and sold it. The timber has a market value of $347,657, the committee reported. The title cost Al Sarena only $2375.

Six U.N. Resolutions Govern Operation of Cease-Fire Force

All Adopted by Large Majorities in Recent Emergency Session of General Assembly.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Nov. 15 (AP)—The U.N. cease-fire force now moving into invaded Egypt is operating under six resolutions of the General Assembly.

All were adopted by large majorities in the Assembly's recent emergency session on the Middle East crisis. They are:

1. First cease-fire resolution. Adopted Nov. 2. Urged all parties to cease fire, halt forward movement of forces, withdraw behind 1949 Palestine armistice lines, desist from raids across such lines; recommended that all U.N. members refrain from introducing military goods into "area of hostilities"; urged, after cease-fire, steps to reopen Suez canal to free navigation. Introduced by United States. Vote 64 for (including United States, Soviet Union, Egypt), 5 against (including Britain, France, Israel), 6 abstaining.

2. First U.N.-force resolution. Adopted Nov. 4. Asked Secretary General Dag Hammerskjold to submit plan in 48 hours for setting up "emergency international United Nations force to secure and supervise the cessation of hosilities" under resolution No. 1. Introduced by Canada. Vote 57 for (including United States), 0 against, 19 abstaining (including Britain, France, Soviet Union, Egypt, Israel).

3. Second cease-fire resolution. Adopted Nov. 4. Repeated demands in resolution No. 1, authorized Hammarskjold to arrange compliance, asked him to report in 12 hours. Introduced by 19 Asian and African countries (Afghanistan, Burma, Ceylon, Ethiopia, Iran, Iraq, India, Indonesia, Jordan, Lebanon, Liberia, Libya, Nepal, Pakistan, Philippines, Saudi Arabia, Syria, Thailand, Yemen). Vote 59 for (including United States, Soviet Union, Egypt), 5 against (including Britain, France, Israel), 12 abstaining.

4. Second U.N.-force resolution. Adopted Nov. 5. Established U.N. Command for international force, appointed Canadian Maj. Gen. E.L.M. Burns chief of this command, authorized him and Hammarskjold to recruit force from all countries but Britain, Nationalist China, France, Soviet Union, United States. Introduced by Canada, Colombia, Norway. Vote 57 for (including United States), 0 against, 19 abstaining (including Britain, France, Soviet Union, Egypt, Israel).

5. Third U.N.-force resolution. Adopted Nov. 7. Approved "guiding principles for organization and functioning of force" proposed by Hammarskjold, including stipulations it might enter Egypt only with Egypt's consent and might not compel withdrawals; established advisery committee (Brazil, Canada, Ceylon, Colombia, India, Norway, Pakistan) to help Hammarskjold direct police force. Introduced by Argentina, Burma, Ceylon, Denmark, Ecuador, Ethiopia, Sweden. Vote 64 for (including Britain, France, United States), 0 against, 12 abstaining (including Soviet Union, Egypt, Israel).

6. Third cease-fire resolution. Adopted Nov. 7. Called for withdrawal of British, French and Israeli forces from Egypt, prompt report on compliance. Introduced by 19 Asian and African countries (same as resolution No. 3). Vote 65 for (including United States, Soviet Union, Egypt), 1 against (Israel), 10 abstaining (including Britain and France).

WHITE WOMAN CONVICTED FOR SITTING BY NEGRO

ARLINGTON, Va., Nov. 15 (AP)—A white librarian was convicted today of violating a Virginia segregation law by sitting beside a Negro at a public political meeting here.

Miss Faith Bissell, 43 years old, was fined $15 by Judge Paul D. Brown of Arlington county court. Her attorney, Edmund D. Campbell, appealed to the circuit court which convenes Dec. 17.

Campbell said he did not argue the case—admittedly a test case—because if he had won in county court it would have foreclosed a possible Supreme Court ruling. The state could not have appealed because the offense is a misdemeanor.

Miss Bissell was arrested Nov. 1 when she sat down in a section of the Jefferson Junior High School auditorium which had been reserved for Negroes. The occasion was a debate by candidates for the Arlington county board.

In line with an opinion by Attorney General J. Lindsay Almond Jr. the auditorium had been divided for a segregated audience.

Dies as Son Scores.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 15 (AP)—R. W. Vollmer died of a heart attack yesterday as he sat in the stands rooting for his 14-year-old son, a junior high halfback, to make a touchdown. Vollmer was stricken seconds before halfback Russell Vollmer plunged over for the score.

HUNGARY INVITES HAMMARSKJOLD TO ROME TALKS

By DONALD GRANT
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Nov. 15—Dag Hammarskjold, Secretary General of the United Nations, was invited today by the Russian-dominated Hungarian government to discuss Hungarian relief questions not in Budapest, but in Rome.

The Hungarian action was interpreted here as an attempt to avoid a visit by the Secretary General to Hungary, where he would see for himself the great damage done and the suffering caused by the Soviet forces when they put down the Hungarian revolt.

The new message was signed by Istvan Sebes, acting foreign minister of Hungary. It was forwarded to Hammarskjold at Naples.

It offered to send "representatives of the Hungarian people's republic" to Rome to meet the Secretary General "and negotiate about the aid offered by the United Nations as well as to exchange views about the position taken by the Hungarian government regarding the resolutions of the United Nations."

The Secretary General, following resolutions passed by the special emergency session of the General Assembly, has been negotiating with the Hungarian government in an attempt to conduct an investigation of events in Hungary, to establish U.N. observation mission in Hungary, and to provide aid for the suffering Hungarian people. So far, negotiations have been fruitless.

The Secretary General had offered to go himself to Budapest, either before or after his trip to the Middle East.

The present message is, in effect, a repetition of the first Hungarian note—which flatly refused to allow U.N. observers or investigators inside Hungary.

ADMINISTRATOR URGES FEDERAL ACTION TO EASE HOUSING CREDIT

Cole Tells Realtors' Convention He Will Take Lead — Says Congress Will Get Specific Proposals.

The decline in the supply of mortgage money has reached a point where "the Government must act affirmatively to see that housing production is protected," Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency Administrator Albert M. Cole said here today.

Cole, addressing the National Association of Real Estate Boards at Kiel Auditorium Opera House, said it was "time to go to bat for housing" and gave real estate dealers his assurance that he would be lead-off man in the batting order.

"While the construction industry as a whole, in response to demands of industrial expansion, is producing in 1956 at a rate almost 4 per cent higher than it did last year," Cole said, "the largest component of that industry—home building—is experiencing a reduction of more than 6 per cent.

17 Pct. Drop in Homes.

"And the decline in dollar volume does not tell the entire story. The new homes put under construction so far this calendar year—homes needed to fill the impatient demand of American families—are being built at a rate about 17 per cent under that of one year ago."

Cole said he thought the Government had a responsibility of providing essential support to maintain the flow of housing credit, particularly at a time when the Federal Reserve Board was maintaining tight controls over the money market. He said specific proposals would be recommended to Congress.

About 5000 persons are attending the forty-ninth annual convention of the N.A.R.E.B. and affiliated groups. The conventions began Monday and adjourns today.

Charles F. Kettering of Dayton, O., 80-year-old research consultant and director of General Motors Corp., received the 1956 industrial award of the Society of Industrial Realtors last night at a dinner at Hotel Chase.

"What has made our industrial society great," the inventor and industrialist said, "is not the profit system, but the double profit system, under which the customer gets a bigger profit than the manufacturer. What you get as a customer, over and above what you pay for, is what built this country."

Not a 'Long-Hair.'

In accepting the award from LeRoy D. Owen of Los Angeles, Kettering remarked that there were two kinds of people, basically, "in our society — those who work with pencil and paper and those who work at benches. I have always worked with a screwdriver and a pair of pliers."

"I am not an industrialist," Kettering, who is bald, said in conclusion, "but an inventor. The inventor is invariably regarded as either a long-hair or a screwball. I have gotten out of the long-hair class."

United States Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson, an associate of Kettering in General Motors for 33 years, was to have made the presentation but could not attend because of his wife's illness. In a telegram, Wilson praised Kettering as "a great scientist and inventor, a great industrialist and a great American."

E. M. Boerke, president of a Milwaukee industrial concern, was elected president of the Society of Industrial Realtors yesterday to succeed Owen. Charles E. Richardson of St. Louis was re-elected a regional vice president.

Assistant Postmaster General Ormonde A. Kieb predicted this afternoon that the next session of Congress would authorize "a modest increase" in postal rates to permit the Post Office Department to undertake a five-year building modernization program. He said the program would cost $400,000,000.

"If the tragic Post Office deficits are to be reduced to reasonable proportions, if our operating Federal properties are to be properly maintained, and if our postal service is to be measurably improved, a modest increase in first, second and third class postage rates is imperative," he asid.

Income Tax 'Discrimination.'

Another afternoon speaker, David F. Maxwell of Philadelphia, president of the American Bar Association, said 10,000,000 self-employed men and women in the United States were victims of "obvious discrimination" in present income tax laws.

He announced plans for a December conference in Washington to consider joint action in support of legislation permitting a self-employed person to set aside a portion of his income annually for an individual retirement fund. Income taxes on the money would be deferred until withdrawals were made as the individual reached retirement age.

John W. Bates Jr. of Richmond, Va., chairman of the N.A.R.E.B. Realtors Washington Committee, its governmental relations arm, denounced a proposal for tax-subsidized housing at a convention general session this morning.

"I refer specifically," Bates said, "to the proposal for direct lending of the taxpayer's money at submarket interest rates to individual and non-profit organizations building for families of middle income."

Noting that such legislation failed of passage in the last Congress by narrow margin, Bates said: "While we do not take issue with the cost of shelter going down, we must fight with every resource at our command the achievement of this goal through the socialization of the real estate industry."

TAXPAYERS JAM COUNTY PHONES, ANGERED BY RISE

The telephone switchboard at St. Louis County Courthouse has been jammed with calls about the tax increase to the exclusion of other calls, officials related today.

Since last week, when the annual tax bills were mailed, the 18-line switchboard has been swamped with calls for the assessor and collector. Residents want to complain about the 17-cent increase in the county rate, the higher school tax in 25 districts and other tax problems. The two telephones each in assessor's and collector's offices are busy constantly, with a waiting list jamming the switchboard, it was reported.

As a result of the unusual number of tax complaints and inquiries, other offices have had virtually no calls. One caller, after trying for two days to reach the circuit clerk's office through the switchboard, called the number of a public phone in a corridor, and had a deputy clerk summoned to the telephone.

MAN WITH COUNTERFEITING PLANT HELD IN LIEU OF BOND

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HOUSTON, Tex., Nov. 15—Rayford Peter Smith, who told police he was from St. Louis, was held in lieu of $20,000 bond here today on charges of counterfeiting $100 bills. He had a do-it-yourself counterfeiting plant in his automobile.

Smith, who said he turned to counterfeiting after failing in business, was arrested in nearby Pasadena last Saturday when a policeman became suspicious after he tossed two frozen chickens out of his automobile. He admitted he bought the chickens with good money to gain the confidence of the store manager. He planned to go back and pass bogus bills.

Pasadena Police Chief A. J. Schamerhorn said Smith was only 15 years old when he was first sent to a reformatory. He has served time in the state penitentiaries of Oregon, Missouri, Washington and Colorado.

56 Killed in Viet Nam Hurricane.

CARETAKER KNOCKED DOWN, TIED; STORE RANSACKED

Joseph Klein, caretaker at the Eagle Boat Store Co., 805 North Wharf street, was overpowered and tied with rope last night by several robbers who ransacked the place, opened two safes and knocked the combination off a third, police reported.

Klein, 64 years old, told officers the doorbell rang about 10:30 p.m. When he called out asking who was there, a man called back that he had a telegram for the boat supply firm. Klein opened the door and several men, he did not know how many, knocked him to the floor. They took him to the second floor, occupied by the Radio-Marine Corp. of America, and tied him, placing a towel around his head.

The robbers then ransacked the place and opened two safes. The safe from which they knocked the combination was in the Radio-Marine firm's quarters. Klein, who lives at the store, could not work himself loose until about 5 a.m. today. The amount taken was not immediately determined. Fred H. Leyhe, son of Capt. William H. Leyhe, former riverboat captain, is manager of the store, which has been in the Leyhe family since 1895.

168,921,000 U.S. RESIDENTS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (UP)—The population of the United States reached 168,921,000 Oct. 1, the Census Bureau estimated yesterday.

This would be an increase of 253,000 from Sept. 1, a 1.7 per cent rise from October 1955 and 11.8 per cent since the last census in 1950.

COUNTY COUNCIL APPROVES DEAL FOR PARK SITE

Purchase of Tract in Vinita Park for $24,909 Will Be First Under Bond Issue.

Purchase of an 8.74-acre tract of land in Vinita Park as the first park site to be acquired under a $2,200,000 park bond issue approved by St. Louis county voters nearly a year ago was authorized yesterday by the County Council.

Price of the land, a short distance south of Midland boulevard and west of North and South road, was $24,909, or $2850 per acre.

County Counselor William B. Kline was authorized to prepare a contract for the purchase as soon as the title has been checked.

Marshal Merlin E. Emig of Vinita Park urged acquisition of the site. He said police protection will be provided for the park area by the Vinita Park police department.

Acquisition of the site, first proposed last July by Mayor John J. Leslie of Vinita Park, was recommended in September by the county Park Board and the Citizens Bond Issue Public Works Advisory (Watchdog) Committee.

Over Appraisal.

An appraisal made by the county set the value of the land at $500 an acre less than the final price. However, county officials pointed out that the appraisal price did not reflect an easement from Midland to the park site.

The council passed unanimously an ordinance authorizing the County Police Department to provide municipal police protection services to county communities that contract for it. The ordinance will become effective as soon as it is signed by Supervisor Luman F. Matthews.

The ordinance authorizes the county department to provide "all or part" of normal municipal police functions. Cost of the service will be borne by the municipalities. A study of costs must be made before a contract can be approved.

County Police Superintendent Raymond W. Hensley said four county communities with either part-time municipal police departments or none at all have applied for service from the county department.

Zoning Proposal.

The council took under advisement a request for a change in zoning on an 11-acre tract of land at New Hampshire avenue and Hoege road, Affton, to allow construction of a $2,500,000 plant to manufacture light electrical control equipment.

A change from residential to light industrial zoning was requested by the Vickers Electric Division of Vickers, Inc., a unit of Sperry Rand Corp. A spokesman for the firm said its present plant at 1815 Locust street would be moved to the county site.

The change, which had been recommended by the County Planning Commission, was opposed by Robert G. J. Hoester, an attorney, who said he represented 400 nearby property owners. Construction of the plant would destroy the character of the neighborhood and create traffic hazards, he said.

About 35 persons, all opposed to the change, attended the council's hearing on the proposal.

STATE AIR GUARD WILL SWITCH TO NEW JET PLANES

Mission Is to Defend Industrial Centers — Unit Had Been Using Bombers.

The Missouri Air National Guard will switch from World War II bombers to modern jet fighter planes and will have as its primary mission defending St. Louis and other industrial centers of the state, Maj. Gen. Albert D. Sheppard, Missouri Adjutant General, announced here today.

The 131st Bombardment Wing, Tactical, will be redesignated the 131st Fighter-Interceptor Wing. The wing's mission will be the defense of Missouri and the industrial centers of St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph in particular.

Col. Charles H. Dubois, wing commander, said the F-86 Sabre jet is expected to be the plane assigned to the Air Guard. In carrying out its defense mission, the 110th Squadron, St. Louis unit, will have pilots on runway alert at Lambert-St. Louis Field, with the wing becoming an integral part of the Air Defense Command.

Col. Dubois, a World War II fighter ace, described the change in equipment and mission as "a major event in the colorful history of the Missouri Air Guard." For the first time in its history the Federal mission and the state mission of the Air Guard will be identical, he pointed out.

Trainer on Hand.

The first jet plane, a T-33 two-place trainer, was received at wing headquarters, Lambert-St. Louis Field, yesterday. During the initial six months of the transition period St. Louis units expect to receive six jet trainers.

Eventually the B-26 light bombers stationed here will be replaced by approximately 16 Sabre jets. Similar replacements will be made at St. Joseph.

With regard to the jet plane problems at the airport, Col. Dubois pointed out that operations of the Air National Guard represent only three per cent of the flying activity at Lambert-St. Louis Field. He said it is expected that the first jet airliners will be in service here next year, and that the operating differential between Air National Guard jets and the jet airliners should cause no new problems.

Leading Air Guard pilots will be sent to Air Force flight transition schools and on their return will train other pilots of the wing. A mobile training unit today from Chanute Air Force Base has been conducting classes at Lambert-St. Louis Field for maintenance and aircrew personnel. The courses cover the mechanical and structural functions of jet aircraft.

Additional Men.

Officers of the 131st Wing anticipate needs for additional men, with the change to new equipment. There will be vacancies for mechanics, armorers and electronics specialists. While experienced prior service men are sought, youths in the 17 to 18½-year bracket also will be accepted.

The present Air Guard enrollment in wing headquarters and attached units here is about 750 men. There are several units at St. Joseph and a flying squadron at New Orleans. The New Orleans squadron also will receive jet fighters.

$57,981,018 in Aid to States.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP)—State educational and public health agencies received $57,981,018 worth of surplus federal property in July, August and September, Marion B. Folsom, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, reported today.

Forced Recruits to Suspend Selves Over Naked Bayonet

Marine Instructor Pleads Guilty to Two Counts of Maltreating Men—Faces Several More Charges.

PARRIS ISLAND, S.C., Nov. 15 (AP)—Marine Pfc. Frederick A. Renton, accused of more than a dozen cases of striking and maltreating recruits at this Marine base, pleaded guilty at his court-martial trial yesterday to two specifications of the charges against him.

Several more charges remained against the 19-year-old New York City youth as the trial entered its second day.

Tells of Beating.

He admitted forcing Pvts. Robert A. Palaisa and Clement R. Ploof Jr. to suspend themselves on their elbows and toes while the point of a bayonet was held under their stomachs.

Renton was accused of holding the bayonet himself in the case of Palaisa while another recruit, Edward R. Juneau Jr., allegedly was forced to do it in the case of Ploof.

Another trainee, Joseph W. Andrulowicz, testified that he beat another recruit on the instigation of Renton.

Pvt. Harry Dunevant told the court that he was beaten up in a shower room. He testified that though he was "dazed and bleeding," Renton, who was the non-commissioned officer on duty at the time, refused to see to it that he got medical aid.

Another recruit, Pvt. Richard J. Burke of Cleveland, O., testified that he was struck by Renton because he went to sleep in class.

Could Get 20 Years.

Pvt. B. C. Howe of Northboro, Mass., testified that he was hit twice in the stomach for being slow in taking his mattress out of a barracks to air.

Since charges have been filed Renton has been reduced in rank from corporal to private first class and has been restricted to the base. He could get a total of 20 years and six months if found guilty of all the specifications against him.

POSTMASTER ISSUES ANNUAL 'MAIL EARLY' PLEA

The annual plea "Mail Early for Christmas" came today from Postmaster Bernard F. Dickmann who directed his appeal to "the lady of the house," because, she selects the Christmas cards, buys the gifts and sees that they are mailed.

Predicting that this year's Christmas mail will be the heaviest in history, Dickmann suggested checking card lists for correct addresses, get Pamphlet No. 2, telling about wrapping parcels, get Pamphlet No. 3, giving details on domestic postal rates, and stock up on stamps.

The Post Office has free labels reading "All for local delivery" and "All for out of town delivery." If Christmas cards are sorted into packages and labeled, it is helpful, Dickmann said.

Meanwhile the Post Office is "geared up right now" to insure delivery of all gifts and cards before Dec. 25, he said.

PHONE WORKERS WIN PAY HIKE IN NEW CONTRACT

Increases Range From $2 to $5—Company Says Higher Charges May Be Necessary.

Wage increases ranging from $2 to $5 were given to 51,000 employes of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. yesterday under a new one-year contract, which the company said may necessitate higher charges for miscellaneous and supplemental services to its customers.

The agreement, reached after prolonged negotiations, provides increases of $3 a week for operators and $5 for craftsmen in the larger cities and $2 to $4 in the smaller cities. Total cost of the agreement was estimated at $11,200,000.

In addition, employes in 10 communities in the six-state area will benefit through reclassification to higher wage schedules. Two Missouri towns, Lee's Summit and Parkville, are included in the reclassification. Certain individual job titles also will carry a higher wage rate.

Officers of District 6, Communications Workers of America, were authorized by the telephone workers to call a strike in the event negotiations, which began Oct. 8, broke down. The final agreement, effective Nov. 11, includes liberalized disability and death benefits and several other fringe items.

J. R. Peterson, general manager of the company's Missouri-Illinois area, said the agreement will increase operating costs in Missouri about $2,400,000 annually.

"This is the fifth labor-cost increase in Missouri in less than five years, for a total of more than $12,000,000," Peterson said. "The company will continue to do all it can to absorb these higher costs without any statewide changes in basic rates for telephone service. However, after we fully evaluate the effect we may have to seek increases in our charges for miscellaneous and supplemental services."

SIX IN MONKEY A.C. PUT ON PROBATION

Members of Disbanded Club Plead Guilty in Picnic Riot.

Six former members of the Monkey Athletic Club were placed on probation for one year by Magistrate Leslie T. Lewis at Clayton yesterday after the youths pleaded guilty of rioting at a picnic for high school students last spring.

The probation holds in abeyance short jail sentences imposed by Magistrate Lewis. The youths were on six-month probation from similar sentences, 60 to 120 days in jail, which followed their conviction Sept. 10 on charges of obstructing an officer, in Magistrate Lewis's court.

Rioting charges against three other former Monkey Athletic Club members were dismissed yesterday, due to the absence of specific evidence linking them with the fight May 27 at the Hedenkamp picnic grounds, south of Kirkwood.

County Police reported that 11 rowdies "crashed" the annual picnic of the Pan-Hellenic Society, and that fights followed. Vonderhaar, Manson and Fultz are alleged to have thrown stones and dirt at police who sought to search them for weapons, and used profane and abusive language. The Monkey A.C., a South Side neighborhood group, has since disbanded.

'WILDCAT' STRIKERS RETURN TO WORK AT FISHER BODY

Production was normal at the Fisher Body plant today after officers of the AFL-CIO Automobile Workers ordered "wildcat" strikers back to work.

The walkout, involving about 3000 production workers of General Motors, began on the late shift Tuesday when some employes protested against alleged "overloading operations" in new-model car production. Interruption of the body assembly lines halted production of passenger cars at the neighboring Checrolet plant, Union boulevard and Natural Bridge avenue.

Picket lines were withdrawn yesterday after Russell Letner, regional director of the UAW, joined with officers of Local 25 in pointing out the work stoppage was a contract violation and that union members should return to work prior to adjustment of grievances. Workers on last night's shift were directed by radio to report.

BAR GROUP PLANS INVESTIGATION OF BROWNING'S ACTS

clared he received the check and actually submitted a bill to the auditor's office in an attempt to cover up for Hodge. Albert E. Jenner Jr., chief counsel of the budgetary commission, reported.

In connection with this check the bar association inquiry will be concerned with the false statement of legal services, the spokesman said.

Hodge resigned from office last July as a result of the disclosures of his thefts and now is serving a 12-to-15 year term in the Illinois Penitentiary at Menard. Two associates are also in prison.

May Await U.S. Inquiry.

The spokesman indicated action in the bar association inquiry will be held up pending disposition of a federal investigation being conducted in the Union Electric lobbying case.

"If nothing comes of the federal inquiry," he said, "the bar will continue its investigation. The procedure is for an inquiry committee to turn positive findings over to a grievance committee for further action."

He said the investigation would be confidential until such time as proceedings may be filed in the Illinois Supreme Court.

Union Electric Co.'s checks to Browning came to light as a result of the Illinois Budgetary Commission's investigation of a secret "brown envelope" ledger kept for Hodge by Edward A. Hintz, president of the Southmoor Bank & Trust Co., Chicago. All four checks were entered in the account.

The budgetary commission questioned Browning Tuesday and Rendleman then came to St. Louis to interrogate the Union Electric Co. officers involved in the case.

Rendleman was particularly interested in why Williamson delivered Browning's checks to Hodge.

He quoted Williamson as saying, by way of explanation: "It seemed Hodge's office was a good place to leave the fee."

J. Wesley McAfee, president of the utility, earlier told the Post-Dispatch that 99 per cent of the company's checks are sent by mail. Browning has an office in Chicago but has no Springfield headquarters.

Browning pointed out today at Chicago that the address of his legal firm had been printed on each of the four checks made out to him. All Union Electric had to do to get the checks to him, he said, was to place them in "window" envelopes and mail them.

Williamson told Rendleman he had "a couple of lawyers in mind" to lobby for the Union Electric bill, but decided to go to Hodge for a recommendation. Hodge suggested Browning, he said. Williamson asked Hodge to learn if Browning were available and what his fee would be.

"Hodge ascertained Browning would be available and that his fee would be $35,000," Rendleman was told. "The retainer was to be $7500; $5000 was to be paid when the bill cleared the Senate committee and another $5000 when it cleared the House committee. A balance of $17,500 was to be paid when the bill passed both houses."

McAfee announced he planned to make a full report of the Browning-Hodge lobbying case to the board of directors of Union Electric at a meeting tomorrow. He said he will have some recommendations to make.

Cites Contradictions.

Rendleman pointed out two contradictions between what Williamson and Driemeyer had told him and what Jenner had been told by Browning.

One of these, he said, was in the circumstances of the initial payment on April 21. The two Union Electric officers said Hodge was not present at the meeting and was not to share in the fee or do any of the work.

The second, Rendleman said, was over the work to be done by Browning. Browning had told Jenner he was to do the legal work and appear before legislative committees while Hodge was to do the lobbying.

"This was obviously a lobbying fee and not a legal fee," Rendleman observed.

At this point, McAfee remarked that all the legal work on the bill had been done.

Apprised of Union Electric's present contention that Browning was paid to lobby and not for legal services, Jenner today asked:

"How does Mr. Williamson square that with a statement he made in a letter, dated Nov. 5, in which he described the $35,000 payment as follows: 'These checks were issued in payment for fees for legal services.'"

Jenner said the letter was addressed to a Chicago accounting firm which is auditing the confused financial affairs of Hodge.

Reviews Talk With Browning.

He said Browning recalled that Hodge reached him by phone in April 1955 and told him to get in touch with Driemeyer at a hotel in Urbana, Ill. Browning said he called Driemeyer.

"Dreimeyer explained the nature of the Union Electric legislation," Jenner quoted Browning as saying, "and told Browning that the Chicago and Illinois Bar Associations would be in favor of it. He said if Browning was interested he would like to have Browning represent Union Electric."

Browning then told of a later meeting in Hodge's Springfield office which was attended by Browning, Hodge, Williamson and Driemeyer.

After arrangements had been made to hire Browning, Jenner said, the Union Electric representatives left the room. Browning had been given a $7500 retainer.

Hodge then turned to Browning, according to Browning, and said: "I am badly in need of some money. I want that check. I need that money. Let me have that check."

Browning said he indorsed the Union Electric check and turned it over to Hodge.

Tried to Call Hodge.

Jenner, referring to his notes, said Browning answered questions about what when on after the meeting in Hodge's office, as follows:

"Browning did not hear from Hodge, Driemeyer or Williamson. He thought this was strange and began to call Hodge on the telephone. Hodge would not answer. Browning left messages but Hodge did not return his calls.

"Browning called at Springfield, at Chicago and at Hodge's home at Lake Springfield. He doesn't know why Hodge was avoiding him and he never did get in touch with him. He has never talked with Hodge, Driemeyer or Williamson, nor has he had any kind of communication with any one of them about the legislation from the day of that meeting in Springfield.

"Browning said he never tried to get in touch with Driemeyer because Hodge had brought him into the case in the first instance and he felt he was obliged to work through Hodge.

"After examining the three checks issued after the first $7500 retainer, Browning said he doubted the indorsement on one of the subsequent $5000 checks was his. He said definitely the two other indorsements were not in his handwriting. He stated he received none of the proceeds of any of the checks.

"Browning volunteered this to me: That I ought to be able to see that Driemeyer, Williamson and Hodge had changed their minds about Browning's participation in the matter. I said it was obvious the additional $27,500 was paid in installments, and not in a lump sum, so there must have been a change from what had been represented to him at the outset.

"In response to additional questioning, Browning said it was obvious to him that Hodge had had extended conversations with Williamson and Driemeyer before the April 20 meeting.

"It was made clear to Browning, he claims, that Browning was to work through Hodge and that it was a joint undertaking."

BRITAIN, FRANCE VIOLATED AID PACT, U.S. SAYS

$3 600,000,000 in military equipment, supplies and services to France and about one billion dollars to Britain.

The department's statement, which was cleared by Assistant Defense Secretary Gordon Gray, said the United States "has been diverted to the support of operations in the Suez area."

The Defense Department said this knowledge was based on two sources: (1) information from British and French authorities, and (2) reports from United States Military Assistance Advisory Groups in Britain and France who maintain a check on the use of United States-furnished military equipment.

Aside from the "representations" already made, the Defense Department said that further action by the United States "will be a matter of future consideration."

The Defense Department added that the cease-fire in the Suez area "may obviate the need for additional representations" to the two governments.

Concern Over Volunteers.

The big hope in Washington is that arrival of the United Nations police force in Egypt will eliminate any pretext the Communists might use to send forces to Egypt. This is why the United States has been pressing for a speedy arrival of the U.N. troops.

The President's reliance on the United Nations and his refusal to say what action the United States might take was interpreted in some diplomatic quarters as a warning to the Communists against intervening in the Middle East.

Actually, many diplomatic and military officials believe that the Russians are spreading the "volunteer" idea primarily for propaganda effect in the Arab world.

Military men pointed out there are practical obstacles to moving large numbers of Soviet troops over land or sea to Egypt, and the Russians are aware of the risks. If they got their force into Egypt, they would encounter huge problems of supply and command.

An overland movement apparently would mean violating Iranian or Turkish territory and an effort to move by sea could run afoul a British-French blockade. Thus, military men said, any such Russian effort could set off a dangerous chain of events, involving members of the Atlantic alliance and leading even to a Middle Eastern war in which the use of atomic weapons might not be excluded.

Military authorities doubted that Russia could see the possibility of enough gain to offset the risks.

They doubted also that Russia overlooked the warning in Paris on Tuesday of Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, retiring North Atlantic Treaty Organization commander. Referring to Soviet "blackmail threats" that have been made against Britain and France during the current crisis, Gruenther said an attack on the West woud bring retaliation that would destroy Russia.

forces to return unrestrained to the Sinai peninsula and Gaza strip, now occupied by the Israeli army.

Asked if he meant that Israeli would not withdraw to demarcation lines after the arrival of U.N. "policemen," he replied that he did not intend to imply that. That would be a matter to be settled by determining the functions and effectiveness of the U.N. force, he said.

The Egyptian army directives submitted by Eban contained instructions for tough training of troops "to fight in a brutal manner." They were concluded with the admonishment: "Our aim is always the destruction of Israel. Remember it, work for its fulfillment."

The Israeli spokesman contended they were additional evidence supporting his governments claim that it invaded Egypt in self defense.

Puts Red China Issue Aside.

Meanwhile, the 14-member Assembly Steering Committee decided that any proposals to give Communist China membership in the U. N. would not be discussed at the current session. A United States resolution excluding consideration of the subject was adopted 8 to 5 with one abstention.

In making that disposition of the request by India to place the question of the "representation of China in the N. N." on the Assembly agenda for full debate, the Steering Committee followed a precedent established since Red China first sought membership in 1950. Only Russia, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Egypt and India voted against the United States motion. El Salvador abstained.

V. K. Krishna Menon said that India deplored the fact that a nation with more than 525,000,000 people was denied a seat in the world organization.

Motion by Lodge.

Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. promptly moved that the Steering Committee recommend that the General Assembly "decides not to include in the agenda" the Indian item and also "decides not to consider any proposals to exclude the representatives of the government of the republic of China or to seat representatives of the central people's government of the Peoples Republic of China."

Vassily V. Kuznetsov said Russia supported the Indian request. Red China had made a great contribution to peace "by putting an end to the bloodletting in Korea which was begun by Western aggressors," he said.

The Assembly met today to ratify the Steering Committee's recommendation and was expected to begin general debate. Assistant Secretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr. was expected to deliver the American policy statement in the debate, but there was some question whether the 79-nation body would become bogged down in a wrangle over completing its agenda that might delay the start of the debate until tomorrow.

OKLAHOMA HIGHWAY PLANS FACING ROUGH ROAD AHEAD

STILLWATER, Okla., Nov. 15 (AP)—The Oklahoma Highway Department faces the possibility of having to get signatures of 45,000 persons who own a part of one acre of land needed as a highway right-of-way near Anadarko.

Sold in two-square inch lots at $1 per lot, the land was used to raise funds to construct an amphitheater at nearby Indian City.

Wes Wyatt, president of the Redman Land Co. which sold the tiny lots, quoted highway representatives as saying a quit claim deed signed by him and a "dedication deed" by the former owner might clear the property for the state purchase.

task of the police force in Egypt. This apparently remained to be worked out by U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold, who arrived in Rome today on his way to Cairo.

Hammarskjold went into immediate conference with Canadian Maj. Gen. E.L.M. Burns, commander of the United Nations police force.

They met for 2 hours 15 minutes, then Hammarskjold flew in an Italian air force plane to the Capodichino staging area near Naples for an inspection of the international police force. The two men made no statement of what came up in the conference.

A spokesman for the secretary general said Hammarskjold planned to spend the night in Naples, and would leave from there for Cairo tomorrow morning. Hammarskjold said that he had not decided whether he would go to Hungary after his visit to the Middle East.

He said he had no other statement to make and declined any comment on the Middle Eastern situation.

Navy to Handle Supplies.

In Washington the United States Navy was designated today to direct American operations for supplying the U.N. truce force in Egypt.

The Defense Department said Adm. Walter F. Boone will be the representative to co-ordinate the supply support with the U.N. command. Boone is commander of United States Naval Forces in the Mediterranean.

Details of the Navy participation were being worked out at Naples. However, Navy spokesman said they assumed the support would include food and other supplies, the providing of some billeting space at the assembly area near Naples and sea transport if necessary.

Takeoff of the first U.N. units had been stalled two days by technical and political difficulties. The departure came on urgent orders from Hammarskjold, who acted shortly after a report from Moscow that Egyptian President Nasser had asked the Soviet Union to send to Egypt immediately the thousands of Russians who reportedly have "volunteered" to join the Egyptians against the British, French and Israelis in Egypt.

Before leaving New York, Hammarskjold said his mission was "to do what I can to assist setting up and getting going a United Nations emergency force in Egypt."

Conflict Over Role.

Squarely confronting the U.N. operation were the conflicting stands of Egypt and Britain, France and Israel on the role of the police force.

Egypt demands that the British, French and Israeli invasion forces withdraw immediately, that the U.N. force take up positions along the 1949 Egyptian-Israeli armistice lines, and that Egypt resume full control of the Suez canal.

Britain and France say their troops now holding the north third of the Suez canal will give up that area only to the U.N. force. They also have indicated that they expect the U.N. to put the canal back into operation and to control it until a settlement with Egypt is reached.

Israel has given every indication it will not pull out of the Gaza strip, which had been under Egyptian control since the end of the 1948 Palestine war. The strip was seized after Israeli forces plunged into Egypt Oct. 29.

Hanging over this barrier of disagreement was the fear of intervention by Communist "volunteers."

The report that Nasser had asked for such help, which came from an Arab diplomatic source in the Soviet capital, was not confirmed by the Egyptian embassy in Moscow.

The New York Times said in a dispatch from Cairo that official sources in the Egyptian capital denied that Egypt had asked the Soviet Union to send "volunteers" if Nasser felt they were needed. But the source said that since there now is a cease-fire and U.N. forces have been ordered to the scene, Egypt felt no need for the entry of foreign "volunteers."

Egypt made an urgent appeal to the world for help after Britain and France opened their invasion of the Canal Zone. Both the Soviet Union and Red China have for the past several days reported that thousands of "volunteers" were offering to serve in Egypt.

The Soviet government last weekend said it would not hinder the departure of volunteer airmen, tank drivers, artillery experts and others if British, French and Israeli forces delayed in withdrawing from Egypt.

Eisenhower's Stand.

President Eisenhower told his news conference in Washington the United States opposes any intervention by Russia or Communist China in Egypt. His remarks left the inference that the United States might ask the U.N. to sponsor such opposition—as was done in Korea.

The government-controlled Cairo radio reported Mr. Eisenhower's statement at length.

As the vanguard of the U.N. force roared off to the Suez area, U.N. officials said Egyptian authorities had made housing arrangements at Ismailia, halfway point on the 103-mile Suez waterway, for a force of 1000 men.

The Abu Suweir arrival point is a former British army headquarters site southwest of Ismailia. A U.N. spokesman in Cairo said billets at the camp were being prepared to receive the police units.

Twelve U. N. Palestine truce observers entered the area earlier to serve as an advance party for the first contingent of police troops.

Looking a bit airsick, the 45 Danes trooped off the first big DC-6B airliner at Ismailia with the morning sun glistening on their sky blue helmets. Each wore a light blue armband with U. N. lettering on it. The soldiers carried rifles and light machineguns.

They lined up with Lt. Axel Bosjim at their head and received a welcome from Brig. Gen. Amin Helmy, head of an Egyptian liaison committee assigned to the U. N. command.

"In the name of the Egyptian armed forces we welcome you as troops of the United Nations emergency force," Helmy said.

The Norwegians, headed by Capt. Tonne Huitfeldt, received a similar welcome when they landed in the second plane.

"You will stay here until further instructions. You will be quartered in camps on this airfield. I know nothing about your future duties."

To newsmen, Huitfeldt said, "We are going to do the job. We feel it is important that we come here."

All the Norwegians, he added, were draftees doing their regular military service.

Israel's Cabinet Meets, Possibly on Plea to Leave Gaza.

JERUSALEM, Israeli Sector, Nov. 15 (UP)—Israel's cabinet met in extraordinary session today. No reason was given for the meeting but it was believed to have some connection with reports that the United States is about to bring pressure on Israel to withdraw from the Gaza strip.

Premier Ben-Gurion, asked by a Communist member of Parliament whether Israel proposed to pull out of Sinai, replied "there is no point in answering your question since I have already written the answer to the same question in a letter to Mr. Bulganin."

ARAB NATIONS PLEDGE FORCE TO AID EGYPT

ging behind the Syrians at this conference. They have been grateful for Russian aid in armaments, but they are not ready to jump overboard yet.

There is a wide range in opinions among those meeting here, according to reliable sources. That includes King Saud of Arabia, King Hussein of Jordan, King Faisal of Iraq, President Camille Chamoun of Lebanon, President Shukri El Kuwatly of Syria and representatives of Egypt, Libya, the Sudan and Yemen.

Opposing Views.

At the extremes there are on one side the Syrians who want to cut relations with the West and proclaim Russia their friend, and on the other the Iraqis—who consider that the greatest danger to the Middle East is the growing Russian influence.

The Iraqis have been reported on the point of pulling out of the conference because of Syrian suggestions that they were only puppets of the Western powers.

The Associated Press reported from Damascus today that reliable sources said Lebanon's Prime Minister Abdullah Yafi had offered to resign as a result of the split in the conference. Yafi was said to want to sever relations with Britain and France because of the attack on Egypt, while President Camille Chamoun was opposed to such action. The President had not yet accepted Yafi's resignation.

King Hussein of Jordan is said not to have decided definitely on this question, but the extremist element in his new cabinet is said to be pressing hard for him to join the pro-Soviet camp.

The other countries seem to be undecided, and all are still hesitant about a Russian alliance.

King Saud, who holds the money bags of the Egypt-Saudi Arabia-Syria alliance, is reported extremely reluctant to follow Syria's lead. He is almost a medieval monarch in his power, and he does not want any Communist influence in his country.

JUSTICE DEPT. ENTERS INQUIRY ON LOBBY FEE

In its 1955 report, Union Electric stated it had made no such contribution, although Hodge was a "holder of public office" when the fee was paid.

In another part of its report, the company stated it did not know whether any recipients of payments by it were of the classes prohibited and that it had not circularized the various recipients to determine whether they were in any of these classes because of the unreasonable effort and expense involved.

Officials of the company have said the fee was intended for and payable to Browning although three checks making up $27,500 of the fee had been left with Hodge for Browning. They also said Hodge had not been employed as a lobbyist and was not to share in the fee.

Browning, on the other hand, has said both he and Hodge were to work for the bill and split the fee in a manner to be determined.

An SEC spokesman said the commission inquiry would get under way immediately and would be under the direction of Thomas B. Hart, Chicago regional administrator of the SEC.

SEC officials doubt at present that the payment violated Section 12h of the federal law covering political contributions to candidates for both federal and state offices.

However, Section 29 of the statute provides that it shall be a violation to wilfully file a false application, report, document or record with the agency.

In an "application-declaration" filed with the SEC at the time Union Electric sought to acquire the assets and liabilities of an Illinois subsidiary, Union Electric listed attorney fees of $8000 in connection with the transaction.

"No fees or commissions, other than legal and engineering fees or statutory fees are to be paid or incurred in connection with the proposed transactions," the company declared. Later a sworn statement signed by John A. Woodbridge, vice president and general counsel of the company, stated this condition had been complied with and again listed legal fees of $8000.

The Illinois transaction, in which Union Electric took over Union Electric Power Co. of Illinois, figured in the $35,000 lobbying fee. The legislation was needed by the company before it could operate the subsidiary's properties in Illinois as part of a single system.

The holding company act provides the same penalties for violations of regulations established under the act as for violations of the act itself. Conviction carries a maximum fine of $10,000 or a maximum prison sentence of two years, or both, for utility officials convicted of violating either the act or the regulations.

In approving Union Electric's application to take over the subsidiary Aug. 5, 1955, the SEC noted that $5000 in legal fees were to be paid to a St. Louis law firm in connection with the transaction and $3000 to an East St. Louis firm of lawyers and that no other legal fees were incurred, according to the company's declaration.

SEC regulations make it a violation of the act if a utility charges non-legal expenses under the heading of legal fees. Another regulation requires true financial statements accurately reflecting the books of the utility.

SEC records indicate the St. Louis attorney who handled most of the work for Union Electric on acquisition of the Illinois subsidiary was William H. Ferrell, a partner in Keefe, Doerner, Schlafly and Griesedieck. The East St. Louis attorney who performed the legal services on that side of the river was Henry F. Driemeyer, a partner in Pope and Driemeyer.

The holding company act was passed in the aftermath of a long investigation of financial and political practices of public utilities. One of the first large holding companies to be broken up under the act was the North American Co., then the parent company of Union Electric.

Willard W. Gatchell, general counsel for the Federal Power Commission, told the Post-Dispatch that Union Electric had filed its required annual report with the FPC in 1955, adding, "I think it showed a payment of $35,000 under the heading of legal services."

Gatchell said, however, that the FPC has no jurisdiction in the case and knows nothing about it. He explained the report was not filed as a regulatory measure but strictly for information purposes.

In Springfield, J. Waldo Ackerman Jr., state's attorney-elect of Sangamon county, who takes office Jan. 1, said he had been watching developments to determine whether any state laws had been violated in connection with the lobby fee.

Honors at Border.

By the Associated Press.

Gomulka, jailed under Stalin for "Titoism," was received with honors when he crossed the Soviet border at Brest.

The Soviet news agency Tass said Gomulka was greeted by an honor guard and the town was decorated with Polish and Soviet flags to honor the Polish government delegation.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister N. S. Patolichev was in the party welcoming Gomulka and the other Poles.

It appeared that Soviet leaders, ignoring Warsaw's ouster of Rokossovsky, would give the new head of the Polish Communist party a full-dress reception.

Camp Kilmer Being Made Ready For 5000 Hungarian Refugees

New Jersey Installation That Handled 5,000,000 Soldiers in World War II Comes to Life.

CAMP KILMER, N.J., Nov. 15 (AP)—This large Army installation, a staging area for 5,000,000 soldiers in World War II, is coming to life again to receive 5000 Hungarian refugees from Soviet terror.

The first contingent of 250 service troops arrived yesterday and began restoring heating and lighting to the camp's 1139 buildings, most of them wooden barracks.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said in Washington there is "a very good chance" that the first refugees will arrive at the camp by the end of next week. The refugees will be housed here until civilian welfare agencies arrange for their care.

The Army said that before this week is out, the troops on hand to take care of the Hungarian men, women and children will number 600. They will include doctors, nurses, mess personnel, orderlies and administrative staffs.

Lt. Gen. Thomas W. Herren, First Army commander, said the camp would be ready by Monday to receive 500 refugees. The date of arrival of the first group has not been determined.

President's Order.

President Eisenhower last week ordered up to 5000 Hungarian refugees admitted to the country and Pierce Gerety, deputy administrator of the refugees relief law, appealed to Americans to provide homes and financial assistance for them.

Hagerty said the response has been "tremendous" and "very heartwarming." Gerety has been "just snowed under," he said, by offers to take the refugees into private homes, to provide jobs and to adopt refugee children.

Camp Kilmer headquarters also began receiving calls yesterday from Hungarian societies in the area, offering to help the troops in any way.

The camp is near New Brunswick, which has a large population of Hungarian-Americans.

The refugees will be flown from Austria to McGuire Air Force Base adjacent to Fort Dix.

Camp Kilmer was inactivated in 1949, but reopened in September 1950 after theoutbreak fo the Korean war. It went into standby status once again July 1, 1955, with only a caretaker force on hand.

More Arrive in Austria.

Meanwhile, the folod of refugees into Austria increased. More than 4000 crossed the border yesterday. This increased to nearly 30,000 the total registered sipce the anti-Soviet revolution began in Budapest Oct. 23.

Other countries began receiving refugees yesterday. At Utrecht, in The Netherlands, the first group of some 600 arrived late last night. They cheered and cried as their special train from Vienna pulled into the station.

Most of the refugees are men between 16 and 25. Families brought along about 40 children, but most of the refugees are single or left their families behind. They were mainly workmen and farmhands.

In Bogota, the Colombian government said last night it would admit up to10,000 Hungarian refugees.

PAROLEE RETURNS TO PRISON; LIFE OUTSIDE IS TOO FAST

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., Nov. 15 (AP)—Life outside was just too fast, so Miguel Marrero, after five years of freedom, is returning to the Oregon state penitentiary.

Marrero, 55 years old, was paroled after serving 21 years for a 1931 killing. He finally told Sheriff Murray Britton he wanted to return to prison.

Before leaving here for the prison yesterday, Marrero explained:

"I can't make it outside. Life reached too fast a pace during the 21 years I was in prison. I am like Alice in Wonderland."

NEGROES CHEER BUS RULING BUT KEEP UP BOYCOTT

5000 at Montgomery, Ala., Vote to Wait Until Decree Is Put in Effect.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 15 (UP)—Thousands of Negroes cheered the Supreme Court decision against segregation on busses but voted last night to maintain their local transit boycott until a United States district court decree actually goes into effect.

The Rev. Martin Luther King, leader of the Negroes' 11-month fight for the right to mingle freely with white riders on city busses, said he expected a mandate from the Supreme Court to reach the district court in "just a few days."

(In Washington today, the office of the clerk of the Supreme Court told the Associated Press formal notice of the action would be issued in about a month. Under the court's rules, notice of a decision is not sent out until at least 25 days after the decision is announced. Usually such notices actually go out in around 30 days.)

The Montgomery Improvement Association, formed by the Negroes soon after their bus boycott began last Dec. 5, recommended the boycott end in view of the court ruling. But it also recommended a "return to the busses on a non-segregated basis" be delayed until the district court issues a decree.

About 5000 Negroes assembled at two separate mass meetings cheered the recommendations and voted their approval.

'Procedural Matter.'

King told the meetings that relay of the Supreme Court decision to the district court is a "purely procedural matter," but that a delay in ending the boycott is necessary because "reactionary elements" might otherwise "plunge us into needless harassment and meaningless litigation."

A thunderous ovation greeted the Rev. Mr. King, a Negro Baptist minister.

The only opposing voice came at the second meeting. An unidentified woman arose and said, "I don't think the Montgomery City Bus Lines is ready for the Negroes of Montgomery. I suggest we ask for another bus line."

Her plea was unanimously voted down.

United States District Judge Frank M. Johnson turned down the Negroes' request for an injunction to bar the city from interfering with car pools, which had been the backbone of the boycott.

The city obtained an injunction last Tuesday ordering a temporary halt to the car pools on grounds they were "private enterprise" and were operated without franchises.

The Rev. Mr. King said there was no longer a need for the pools now that the Supreme Court had struck down the Alabama law requiring bus segregation. But he warned the Negroes not to try to ride busses on an integrated basis until local authorities have been formally notified of the court order. Premature riding might lead to arrests, he said.

'Let Us Be Calm.'

The Rev. Mr. King said that until the court order is formally received here, "we will continue to walk and share rides."

"All of us have a basic responsibility to seek to implement this noble decision," he said. "Let us be calm and reasonable."

C. C. (Jack) Owen, president of the State Public Service Commission, has predicted that "the people of Alabama are not going to put up with integration."

Owen, who was elected to office on a campaign promise to preserve segregation, said public carriers operating under state control "will be asked to maintain segregation in order to maintain peace and order."

"In my opinion, the companies can place passengers as they wish as the best way to maintain order. I am sure we can get the co-operation of the companies," he said.

Columbus (O.) Pair Acquitted in Cross-Burning.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 15 (AP)—An all-white Columbus municipal court jury last night acquitted a Columbus couple of participating in a cross-burning on the lawn of a Negro neighbor.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Jones were found not guilty of a charge of violating a state law which prohibits rioting. The jury deliberated three hours. The charge grew out of a cross burned on the lawn of George Lawson last Aug. 14.

The Defense offered no witnesses during the two-day trial, but state witnesses testified about a meeting last May 2 in a neighborhood school at which the "Lawson question" was discussed. Mrs. Lawson said Jones and two other men called on her after the meeting and offered to buy her home if she and her family would move.

Announces Appeal of Private College Bar on Negroes.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 15 (AP)—City Solicitor David Berger said yesterday the city and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania will appeal to the United States Supreme Court in an effort to have two Negro orphan boys admitted to all-white Girard College.

The private institution was established 125 years ago by the will of financier Stephen Girard, who specified that it be maintained as a school for "poor male white orphans."

Girard's will was upheld last Monday by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court in a 5-to-1 decision. Chief Justice Horace Stern said then that "while it may seem unfortunate that the court is obliged to sanction the exclusion of any child from even a private school or orphanage because of race, creed or color," Girard had the "undoubted right to dispose of his property" and say who should "enjoy its benefits."

MARINES DENY EMBARKING TASK FORCE FOR MIDEAST

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (UP)—The Marine Corps today denied reports that a task force of the Second Marine Division is being embarked aboard ships for duty in the Middle East.

A Marine Corps spokesman said the reports apparently stem from the fact that a battalion of the Second Division is currently engaged in amphibious exercises in the North Carolina area.

The spokesman said that the 1200-man battalion was embarked upon amphibious ships to participate in exercises in conjunction with the Second Marine Air Wing.

EASTERN AIR LINES STRIKE DATE TO BE SET BY UNION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (UP)—The AFL-CIO International Machinists Union is expected to set a strike date today for 4800 mechanics and other ground employes of Eastern Air Lines, Inc., union sources said.

Government sources indicated, however, that the National Mediation Board would again try to settle the wage contract dispute in advance of a strike.

The airline and union are observing a 30-day cooling-off period which expires Saturday. The cooling-off period followed previous unsuccessful settlement efforts by the board, which last month also suggested arbitration of the dispute. The union turned it down.

The union is asking for wage increases and other improvements under a reopening clause in its wage contract with Eastern.

MISSOURI PRIEST NAMED EPISCOPAL BISHOP OF IDAHO

POCONO MANOR, Pa., Nov. 15 (AP)—The Episcopal House of Bishops today elected two priests to the Episcopate at a service of the Holy Communion.

They are the Rev. Norman L. Foote of Parkville, Mo., who will become Missionary Bishop of Idaho and the Rev. Raymond T. Ferris, who will head the newly-created Missionary District of Central America.

The Rev. Mr. Foote, who will fill a vacancy left by the resignation of the Rt. Rev. Frank A. Rhea, is director of the Episcopal church's National Town and Country Church Institute in Roanridge, Mo. The institute is a training center for the rural ministry.

The Rev. Mr. Ferris has been rector of Christ Church in Nashville, Tenn., since 1954. Since his ordination in 1937, he has served as missionary in charge of St. John's Church in Morris, N.Y., and was a missionary in the Panama Canal Zone, serving as dean of St. Luke's Cathedral at Ancon from 1944 to 1954.

LOUISIANA ALSO TO SEEK LAKE MICHIGAN DIVERSION

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 15—Louisiana said today it would join Illinois in asking the United States Supreme Court to approve a 100-day emergency diversion of Lake Michigan waters into the Illinois-Mississippi Waterway.

Illinois has urged the present court-set limit on diversion of 1500 cubic feet of water a second be increased to 11,500 cubic feet. The low-water level at the Alton (Ill.) lock, which hampers navigation, was cited by Illinois as one reason why more water should be diverted.

REPORT ON OCTOBER SALE OF U.S. SAVINGS BONDS

Sales of United States Savings Bonds in St. Louis and St. Louis county in October totaled $4,409,034, bringing total sales for the first 10 months of the year to $51,273,875 which is 72.6 per cent of the metropolitan area's quota, Arthur K. Atkinson, savings bonds chairman for metropolitan St. Louis, reported today.

Missouri savings bonds sales in October amounted to $12,233,063, R. E. L. Hill, state chairman, said. This figure brings the year's total to $136,103,336 which is 82.8 per cent of the goal assigned for 1956.

EPISCOPAL BISHOPS OPPOSE CHANGING REMARRIAGE RULE

POCONO MANOR, Pa., Nov. 15 (AP)—The 125-member Episcopal House of Bishops feels there is no need to change the church's canons regarding remarriage.

The prelates in annual session discussed the question yesterday in order to advise the marriage commission when that body meets here tomorrow.

The canons now in effect are subject to two interpretations, the bishops indicated. Last amended in 1948, they permit appeal to the resident bishop by persons desiring remarriage.

Some bishops will approve the remarriage only if cause can be found to annul the first marriage. Others decide the question on the merits of each situation.

A questionnaire indicated that 3000 requests of remarriage were received by the church during a four-year period which ended the first of this year, according to the Rt. Rev. T. N. Carruthers, bishop of South Carolina. About 77 per cent were granted.

The Protestant Episcopal Church lists more than 3,000,000 members in the United States.

That's the Ticket.

MUSKEGON, Mich. (UP)—Of 19 motorists ticketed for speeding by a radar speed timer patrol here, 16 were women, police reported.

TYPHOONS HEAD FOR LUZON

MANILA, Nov. 15 (AP)—Two typhoons merged over the Pacific today and bore down on the Philippines with 100-mile winds.

Typhoon signals went up on Luzon island as typhoon Karen joined up with Lucille and last was reported 160 miles east-northeast of Baler port, Quezon province.

RED TECHNICIANS FLEEING EGYPT LAND IN BELGIUM

33 Adults, 30 Children in Plane That Left Soon After Bombing Started.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 15 (UP)—The first planeload of Soviet technicians and their families fleeing from the British-French invasion of Egypt arrived today en route to Russia.

Thirty children and 33 adults including aviation and tank experts who were training the Egyptians to use almost half a billion dollars worth of Soviet military aid fled at start of the British-French bombings.

More than 200 were reported still in the Sudan and about 800 others in Egypt.

None of the Russians arriving here had Egyptian exit visas, indicating they had left Egypt in a big hurry.

All passengers except one family flew on either to Prague or Warsaw en route home. The family that remained behind because all planes headed for the Iron Curtain were filled was given a 48-hour visa.

The Russians were smartly dressed and several spoke fluent French. They carried only hand luggage and refused to answer questions about their presence in Egypt. Because they had no visas they were given priorities for their immediate departure.

Soviet Experts Apparently Those Who Arrived Months Ago.

ROME, Nov. 15 (AP)—Russia apparently is bringing home at least some of the military experts it sent to Egypt months ago to instruct President Nasser's troops in the use of Soviet equipment.

An Italian government source said today that a planeload of Soviet experts passed through here last weekend en route from Khartoum, the Sudan, to Amsterdam and Moscow.

An Italian government source said more Russians are expected to pass through this week. Another source said a Belgian plane carrying 65 was expected today.

MRS. WEINBERGER BREAKS DOWN AT KIDNAPING TRIAL

MINEOLA, N.Y., Nov. 15 (UP)—Mrs. Morris Weinberger broke down and began to sob on the witness stand today at the trial of the man accused of kidnaping her infant son when the prosecutor showed her the dead child's clothing.

Mrs. Weinberger was one of the first witnesses at the trial of Angelo John Lamarca, accused of kidnaping the baby and abandoning him to die.

District Attorney Frank A. Gulotta showed Mrs. Weinberger a diaper, a kimono and a blanket and asked her if they were similar to the clothing worn by her baby when he was taken last July 4.

She began to sob when she saw the articles and a sympathetic court waited about five minutes for her to collect herself. She identified the clothing and then was dismissed when the defense said it had no questions.

SCHOOL OFFICIAL CLEARED IN AUTHERINE LUCY CASE

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 15 (AP)—United States District Judge H. Hobart Grooms today gave the University of Alabama trustees 15 days in which to show they were not in contempt of court in refusing to readmit a Negro student.

Grooms, however, cleared three other university officials of contempt in the Autherine Lucy Foster case. They are Dr. O. C. Carmichael, president; Dean of Admissions William F. Adams, and Rufus Bealle, secretary to the board of trustees.

Attorney Arthur B. Shores filed contempt proceedings Oct. 5.

Mrs. Foster was admitted to the university Feb. 1 and was driven from the campus by an angry mob Feb. 6. Grooms ordered her readmitted Feb. 29 but she was expelled the same day for her unproved charges that university authorities conspired in the mob action against her.

KIRKWOOD PILOT ON PLANE BELIEVED LOST IN ATLANTIC

Lt. (jg) Eugene Reed, Navy pilot, formerly of Kirkwood, was one of the crew of 10 aboard a Navy flying boat which is believed to have crashed in flames in the Atlantic ocean about 400 miles north of Bermuda last Saturday, relatives and friends here were informed today.

Reed, a graduate of Kirkwood High School, had been in the Navy about three years. He is the son of Mrs. Mary Marshall Reed, formerly of 1430 Andrew drive, Kirkwood, who recently moved to Dallas, Tex. His father, C. E. Reed, died about five years ago.

The flying boat, a Martin Marlin twin-engine P-5M, carrying powerful enemy detection equipment, was on a routine night flight. The crew of a freighter radioed a message received at the plane's headquarters in Bermuda that it was seen to explode in flight and fall into the ocean. The Navy previously listed Petty Officer 3-C Jesse William Grable of Centralia, Ill., as a member of the crew.

USE OF CONVICTS IN U.N. ARMY URGED BY MENARD PAPER

CHESTER, Ill., Nov. 15 (AP)—Menard State Prison's inmate newspaper, the Menard Time, has proposed the use of American convicts in a permanent United Nations army.

The proposal was offered as an alternative for men now barred from military service because of their felony records.

In support of its proposal, the newspaper said convict enlistments in a permanent U.N. army might lead to the "possible elimination of the draft."

It also quoted FBI figures showing only 10 per cent of the convicts paroled to World War II service were again convicted of felonies, and added that the average annual cost of supporting prisoners "where they are dead weight" is $1200 a man.

"A prison sentence doesn't wipe out love of country," the newspaper said, citing decorations for bravery awarded to former convicts who fought in World War II.

ORDERS WOMAN INCLUDED IN SUIT AGAINST HODGE

Special to the Post-Dispatch

CHICAGO, Nov. 15—A court order permitting the inclusion of Bonita Lillie, a friend of former Illinois Auditor Orville E. Hodge, as a defendant in the state's suit against Hodge and others to recover stolen money was signed by Circuit Judge Charles S. Dougherty yesterday.

William C. Wines, an assistant state attorney general, said: "We want to see if she got any of the Hodge money." The former auditor is serving a prison term for stealing $1,400,000.

Miss Lillie's bank records were ordered subpenaed.

WOMAN IS COMMANDER OF 79 MEN IN AMVETS POST

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP)—The 79 men in Pontiac Amvets Post 12 are saying "Yessir" to their new commander—a woman.

She is Miss Jacolyn Smith, 48 years old, who said: "I didn't want to take the job at first because I was afraid I'd embarrass the men. But they kept asking me." Miss Smith served in the Navy in World War II.

WRIT TO BAR ANNEXATION VOTE IN FRONTENAC SOUGHT

A suit seeking an injunction to prevent the city of Frontenac from holding an election next Tuesday on a proposal to annex a 100-acre tract of land on Lindbergh boulevard was filed today in circuit court at Clayton by the Doctors Medical Foundation.

The suit alleged that after a similar election in 1951 the foundation obtained an injunction restraining Frontenac from annexing the same territory, which lies south of Clayton road in an unincorporated area. That ruling was never appealed and remains "a full and complete bar" against another election, the petition stated.

The medical foundation owns 98 acres of the site, while the remaining portion is owned by Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children, the petition stated. Today's petition made no reference to a ruling by Circuit Judge Noah Weinstein last June authorizing Frontenac to proceed with steps to annex the area.

MILIUS TO BE CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR OF CLAYTON

Alderman William B. Milius of Clayton, a leader in the drive for a new city charter for that community, announced today he would be a candidate for mayor of Clayton in next April's municipal election.

He said he would run for the office on the pledge that if elected he would work to implement the proposed new charter, which will be submitted to the voters early next year.

Milius is serving his second term as a member of the Clayton Board of Aldermen. In the Korean action, he served with the Third Infantry Division. Earlier this year he received a master's degree in political science at Washington University.

PENTAGON ASKED ABOUT VARIABLE SECRECY POLICY

House Group Cites Inconsistencies and Improper Use of Classification.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (UP) —House investigators asked Pentagon officials today to explain the Defense Department's flip-flop secrecy policies on such matters as flying saucers.

A House government operations subcommittee investigating suppression of public information also wanted to know why Defense Department censors allegedly tried to blue-pencil material in magazine articles that had nothing to do with military secrets.

Joseph Edgerton and Lee Hargus, director and deputy director of the Defense Department's office of security review, were called to testify.

Later, Air Force officials faced questioning on how they alternately unclassified, stamped secret and then unclassified again a report on flying saucers.

Subcommittee Counsel John J. Mitchell disclosed at a subcommittee hearing yesterday what he described as an "absurd" example of secrecy in the armed services.

Book on U.S. Intelligence.

Lt. Col. Robert S. Rigg, a former intelligence officer, wrote a book on the history of United States itelligence, using only public information.

The Army refused to let him publish the book, Mitchell said, even though Rigg offered to eliminate discussions of intelligence work in "World War I, the Mexican war, the Spanish American war, clear back to the Revolution."

"They decided . . . not even (to) permit publication of a book on intelligence operations of Gen. Washington, based on material discovered in 1921," Mitchell said.

"The only possible complaint," he said, was one by an intelligence officer "that the intelligence operations of the Revolution might throw some light on current intelligence practices."

Subcommittee Chairman John E. Moss (Dem.), California, hailed a White House letter made public yesterday as a curb on the blanket use of presidential authority to withhold information from Congress.

The letter, dated Oct. 9 and signed by Gerald D. Morgan, special counsel to the President, stated:

"An employe is not free merely to exercise his own discretion, but in the final analysis information must be withheld only when the President or agency heads acting under the President's authority or instruction determine it is contrary to the public interest to disclose it."

1954 Letter Cited.

Most federal agencies have cited President Eisenhower's famous May 17, 1954, letter in the McCarthy-Army fight as broad authority to withhold information from congressional investigators. In that case, Mr. Eisenhower instructed Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson to withhold from a Senate committee information about executive discussions of the McCarthy-Army matter.

Leonard Niederlehner, deputy general counsel of the Defense Department, insisted at a subcommittee hearing that the Morgan letter did not "diminish" the effect of the 1954 letter.

Morgan's letter was sent to Clark R. Mollenhoff, Washington correspondent for the Des Moines Register and Tribune, as the result of Mollenhoff's questions at a presidential news conference.

BENSON LISTS CORN PRICE PROPS UNDER 2 PLANS

Farmers to Choose Dec. 11 Between $1.36 With Fewer Acres or $1.31 Using More.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP) — Corn growers were debating today whether to vote for a 1957 acreage control program providing price support guarantees at $1.36 a bushel or another plan that would offer $1.31 a bushel on a larger amount of land.

The Agriculture Department, getting ready for a grower referendum on the question Dec. 11, announced yesterday the price support levels that would apply to next year's corn crop under the alternate proposals.

The referendum, first ever held for corn, will involve growers in a designated commercial area which covers 894 counties in 24 states.

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson said that if an acreage allotment program is approved price props will be available in the commercial counties at a national average of $1.36 a bushel. This program would be based on 37,288,889 acres.

If the growers approve an acreage program based on 51,000,000 acres of corn production, Benson said, price supports will be pegged at a national average of $1.31 a bushel in the commercial area.

Unless at least two-thirds of the participating growers vote for the 51,000,000-acre base acreage program, the acreage allotment plan will be in force next year.

Under the base acreage plan, growers would be obligated to take at least 15 per cent of their cropland out of production of corn under the soil bank plan. They would be paid a subsidy at the rate of 90 cents a bushel for the estimated yield of the land withdrawn from use.

If the acreage allotment plan prevails, participation in the soil bank would not be mandatory, but farmers still would be eligible for it.

Benson indicated strongly he favors the base acreage program, but he did not suggest how farmers should vote.

He said there are no plans to provide price supports for corn production next year not in compliance with acreage control programs. This year, noncompliance supports were available at $1.25 a bushel—25 cents less than the full support price.

The $1.31 a bushel proposed for the base acreage program is about 74 per cent of parity. The $1.36 price under the acreage allotment program is about 77 per cent of parity.

FOREIGN WOMEN LIVING IN ISRAEL CAN BE DRAFTED

TEL AVIV, Israel, Nov. 15 (AP)—Women are an integral part of Israel's army.

All unmarried women legally resident in Israel, regardless of citizenship, are subject to conscription for two years at the age of 18. By law, there are no exceptions. In practice, there are a few.

Orthodox Jewish girls, who number only a few hundred, are not called. Neither are American girls legally resident here.

Some other girls avoid being drafted by remaining semi-permanent tourists, not residents. Some eastern-born girls never are called because of youthful marriages.

Girls with the advanced fighting units are few. Generally they play such non-combatant roles as radio operators and drivers. But some have carried rifles or submachine guns and some doubtless got a chance to use them in the recent fighting in Egypt.

Peru's First Shopping Center.

LIMA, Peru, Nov. 15 (UP)—Peru's first shopping center, backed by American interests, is open for business. The center, featuring the country's first supermarket and an American-type soda fountain, was opened yesterday. It is financed by Nelson A. Rockefeller's International Basic Economy Corp. and Peruvian business men.

CHANGES IN EIGHT TOP DIPLOMATIC POSTS EXPECTED

Dulles Reported Upset by Failure of Envoys to Give Tip on Invasion of Egypt.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP) —The Eisenhower Administration is reported planning a major shake-up of ambassadors in at least eight countries in the next few months.

The reshuffle will send a new lineup of American envoys to the four most important western European countries—Britain, France, Italy and West Germany.

In the Asiatic area, new ambassadors are to be appointed to India, the Philippines, Australia and New Zealand. Three of these posts are now vacant.

Nearly all the diplomatic changes have been planned for a long time, especially those involving the Western European posts. They also come at a time when top State Department officials including Secretary Dulles are known to be dissatisfied with the caliber of some diplomatic reports immediately before the outbreak of Middle East hostilities.

Dulles is understood to have been particularly upset that Ambassadors Winthrop Aldrich in London and Douglas Dillon in Paris were unable to break through what is regarded as a deliberate blackout of news by the British and French foreign offices in the week before the invasion of Egypt.

Mrs. Luce to Leave.

Both men were reported definitely resigning their present posts in keeping with previous plans. So is Ambassador Clare Boothe Luce, who has returned from Italy on one of her frequent visit to New York, after recovering from a serious illness. Mrs. Luce agreed to stay on until after last week's elections at White House urging.

Ambassador James Conant, former president of Harvard University, is reported eager to leave his post in West Germany.

The White House is reported seeking top-flight business men who can be counted upon to serve as effective diplomats in the critical weeks ahead.

Career diplomats will not be appointed to the jobs, regardless of their importance, officials said, because salaries and allowances do not cover the expense of running the embassies in the fourcapitals. The posts will continue to be regarded mainly as political plums to be awarded deserving party members and will go to those wealthy enough to stand the expense.

Bunker May Go to India.

Ellsworth Bunker, retiring Red Cross president, is reported under serious consideration for ambassador to India, a spot that has been vacant six months. Former Ambassador John Sherman Cooper left New Delhi last May for consultations, and later quit to make his successful race for Republican senator from Kentucky.

Death removed the ambassadors assigned to Australia and the Philippines.

Former Senator Robert C. Hendrickson of New Jersey, now envoy to New Zealand, is understood to be planning to quit to accept either another diplomatic post or some position in private business.

Resignations from other top diplomats overseas are rolling into the White House in line with the traditional policy of giving a President a free hand to make changes at the beginning of a new term.

A substantial number of these also will be accepted, informants said, as part of the diplomatic reshuffle.

PAIR HELD IN KIDNAPING OF WOMAN IN QUARREL

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Nov. 15 (AP) — Federal kidnaping charges were filed here yesterday against a Howe (Ind.) couple accused of abducting a Sumner (Mich.) woman in a personal quarrel and keeping her bound overnight in their cottage 150 miles south of Sumner.

Robert L. Wolf, 26 years old, and his wife, Leona, 30, were arrested shortly after the victim, Mrs. Alice M. Simon, 36, escaped and ran to a nearby house and sent word to Sheriff Myron Welker at LaGrange.

Harvey Blaylock, Indiana chief for the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said his agents found Mrs. Simon had been abducted from her Michigan home in "some sort of personal quarrel" with the Wolfs.

STUDENTS FIND A REDWOOD TALLER THAN 'TALLEST' ONE

ARCATA, Calif., Nov. 15 (AP) —Humboldt State college students say they have found a new "tallest tree in the world."

Founders tree on U.S. Highway 101 near Dyerville, Calif., long has been regarded as the tallest at 364 feet.

Now students at this school which specializes in forestry conservation report there is a giant redwood in Bull Creek flat which they measured at 368.7. They said today another tree in Bull Creek flat measured 354.

And, they added, they remeasured the founders tree at only 347.7 feet, making it the third tallest. All three trees are near Dyerville in Humboldt county.

LAWYER KNOWN AS RED, EX-AGENT FOR FBI SAYS

Face-to-Face Identification Made by Former Undercover Man at Stormy Hearing.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP) —A former Federal Bureau of Investigation undercover agent testified yesterday he knew Philadelphia attorney A. Harry Levitan as a member of the Communist party.

This face-to-face identification of Levitan was made by Herman Thomas in a stormy session of the House Committee on un-American Activities.

Levitan, who was on the witness stand at the time, swore that he is not now a Communist but refused to say whether he had ever been one. He invoked the Fifth Amendment privilege against possible self-incrimination in declining to answer this and many other questions.

Levitan and his attorney, Joseph Forer of Washington, demanded the right to cross-examine Thomas, but were not allowed to do so.

Levitan said Thomas testified in an immigration hearing in Philadelphia that he didn't know whether Levitan was a Communist.

To To Keep Quiet.

When Forer kept asking for the right to question Thomas, Chairman Francis Walter (Dem.) Pennsylvania, told him "just keep quiet. One of these days you are going to have an opportunity to testify." Forer said that Walter shouldn't "threaten" him when he appeared before the committee as an attorney.

When Committee Counsel Richard Arens asked Levitan whether he now is a member of the Communist party, the witness replied, "I am not."

Levitan refused to say whether he was a Communist a year ago but said, "I was not", when asked whether he was a Communist six months ago or nine months ago.

Walter then asked Levitan, "When did you cease to be a member of the Communist party?" Levitan said he hadn't admitted that he had ever been a member.

It was at this point that Arens asked Thomas to step forward. Thomas said he served as an FBI undercover agent within the Communist party from April 1944 to May 1954.

Asked whether he knew Livitan as a Communist, Thomas replied, "Yes, I did." Arens asked Thomas to point out Levitan. Thomas did.

Tells of Meetings.

Thomas said he attended several "closed meetings" of the Communist party in Philadelphia at which Levitan was present.

Asked whether he ever belonged to any organization which had as its purpose the overthrow of the government by force and violence, Levitan replied: "I am opposed to any organization which has as its purpose the overthrow of the government by force and violence." If those are the objectives of the Communist party, he said, he is "flatly and unalterably opposed" to it.

Three earlier witnesses refused to say whether they had taken active roles in fighting legislation which the committee calls anti-Communist.

Levitan later appeared as counsel for Mrs. Ruth E. Hillsgrove of Watertown, Mass., and Mrs. Frances Gabow of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Hillsgrove invoked the Fifth Amendment in refusing to answer questions on whether she had been an officer of the New England Committee for the Protection of the Foreign Born.

Mrs. Gabow invoked the Fifth Amendment and declined to say if she had participated in a national conference to repeal the McCarran-Walter immigration law.

The committee completed its hearings here. It plans to continue them later at other cities as yet unannounced.

PADUCAH ATOMIC PLANT PICKETED BY ELECTRICIANS

PADUCAH, Ky., Nov. 15 (AP) —An orderly picket line was formed outside the entrance to the Paducah atomic energy plant by some 190 electricians yesterday to protest against limited access to areas inside the plant.

Observers said the action probably will shut down five construction jobs.

O. L. Kerth, business agent of Local 595, AFL-CIO International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, said the men wanted to be able to work on jobs in all areas of the plant.

Kerth added the local also wanted permission for its business agents to have access along with the workers.

Atomic Energy Commission officials commented that security regulations prohibit anyone, workers or otherwise, from going about the plant without specific authorization.

Hall Allen, night editor of the Paducah Sun-Democrat, added that officials have said workers might be permitted on a specific job, but not the business agents.

Progress or Decay?

EAU CLAIRE, Mich. (AP)—This southwestern Michigan town of about 500 persons which for five months had a policeman but on laws to enforce, now has laws—but no policeman.

For two years city officials worked on a new set of ordinances to replace the old set which unexplainably "disappeared."

At the same time they approved the ordinances, the village councilmen fired the town's only full-time policeman, James Alford. They said they couldn't afford his $3600-a-year salary.

Proof by the Pound.

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) —An attorney came into court pulling his youngster's coaster wagon—on it 150 pounds of papers in a suit the attorney filed.

Attorney Roy Seagrave had to have one copy for each of 438 defendants in an action to establish a right of way through a new subdivision near here.

The $64 Question.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Sheriff L. C. Boies is looking for a forger who cashed a $64 check in a Phoenix supermarket. Here is how the man signed the bogus check:

"L. C. Boies, Maricopa county sheriff."

COST OF BIG U.S. ROAD PROGRAM MAY SHOOT UP

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP)—The multi-billion dollar federal aid highway program may prove far more costly than was anticipated, if the cost of construction work and materials continues to rise.

Government officials expressed concern over this prospect yesterday as the Bureau of Public Roads reported the price level for highway construction in the third quarter of 1956 rose to a new high.

The bureau said the increase of 3.8 per cent came on top of a 2.3 per cent hike in the second quarter over the first three months of the year. It was the fifth straight quarter in which highway building costs have moved upward.

The increases, coupled with a boost in late summer of $8.50 per ton for steel and talk by some companies of another possible round of price hikes, pose a threat to the extent of contract awards in coming months, one official said.

It could mean that the bureau and the states would have to refigure the work that could be contracted for in the current fiscal year and in the 1958 fiscal year beginning next July 1, based on availability of funds and amounts apportioned to the states to start the big new program.

It calls for construction of 41,000 miles of interstate highways and around 775,000 miles of local and state roads eligible for federal aid during the next 13 to 15 years.

Latest figures show that 36 states have contracted for 125 projects for improvements to the interstate system. These projects, awarded since the highway act became law in midsummer, involve work on 311 miles of the interstate system at an estimated cost of $157,000,000.

Plans also have been approved and bids asked for 38 additional projects expected to cost about $88,000,000 and be contracted for within the next few weeks.

WOMEN WORKERS ROUT MEN TRYING TO START STRIKE

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (AP)—Fifteen men took a trimming yesterday from 22 women employes of a hand embroidery plant when the men tried to needle them into going on strike.

The men, members of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, invaded the shop and told the women:

The owner, Michael Cohen, protested. He was clipped on the jaw.

With screams, brooms, chairs and other improvised weapons the women went to work on the men. In 15 minutes it was all over. The males retreated in confusion. Several women workers nursed minor bruises.

An I.L.G.W.U. spokesman said the union had been trying to organize the shop, but denied any attempts at intimidation.

It will far surpass your expectations!

CAPE COUNTY HOME AGENT GETS NEW JOB

Extension Staff Changes, College Faculty Additions Listed.

Special to the Post-Dispatch

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 15—Four changes in the Missouri Agricultural Extension Service staff and two appointments to the University of Missouri College of Agriculture faculty were announced yesterday by state and university officials.

Miss Beck

J. W. Burch, Extension Service director, reported the appointment of Miss Glinda Beck, Cape Girardeau county home agent, as home management specialist on the state staff.

Burch also announced that Hugh D. Triplett, Liberty, and Don Thacker, Forsyth, had been named associate county agents and that Miss Ramona Choate, extension home economist in marketing, St. Louis, had resigned effective Nov. 23.

Dean John H. Longwell of the College of Agriculture reported the appointments of Miss Peggy Howard, Kansas City, Mo., and Charles F. Cromwell Jr., Imperial, Calif., to the college faculty.

Miss Beck, formerly of Ellington, has been an extension worker since June 1950, when she joined the staff as county home agent at large. On Oct. 1, 1950, she was named county home agent of Mississippi county and moved to Cape Girardeau county Jan. 1, 1954. She takes over the new job Jan. 1.

She is a graduate of Southeast Missouri State College getting her bachelor's degree in home economics there in 1947. Prior to joining the Extension Service as a home agent, she taught rural schools near Ruble and Reynolds.

Associate Agents Named.

The two new associate county agents added to the staff are both University of Missouri graduates. Triplett, a 1923 agricultural graduate, has been field man for the M. C. Boyle Phosphate Co., Chicago, since 1945. Prior to 1945, he has been a member of the county staff of the Illinois and Kentucky Extension Services.

Triplett joined the staff Nov. 1 as associate county agent at large training in Lafayette county.

Thacker, named associate county agent in Taney county, has been working on that county's new rural development program since Oct. 29. He received his bachelor's degree in agriculture from the university in 1943 and was with the Extension Service for a short time in 1946 as an assistant county agent.

From 1947 to 1952, Thacker was a G.I. instructor at Springfield, from 1952 to 1954, a salesman for Rush Commission Co., Springfield, and from 1954 to the present, he has been a salesman for the Bowman Products Co., Forsyth.

Cromwell is presently an engineer for the Soil Conservation Service in California, Longwell said. The new university faculty member is a graduate of the University of California getting his degree in engineering there in 1950.

As a faculty member, Cromwell will be doing irrigation, drainage and cotton mechanization research work principally in Southeast Missouri, Longwell said. He and his family will live in Sikeston.

Miss Howard joined the university faculty as assistant agricultural editor Nov. 1 while Cromwell's appointment as assistant professor of agricultural engineering will be effective Dec. 1, Jean Longwell said.

As assistant agricultural editor, Miss Howard will be doing home economics information work and working on home economics and agricultural publications for the college and the Extension Service.

She is a 1956 graduate of Kansas State College and holds a bachelor's degree in home economics journalism from that institution. Miss Howard fills the vacancy left by the resignation of Mrs. Rose Florea Holman, former assistant agricultural editor, who resigned Oct. 31.

Circuit-Riding in Trailer.

DURANT, Okla. (AP) — The Rev. H. H. Leake, a Durant Episcopal deacon, is the modern version of a circuit-riding preacher. He has a small house trailer which serves as vicarage as he drives around his area.

BOMBER CRASHES, 21 ON IT SURVIVE

St. Louisan Among Those on B-36 That Burns Near Denver.

DENVER, Nov. 15 (AP)—A B-36 bomber crash-landed and burned in a stubble field north of Denver's municipal airfield today, but all 21 men aboard escaped death. They included a St. Louisan.

The 21 men were taken to the hospital at Lowry Air Force Base, where the plane had taken off about 10 minutes before the crash. One crewman was trapped for nearly an hour in the nose of the plane before he was rescued by firemen from Lowry and Stapleton airfield, the municipal airport.

By the time crash crews reached the scene all those aboard except this one man had scrambled free of the burning wreckage.

The $3,500,000 plane was attached to the Strategic Air Command based at Ellsworth Air Force Base, Rapid City, S.D.

Ellsworth Air Force Base listed Airman Second Class Kenneth E. Morganstern, 21 years old, of St. Louis, as one of the persons on the bomber. He was reported to have suffered head injuries but to be in "good condition."

What's in a Name?

SHIDLER, Okla. (AP)—A jar of home made peach preserves entered in a fair was mistakenly labeled apple butter. It won first prize as apple butter.

U.S. TO INSPECT WORST MISSOURI DROUTH AREAS

Agriculture Department to Send Representative to Rule on Hay, Feed Program.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP) —The Agriculture Department agreed yesterday to inspect Missouri's worst drouth areas to determine whether an emergency hay and feed program should be set up.

A group of state and federal agricultural officials discussed the situation yesterday at a conference in the office of Harry Frazee, special assistant to the director of drouth emergency programs for the Agriculture Department.

Under arrangements made at the meeting, Robert Hall, representing the Department of Agriculture, will meet at Springfield Monday with L. C. Carpenter, Missouri agriculture commissioner and state drouth committee chairman; Murray C. Colbert, chairman of the State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee and other members of the state drouth committee.

Hall and the state committee will begin a county-by-county inspection Monday. After Thanksgiving, another Agriculture Department representative will complete the inspection.

One of those attending today's conference said that on a basis of the county inspections, a decision will be made as to the scope of the Federal Government's hay and grain feed program for the state.

The right to graze soil bank land in 93 Missouri counties so far designated as drouth areas was granted last month. Frazee was told yesterday that program is insufficient.

One of the Missourians said it was agreed that a need for a special farm pond and fall seeding and fertilizing program could be met by using agricultural conservation programs in 1957. He added that applications for 1957 agricultural conservation funds can now be considered by county ASC offices.

U.N. ASSEMBLY SETS DATES FOR RECESS, ADJOURNMENT

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Nov. 15 (UP)—The United Nations General Assembly voted today to take a 12-day recess for Christmas and adjourn its eleventh session by Feb. 15, 1957.

United States Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. told the Assembly before it adopted a Steering Committee recommendation on the recess dates, that "it would be a pity if the impression went out that we are deciding upon a Christmas recess regardless of the situation in the world. That, of course, is not the case."

He specified that the recess will be subject to reconsideration "if emergency situations arise."

RICE-STIX SEEKS TO GIVE UP ALL ITS FACTORIES

Firm Proposes to Sell Facilities, Substitute Wholesale Distribution Operations.

Abandonment of manufacturing facilities by Rice-Stix, Inc., 1000 Washington avenue, and substitution of wholesale distribution operations is contemplated in a reorganization plan to be presented to stockholders at a special meeting Nov. 29, it was learned today.

The plan, which has been approved unanimously by the Board of Directors, would involve sale of the textile goods company's factories to the Reliance Manufacturing Co. under an agreement perpetuating the Rice-Stix trade names and enabling it to purchase products from Reliance at "factory door" c[illegible].

Reliance, which owns a majority interest in Rice-Stix, is controlled by Satie Bros. Inc., New York textile firm.

In preparation for wholesale distributing operations Rice-Stix has acquired Dougherty-Little-Redwine Inc., and C. E. Purcell Co., of Atlanta, Ga., and Grether & Grether Inc., of Los Angeles. A mill and a finishing plant acquired from Satie Bros. Inc. early this year would be resold to Satie at the same price at which they were purchased.

[illegible] for reorganization of the 57-year-old concern was ascribed primarily to necessity of correcting unprofitable operations which have resulted in a loss for the first 10 months of the current fiscal year and "which indicate no possibility of future improvement," it was stated.

Contraction of operations, it was pointed out, would result in a reduction of the company's capital. Directors have authorized purchase by the company of preferred stock at $140 a share for the first preferred stock, $138 for the second preferred, and $69 per share for common. Purchases would be contingent upon the sale of factory assets.

Plants now operated by Rice-Stix in several small communities in Mississippi and Illinois will continue to be operated by the Reliance Manufacturing Co., after purchase of the equipment.

Killed by Propeller.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 15 (AP)—An airman was killed last night when he walked into a turning propeller of a parked four-engine KC-97 aerial tanker at Hunter Air Force Base. He was identified as Frederick H. Krauss of Detroit.

CIVIL COURTS BUILDING CARE PRAISED BY BAR GROUP

Joseph P. Sestric, whose duties as director of public safety include overseeing city buildings, and the city administration have been commended by the executive committee of the Bar Association of St. Louis for good maintenance of the Civil Courts building, it was announced today.

The exterior of the stone building is now being cleaned. Most of the courtrooms were painted in cheerful colors last summer, the floors were refinished and the lobby walls were washed.

INDIA TO GET $126,000,000 LOAN FROM SOVIET UNION

NEW DELHI, Nov. 15 (AP)—India accepted today a long term credit of 600,000,000 rupees ($126,000,000) from the Soviet Union, a government spokesman announced.

The money, repayable within 12 years at 2½ per cent interest, will be used to buy machinery, coal mining equipment and materials for a fertilizer-oil refinery from Russia.

This is the second credit advanced by the Soviet Union, the first being 550,000,000 rupees ($115,500,000) for a steel plant.

CAIRO AIRPORT OPENED AGAIN AFTER TWO-WEEK LAPSE

CAIRO, Nov. 15 (AP)—Cairo's International Airport was opened to limited commercial service today after being closed more than two weeks.

A Swissair liner flew into the airport and out again. Airline officials said the outgoing flight carried 66 passengers bound for Zurich.

Commercial flights in and out of Cairo were barred Oct. 31 because of British-French air attacks. It recently was announced that limited commercial service would be resumed in daylight hours.

GASOLINE TRAIN WRECKED IN ALGERIA; BIG FIRE SET

ALGIERS, Nov. 15 (AP) — Nationalist rebels derailed a gasoline train north of Constantine last night and sent 50,000 gallons up in flames.

By the light of the spreading fire, the train's military convoy opened fire on rebels who were still engaged in ripping up track when the train arrived. One rebel was reported killed.

Eight tank cars were overturned. Gasoline was spilled and the whole area exploded into flames when fumes apparently were ignited from the engine of the train.

SEAMASTER CRASHES LAID TO SAME CAUSE

Navy Says Both Went Into Loops Because of Control Failure.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP)—The Navy said yesterday that last week's crash by its second Seamaster came after the big jet-powered seaplane went into an uncontrollable inside loop.

The Seamaster came apart last Friday over Delaware. All four members of the crew, civilian technicians employed by the Glenn L. Martin Co., bailed out and landed safe.

The first Seamaster was lost last December on a test flight over Chesapeake bay. Studies of the first accident placed major blame for that crash on failure of a control mechanism.

As a result of the control trouble, the first Seamaster went into a partial outside loop and disintegrated.

A Navy statement yesterday said the second Seamaster was flying at an altitude of about 21,000 feet and was moving at a speed of about 540 knots in approximately level flight when it went into a tight inside loop "against the full opposite control by the pilot."

Check instruments which recorded the working of the aircraft showed, the statement said, that the horizontal control surfaces at the tail "did not follow the pilot's control" but moved in the opposite direction in such a way as to cause the plane to loop.

The big seaplane was subjected, during the downward course of the loop, to a force more than nine times that exerted by gravity and went out of control, the Navy said.

The Seamaster fell out of the loop into a downward spiral and broke up at about 8000 feet, the pieces falling on land where they could be recovered and analyzed.

A Navy spokesman said that in spite of the loss of the first two Seamasters, the Navy will continue its active interest in the jet-powered Seaplane program. The Navy has ordered 24 Seamasters from the Martin Co.

GUARD PLACED AROUND PORT SAID RED CONSULATE

PORT SAID, Egypt, Nov. 15 (AP)—The commander of the British-French task force holding Port Said announced yesterday he had put a "protective" guard around the Soviet consulate.

The Soviet diplomat, Anatoli Chikov, had been named earlier by one high-ranking British officer as a "blooming nuisance" who was helping stir up an undercurrent of intimidation among Egyptians here.

Lt. Gen. Sir Hugh Stockwell said a military guard was put around Chikov's consulate "for his own safety."

"It would be an awkward political situation if someone bumped him off," Stockwell added.

He said a similar military guard had been stationed at several other "delicate" embassies, but did not name which.

Because of the undercurrent of intimidation which is making Egyptians afraid of dealing with British, the Italian consulate reported it had taken over a big share of the food distribution job here.

East Germans Warned Gains Can Best Be Made Peacefully, Advice Backed by Soviet Troops

Anxiety of Red Leaders Calmed by Russian Reinforcements and Crushing of Hungarian Revolt Which Is Cited as an 'Example.'

By HARRY GILROY

BERLIN, Nov. 15.

MOST GERMANS on both sides of the Iron Curtain are profoundly depressed by the crushing of the Hungarian revolt. Those connected with the Communist regime in East Germany are, of course, overjoyed. Yet their elation and the sorrow of other Germans are alike tempered by the look of things in Poland.

When the Poles boldly seized a measure of independence there entered in many German minds the possibility of a unified free Germany. The vision gleamed brighter with events in Hungary, then dimmed again. But it is still there, more so than at any time in recent years.

The Soviet army in Germany has long appeared as the iron tip of a spear ready to thrust through Europe. But a Poland determined to control its own military forces might cease to be a reliable shaft for the spear.

Situation Understood.

This strategic situation is well understood by all Germans regardless of political ties. In the long run it could influence Moscow to settle the German question and take its troops home.

In the circumstances officials of the (East) German Democratic Republic are pouring out praise for the "great service to peace" performed by Soviet troops in Hungary. They proclaim the need for Soviet troops to stand on a "peace watch" in East Germany.

Anxiety is betrayed by the frequency and vigor of these utterances. Ten days ago there was no doubt that the regime was in a state of nervous tension. West Berliners who saw East German officials at that time could read worry on their faces. Government and Communist party officials hurried to gatherings of workers and students. A blend of hard threats and soft promises was served to each audience.

"Fighting groups," numbering 100 each, were paraded under supposedly reliable Communist centurions. People's Police appeared with rifles and submachine guns at railroad stations and other places of tactical importance.

'A Good Example.'

This showing of strength by security forces is still going on. But now the leaders of the regime no longer have any reason to doubt that their authority is solid. The Central Committee of the Socialist Unity (Communist) party stated that Hungarian events showed the workers "a good example of how reaction must be answered."

Obviously the regime has had assurances from Moscow. Since reports from Poland have told of Soviet troop movements into Germany it seems likely the assurances are taking substantial form.

Whatever the explanation for Soviet troop moves, the East German regime now seems more sure of its grip. Probably that grip was weakest just after the Hungarians had won their brief freedom. Yet even then no serious public unrest appeared.

Official propaganda was playing heavily last week on the theme that better living conditions were the reward to be expected for working hard and being tractable—that is, following the "road to socialism" as it is usually phrased.

Uprising Date Cited.

The public was assured that the East German regime had avoided the "mistakes" of Poland and Hungary and that many improvements had been made since June 17, 1953. This was a curious date to refer to at this moment but it was certainly put forward after deliberation.

It was on that date that the people of East Germany left their work, massed in the streets, shouted for revolution and were quelled only with help of Soviet forces. In the words of the regime's Communist leader, Walter Ulbricht, it was the time of the "Fascist putsch."

The uprising, no matter how described, did have the effect of bringing concessions from the regime. So Ulbricht and his associate have presented to the people of East Germany in the last fortnight a subtle equation.

It is true that if the East Germans decide things are too bad an uprising will lead to an improved life for the multitude. It is also true that if masses rise as in Hungary the personal safety of leaders of the regime will be in the balance.

Result Would Be Costly.

But Soviet troops will certainly crush any attempted revolt. The participants will in all likelihood pay with their lives. Why not avoid all this trouble, Communist leaders are saying. The leadership, they add, learned its lesson from the 1953 uprising and managed to improve living conditions. They now promise further improvements.

For the present, in the opinion of West German observers, the East German regime will get the acquiescence of the population. A spark could blow things up because there is plenty of explosive discontent lying around. But all responsible Western radio stations and other information media are counseling East Germans to be patient.

So the prospect is that the East German regime will go unchallenged through these days of crisis.

Popular Solution.

Some observers believe that the Soviet Union might settle for an unarmed Germany carefully watched by the Big Four powers. The German people these days are so strongly against militarism that this solution would probably be popular with them. The East German regime would, in the opinion of most observers, be speedily voted out of existence after such a settlement.

It may be that this vision of a Germany reunited in freedom and without bloodshed is simply wishful thinking. Up to the day when the Polish Communists demanded the right to run their own affairs, many observers here thought that all signs showed that the Soviet Union was settling down to a slow process of amalgamating East Germans into the Greater Soviet Empire. Now it is felt that future Soviet conduct will show whether East Germany is to be held at all costs or eventually given a chance to go free. Until this is answered East Germans are waiting.

Outcome in Middle East Rests On Leadership of Eisenhower

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP).

THE KIND of world leadership President Eisenhower asserts now may mean the difference between a new war and none and between the retention of Western influence in the Middle East or the loss of it to Russia.

Two main choices confronted him:

1. He could have taken a strong, individual position for the United States—even outside the United Nations—and even to the extent of warning the Russians of direct American intervention if they send their "volunteers" into Egypt.

2. Or he could—as he did—throw the weight of the United States behind the U.N. without any explicit warnings beyond saying this country would back up the world organization to keep peace in the Middle East by opposing "volunteers in Egypt."

Only time will show whether this choice was the wiser one or whether, since Mr. Eisenhower left obscure how this country would back up the U.N., the Russians may interpret it as weakness and send in their "volunteers."

But if he had chosen No. 1 the Russians might have felt it necessary to chance war by defying him. To appear to back down under his direct warning would mean not only humiliation for them but loss of their influence in the Middle East.

By choosing to work through the U.N. and avoiding provocative statements Mr. Eisenhower achieves at least these three things:

He maintains this country's moral position; he strengthens the U.N. which was badly weakened by the Russian assault on Hungary and the British-French - Israeli invasion of Egypt; and he assures this country of allies if it gets into the fighting as a result of a U.N. demand for military action by its members in the Middle East.

Maybe Mr. Eisenhower's choice is the best way to go about it. Only the Russians know the answer to that. But neither the U.N. nor the Russians nor Americans know at this moment how far Mr. Eisenhower would go to back up the U.N.

The President has a habit of being vague at his news conferences. But his meeting yesterday with reporters—almost at the moment reports from Moscow said the Egyptians were requesting Russian "volunteers"—may have set a new record for obscurity.

He was asked what this country would do if the Russians sent "volunteers" into Egypt. His answer: "I believe . . . it would be the duty of the United Nations, which would include the United States, to oppose such an effort . . ."

But oppose how: by making speeches, merely approving pious resolutions, or by force if necessary? He was asked what form "our opposition" would take. He said: "I don't know exactly what we would do. It would depend upon the circumstances."

"is not by any manner of means limited to resolutions."

FLEESON

Press Meeting Shows Gloom Over Mideast

President and Reporters Are Grim, Little Interest in Politics.

By DORIS FLEESON

WASHINGTON.

THE PRESIDENT'S press conference—his first since Oct. 11—strikingly underscored the unrelieved gloom with which Washington views the foreign prospects.

An unsmiling Mr. Eisenhower strode in precisely at 10:30 a.m. and forthwith launched upon a reminder that the last thing he should or would do was to disturb the delicate negotiations now going on under the direction of U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold.

For 18 minutes he met a barrage of questions dealing with the menace of Soviet and Chinese Communist "volunteers" in Egypt and with the difficulties attendant upon helping Hungary survive the Russian tyranny. The standing-room-only crowd of reporters was as somber as the President.

Question on Texas Politics.

At 12 minutes of 11 a Texas correspondent broke in with a question on Texas politics. The President does not like this reporter's style of cross-examination on any day; he replied with asperity that he would not intervene in the internal affairs of Texas but would, of course, be glad to have a Republican Senator from there.

Some laughter broke the tension and there were other questions about politics. They elicited some significant answers; for example, the President bluntly said the election showed that the voters did not yet believe his party was committed to the "modern Republicanism" he himself advocated. His own great victory Nov. 6 was all but passed over.

Nobody's heart was really in politics. The roof has fallen in and the little group gathered in the Old State Building knew it.

The Soviet Union now stands astride the Middle East oil lifeline of the whole Western alliance. Nobody in the West has a plan for dislodging it. In fact, nobody, including the United Nations, has yet discovered how to establish a cease-fire along the Suez canal that will last.

Reds Achieving Goals.

Compounding the West's frustration is the fact that the Communists are achieving their long-sought Middle East goals while publicly grinding ancient and civilized Hungary under their heels. The Middle East does not seem to heed this portent, nor does Asia, including democratic India.

The President did not in any way indicate what steps he may have in view other than to continue with fullest co-operation with the United Nations. He would, he said, support the U.N. in any action it took to bar the Communist "volunteers" from Egypt. Proposals for new summit meetings of the big powers he pronounced untimely.

The President tried to close on a note of hope. He thought small nations would look at Hungary and think again before allying themselves with Russia.

Soundings about Administration plans in other quarters yielded little more than the same tepid optimism. The White House has advisers who want a stronger course and would risk blunt "so far and no further" warnings to Moscow. There is no sign they are being heeded.

These are sad and extraordinary days for a President just re-elected in a landslide, burying the opposition in all but seven of 48 states.

FRANCE TO ACT TO PULL REST OF TROOPS FROM LIBYA

PARIS, Nov. 15 (AP)—The French Cabinet decided yesterday to press for quick ratification of the treaty with Libya which calls for removal of small numbers of French troops by the end of this month.

The treaty was signed in August 1954 and has since been almost totally put in effect. A handful of French troops remain in the southern Libyan desert.

France will retain certain transit rights and the rights to use certain airstrips in an emergency.

SUMMIT MEETING 'NOT PROFITABLE' NOW, EDEN SAYS

BERN, Switzerland, Nov. 15 (AP)—British Prime Minister Eden told the Swiss government today a summit meeting of the Big Four powers and India "would not be profitable at this time."

The Swiss government last week urged the five powers to meet to seek an end to the danger of a third world war.

President Eisenhower turned down the suggestion, telling Switzerland the United States preferred to act within the United Nations at this time. A similar reply came from France.

In his reply, Eden recalled that he had said Nov. 9 he was willing to "meet anyone, anywhere and at any time" in the interests of world peace. He added, however, that "such a meeting could only be fruitful if all the participants are agreed that the moment is favorable. It seems that this is not yet the case today and that such a meeting would not be profitable at this time."

Denies Yugoslavia Inspired Revolt — Blames Stalinist Policies.

BELGRADE, Nov. 15 (AP)—PRESIDENT JOSIP TITO BROZ declares the decision to use Soviet troops to break up the Hungarian revolt was "a fatal error."

In a speech delivered to a Communist party meeting in Pula four days ago and made public today, Tito denied Yugoslav policies had anything to do with the revolt in Hungary. He said Stalinist policies were to blame.

He said it was the fault of Ernoe Geroe, then Communist party boss, that Soviet troops were used to smash the Hungarian revolt, and added:

"I am deeply persuaded that comrades in the Soviet Union, even those Stalinist elements, will have their horizons cleared and will see it is impossible to go on like that."

Tito said there is a sharp division in the Kremlin, with Stalinist forces holding out against any "democratization" of the East European Communist states.

Struggle in Kremlin.

Tito lifted some of the secrecy surrounding his talks with Soviet Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev and other Kremlin leaders in the Crimea before the uprisings in Poland and Hungary. The talks, he said, brought to light a struggle inside the Kremlin.

"The Soviet leaders," he declared, "had erroneous attitudes and defective views regarding relations toward Poland, Hungary and other countries."

"The Yugoslav leaders did not consider this attitude tragic, because they perceived this was not the attitude of the entire leadership, but only of one part, which had forced its attitude on the other part to a certain degree."

Looking to the future, Tito added:

"It is still possible for those elements in the leadership of the Soviet Union to triumph by evolution who are for a stronger and quicker development toward democratization, for abandoning of all Stalinist methods and for the creation of new relations between the socialist states, and that the development in this direction will also proceed in foreign policy.

"Judging by certain signs and conversations, it is evident that

Israel Now Looks on Russia As Chief Threat in Middle East

By RICHARD DUDMAN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

TEL AVIV, Nov. 15.

RUSSIA now is the danger in the Middle East, Maj. Gen. Moshe Dayan, Chief of Staff of the Israeli defense forces, said last night.

In a news conference discussing the Sinai campaign, Dayan said Syria now has substantial numbers of Soviet T-34 tanks and other Communist bloc equipment. The same is true possibly in Jordan, he said.

"Whether Russian volunteers might come, I don't know," he said.

As for a new Arab threat from the East, he noted that Syria and Iraq both had sent forces into Jordan but added that he did not know "whether they mean business."

Hoped for Help.

The chief of staff implied strongly that Israel hoped for the British-French attack on the Suez canal when it was planning the Sinai campaign. After the first 48 hours, the British-French attack began and blocked Egyptian air support of its forces in the desert, and probably shortened the Israeli campaign and reduced Israeli casualties.

Dayan was asked whether he expected British-French intervention when Israel began its attack Oct. 29.

"Supposing I would have known, would I have said 'yes' now?" he parried.

"We have to keep appreciating all the time what is happening elsewhere in the world," he added.

"You couldn't expect anyone to keep from noticing that British and French forces were sitting on Cyprus and trying to figure out what they would do. We were not sitting here with our eyes shut."

Best Line of Defense.

Asked to say as a military man what would be Israel's best line of defence against Egypt, Dayan replied unhesitatingly "where we keep our line now." Under world pressure, however, Israel has agreed to withdraw from the Sinai peninsula.

He declined to say to what extent Israel had mobilized its reserves before the invasion started.

"I don't want to answer that," he said. "That perhaps is the only thing the Egyptians don't know. Should we tell them?"

The entire campaign lasted seven days, Dayan said—one day less than anticipated in the north and exactly on time in the south. Asked whether Israel would have succeeded without the British and French action, he replied:

"It wouldn't be very easy to say yes. I think we could. Certainly we could not have done so with as few casualties as we had. But we acted always on the assumption that Syria and Jordan might come in. That required us to keep forces on that front too.

"Without the British and French we would have had to throw in more, take more time and suffer more casualties, but on the whole I think we could have done it."

NUTTING RESIGNS COMMONS SEAT IN ROW WITH EDEN

The New York Herald Tribune Post Dispatch Special Radio

LONDON, Nov. 15—Anthony Nutting, who resigned 10 days ago as the No. 2 man in the British foreign office in protest against the government's decision to attack Egypt, announced last night that he will vacate his seat in the House of Commons.

Nutting, long was regarded as a protege of Prime Minister Eden.

Nutting said he had received many sympathetic messages from Conservatives in his constituency of Melton, in Leicestershire, but he said some or all of the party officers in Melton would have resigned if he remained as Melton's M. P.

"I have decided to resign my seat and to make way for a Conservative candidate who would be able, if and when elected, to support without reservation the policies of the present government," he said.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The U.N.'s Duty to Israel

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In the U.N. lies the world's hope for peace. Mr. Eisenhower's present course of referring the current crises to the U.N. instead of to another "summit conference" is altogether commendable.

Nevertheless, as Walter Lippmann has said, the President's "formula as a peacemaker has been to stop the shooting, and then, without working out a settlement, to have both sides accept the status quo."

Mr. Lippmann also noted that Mr. Lodge introduced a resolution which, had it been adopted, "would have guaranteed the Egyptians behind their frontier, but not the Israelis behind theirs."

Will the U.N. continue to overlook what Israel's Ambassador Eban has so often called to its attention—the six years' violation of the armistice agreement on the part of Egypt in (a) denial by Egypt of use of the Suez canal, (b) illegal blockade of the Gulf of Aqaba, (c) nearly 2000 instances of armed robbery, incursions into Israeli territory in which 364 Israelis were wounded and 101 killed?

Let us admit retaliations, especially the present one designed to eliminate that inevitable source of trouble, the Gaza strip, jammed with refugees kept there to "maintain the war status."

Israel has seen at least $300,000,000 worth of heavy arms acquired by Egypt from Russia. Israel knows what the U.N. apparently does not—that its crazy-quilt boundary-line assigned by the U.N. itself in the armistice of 1948, has always been, and (unless "ironed out") will always be indefensible, inviting further incursions by the implacable Arab group.

The time has come for the Arab group to liberate their own "refugees"—to allow them to do productive work, preferably in Iraq, where they are actually needed. The time has come to eliminate the festering "Gaza strip," and to restore Israel's rights in the Suez canal and in the Gulf of Aqaba.

Actually, Israel would be doing the cause of peace a disservice if she should give up the Gaza strip. Israel stands ready to share water supplies with its neighbors, to help raise their standard of living—in short, to help the processes of democratization.

These processes Dictator Nasser necessarily opposes. Will the U.N. support democracy and peace, or continued feudalism and warfare?

P.J.W.

On Election Night

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A shocking statement is credited to President Eisenhower by The New York Times News Service. As Mr. Stevenson came on television to concede, the President is quoted as saying:

"I haven't listened to that fellow yet, and I'm not going to now"—and stalked from the room.

This admission by the President almost proves that the G.O.P. nominated and elected a candidate who knew nothing about the campaign issues. ASTONISHED.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The Times report was undoubtedly artistic, but apocryphal. Some adolescent and juvenile Democrats may be led to think this somehow confirms the ugly rumors that our President doesn't like to be kept informed: to learn, for example, that "that fellow" bears the name Adlai Stevenson, a former governor of Illinois, who not only can write his own message, but can write a good one.

Let us trust that some alert member of "The Team" will promptly deny (over the President's signature, of course) that our President ever behaved so discourteously or with such petulance.

WALKER M. STEWART.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

"I haven't listened to that fellow yet,
And I'm not going to now!—" the Victor cried.
Just how one-sided did that campaign get?—
I ask, and in defeat my time I bide.'

GLORIA VICTIS.

On the Other Side

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Perhaps R.L.K. and Jo Day Hulett did not remember Mr. Stevenson's insidious remarks election eve—otherwise they would know why President Eisenhower referred to Adlai as "that fellow." Being the gentleman that he is, the President deferred sinking as low as his ex-opponent and calling him anything appropriate.

Muscular Dystrophy Cases

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

We would not like to mislead the public with false statistics which appeared by error in your editorial of Nov. 12. There are an estimated 200,000 victims of muscular dystrophy in the United States but the disease does not take that number of lives each year. Children with dystrophy often linger on into early adulthood after being confined first to a wheelchair and then to bed where they die usually of a respiratory infection. Thus far we do not actually know how many muscular dystrophy victims die each year because once parents discover their child has a disease that cannot be helped by modern medicine they sometimes give up medical care altogether. Let's Have All the Facts

So far there is only one good piece of news coming out of the involvement of the Union Electric Co. with ex-Illinois State Auditor Orville E. Hodge. This is the announcement that the Securities and Exchange Commission will begin immediately a full investigation of the utility's reported relationship with the faithless former official who now is the most celebrated convict at Menard prison.

The big question currently is: How much did the officialdom of Union Electric know about its employment of Hodge, if that is what it was?

Certainly there is a royal confusion about it all now. J. Roy Browning, Chicago lawyer, is reported by Albert E. Jenner Jr., counsel for the Illinois State Budgetary Commission, as saying that both Browning and Hodge were hired for a $35,000 fee by the utility. The purpose, according to Browning, was to have them lobby for a bill which Union Electric desired to have passed by the Illinois Legislature in 1955 after rejection in 1953.

The president of Union Electric, J. Wesley McAfee, tells the Post-Dispatch that he is convinced that the company did not employ Hodge to lobby for it. The company's general counsel, who is also a vice president, John A. Woodbridge, says that he can not believe that Union Electric ever hired Hodge to work for its bill.

* * *

But the fact remains that the representatives of the utility met in Springfield with Browning—in the office of the State Auditor, then Orville E. Hodge. They might have met in any number of places, including hotel rooms, but the place arranged was the office of the man who is now reported to have been hired as a lobbyist.

The fact also remains that the four checks for the $35,000 fee were not mailed to Browning, as would seem normal, but were delivered by hand; and Browning says he saw only one of them, which he promptly indorsed over to Hodge.

The fact further remains that the proceeds of the checks eventually turned up in Hodge's "brown envelope" account.

The legislation at issue was, as we have pointed out before, not of transcending importance. It permitted Union Electric to do business in Illinois without incorporating an affiliate in the state. It also saved an annual franchise fee of $36,000.

* * *

Certainly a utility is entitled to seek reasonable legislation affecting its interests, but not at the price of involving itself with a state official having no legislative function.

This is not to say that anyone at Union Electric knew all or even a substantial part of the Hodge affairs. Yet it ought to have been a sign to somebody when the meeting was held in his office. For there was no good reason why such a meeting—unless Hodge were being hired as lobbyist—should be held in his office. Surely the Union Electric officials would not enter the office of an elected Missouri official to talk about plans to pass a utility bill through the Missouri Legislature.

Sixteen years ago the company and three of its officials were convicted of federal violations in connection with kickbacks and slush funds for political payoffs. Everyone hoped that after an experience such as that Union Electric would never again get into trouble with politicians. This history makes it all the more necessary that every pertinent fact about the lobbying efforts in Illinois be made public for a full and fair appraisal.

New Chief Wise Man

Dr. Arthur F. Burns, resigning as chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, can consider his term a success. As one of the three wise men who are supposed to keep the President alerted to the economic weather, Dr. Burns was in the happy position of regal messenger who is able to deliver good news.

During most of his incumbency, Dr. Burns could say that the national economy was getting steadily bigger and better, and most of the time he was right. Furthermore, during the 1954 recession he advised against a massive assault on unemployment, and in favor of less strenuous fiscal and credit measures. Again he was right. The economy pulled out of the slump, and the economic advisers' job ever since has been the relatively easy one of identifying new horizons of prosperity as they hove into view.

Dr. Burns's successor as chairman is Dr. Raymond G. Saulnier, a member of the Council since April 1953, and the latter's seat will be taken by Dr. Paul W. McCracken of the University of Michigan. The best wish we can think of for the new chairman is that he may have the same situation to deal with as his predecessor. Some day, probably, a chairman of the Council is going to have to report bad news instead of good, and give advice which is not politically pleasant or economically convenient for his chief to take. Advisers who escape this fate may expect a long official life and a happy one.

Boomerang From Bandung

What amounts almost to a slap in the face for the Kremlin has been administered by the prime ministers of India, Burma, Indonesia and Ceylon. If the Kremlin can find any way to discount the joint communique calling for speedy withdrawal of Soviet forces in Hungary it will indeed be a neat feat in diplomacy and in propaganda.

As matters now stand, the prime ministers, meeting at New Delhi, have told the Kremlin in their communique that Soviet Russia is guilty of serious crimes against helpless Hungary. There can be no other meaning derived from their statement that they "regret that Soviet forces, which had been withdrawn in accordance with the policy laid down by the Soviet Government on Oct. 30, were reintroduced into Budapest a few days later. The prime ministers consider it the inalienable right of every country to shape for itself its own destiny, free from all external pressures. They are of the opinion that the Soviet forces should be withdrawn speedily."

So speak the top representatives of 475,000,000 Asians. And their statement should be a source of no little worry to the Kremlin. Worst of all, for Soviet Russia, this rebuff is a result of a Kremlin statement which applied to Soviet satellites in Europe a somewhat modified version of the five principles of peaceful co-existence which were adopted at the Bandung Conference. It is more than likely that their issuance of this statement had simply been intended to further their own cause with the Asian nations.

The Bandung principles called for mutual recognition of full equality, for territorial integrity, for state independence, for sovereignty, for non-interference in the domestic affairs of one another. Now the Kremlin has violated every one of those principles in Hungary. The violations have been underlined with the latest dispatches telling of captured Hungarian patriots being shipped out of their native land—perhaps for Siberia—in locked rail coaches.

How can the Kremlin explain this duplicity to these four great Asian nations whose representatives have now confronted the Soviet Russian leaders with their own bloody refutation of the Bandung principles which they so glibly professed?

Time to Warn Nasser

What will the United States do if the Soviet Union carries out its threat to send "volunteers" to Egypt?

President Eisenhower left the question unanswered at his news conference Wednesday. He said we would "oppose" such action, and "oppose" it within the United Nations. But as to whether our opposition would take the form of supporting a resolution of disapproval, or some stronger step, he did not make clear.

The President is reported as "somewhat grimly" noting that there had been one case in which the U.N. went beyond the passing of a resolution—apparently a reference to Korea. However, in Korea the U.N. approved collective military action to resist an overt armed attack. Applying the same principle to the Middle East would mean U.N.-approved military action on Egypt's side—which happens to be the same side the Russian "volunteers" are threatening to take.

There is another important difference. In the case of Korea, the U.N. approved collective defense because the United States stood ready to fight in the U.N.'s name. Are we now ready to use American armed power in Egypt to counter the weight of any Soviet "volunteers"? That would put us in the struggle at the side of Britain, France and Israel, whose original attack we strongly condemned. It would enlarge a conflict which we have rightly been trying to contain and diminish.

So when the President speaks of "opposing" Soviet volunteers within the U.N., it is difficult to see what, beyond verbal protests, the U.N. can do that it is not already doing. Now that U.N. patrols and Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold are actually landing in Egypt, it can still be hoped that, with great good luck, the United States may not have to face the awful dilemma of either acquiescing in a Soviet occupation or resisting it with armed power.

Egyptian sources are now denying that they have actually invited Soviet intervention. This is excellent news if true, and it emphasizes the fact that Cairo, not Moscow, is the point to exert leverage.

No volunteers from Russia or anywhere else can enter Egypt unless President Nasser lets them in. President Eisenhower brought the strongest of pressure upon Britain and France to accept a cease-fire before they had accomplished their objectives. Why could he not exert equally powerful persuasion upon Nasser to exclude outsiders? The President compelled Israel to reverse its decision against evacuating the Sinai peninsula. Why could he not be equally tough with Nasser?

When Cool Heads Didn't Prevail

On the basis of a report made by two deputies of the Illinois Fire Marshal's office it is apparent that either one of two precautionary steps would have saved the lives of nine persons who died following a liquefied gas fire and explosion at Herrin on Oct. 18.

A broken strainer fitting on a tank truck permitted the gas to leak, the report said, but the closing of either one of two hand valves would have stopped the flow. Here was where the first opportunity was missed. The second opportunity was missed when no concerted effort was made to evacuate the people from the five houses in the danger area.

The Fire Marshal's report on the Herrin tragedy should be required reading at least for all handlers of liquefied gases for domestic use and for fire and police departments in areas where the gas is used. It is a tragic lesson in what can happen when an emergency suddenly arises and no one is prepared to cope with it.

A Fallout of Atomic Opinion

One hundred and thirty scientists and School of Medicine faculty members at Washington University have now done what many Americans have been thinking since Nov. 6 must surely be done. They have asserted the continuing and overriding importance of determining whether humankind stands in danger or on the verge of danger from the poisonous fallout of atomic and hydrogen bombs. They suggest public hearings before the Senate-House Joint Committee on Atomic Energy.

They express themselves as "increasingly disturbed," and, declaring the matter "of immediate importance," they "strongly urge" action "at the earliest possible date." Among those who associate themselves with these sentiments are the Nobel prize winners Dr. Carl F. Cori and Dr. Gerty Cori.

The Joint Committee will, we confidently believe, hear this knowledgeable appeal with receptive minds.

Senator Clinton P. Anderson of New Mexico, chairman of the joint committee, has shown himself warmly concerned with the human and humane aspects of the atom.

Among his associates on the committee, Representative Melvin Price of East St. Louis, Senator Albert Gore of Tennessee and Representative Chet Holifield of California are exceptionally well-informed and concerned about the humanizing of atomic energy, particularly with respect to electric power, for which they have done yeoman work.

Other scientists elsewhere should, we think, join the Washington University petitioners in the call for a thorough public airing of this thorny and momentous issue.

Teachers as Clubmen

Teachers in Birmingham, England, are getting a break which might well be adaptable to America. A teachers' club has been set up in two Regency houses amidst seven acres of grounds and gardens. It was partly inspired by the shortage of teachers, intended to encourage teachers to stay in Birmingham. But it has fulfilled many other functions, and so well that the Manchester Guardian calls it the best idea any education authority has yet had.

The club has a lecture hall, a library, a music room, and a bar said to be the best in Birmingham. Here teachers may not only combat loneliness, as was the initial purpose of the club, but also pursue self-improvement, and feel some of the comradeship and prestige which their profession should rightly afford. Such an imaginative step could go a long way toward taking the dullness out of education for teacher and student alike. And what is convincing indeed—the 200-member club is self-supporting!

THIN DISGUISE

Open Door for All Refugees

The Mirror of Public Opinion

President Eisenhower's special order for admittance of 5000 Hungarian refugees shows need for fulfilling America's obligation to all victims of oppression; Administration's Refugee Relief Act did not meet promise, was not extended.

From The Louisville Times

President Eisenhower's order that "extraordinary measures" be taken so this country can admit 5000 Hungarian refugees from Communist brutality dramatizes an older and bigger problem: America's obligation not just to these recent victims but to other refugees to whom we have never fulfilled our promise of hope.

The reason Mr. Eisenhower had to ask for "extraordinary measures" in this case is the fact that the Refugee Relief Act of 1953, under which the Hungarians are to be allowed to enter this country, has so many rigid restrictions that under normal circumstances it might take a year or more to go through all the red tape. As it is, the refugee law will have to be bent, if not broken, if the Hungarians are to be given refuge in this country.

American sympathies, of course, go out freely to the Hungarians, who fought against overwhelming odds for freedom. We cannot imagine that there will be any protest against the swift action the President seeks. But what of thousands of other refugees, many of them equally homeless and equally hopeless, who have wanted to make a new start in this new world? We hope that the plight of the Hungarians will awaken in this country a desire to help those others. The 1953 Refugee Act was a grudging acknowledgment of our obligation to assist—as other nations have assisted—the refugees from the old and cold wars.

It authorized admission of 209,000 refugees. But it was hedged with so many restrictions that the act never fulfilled its promise. Refugees had to have American sponsors. They had to have assurance of housing and jobs that did not displace Americans. Most difficult of all were various regulations in the name of national security.

The best evidence of the fact that the act held out false hopes to the refugees lies in the relatively small number of admissions. Late in September, after Congress had refused either to extend the act or ease its restrictions, the State Department estimated that by Dec. 31, when the act expires, some 35,000 to 40,000 of the 209,000 visas authorized by the law would not have been used.

That doesn't mean there were not enough applicants. It means that the applicants didn't have enough time or documents or assurances to meet the law's requirements.

We hope that the surge of national sympathy which has gone out to the Hungarians will be translated in extension and relaxation of the Refugee Act by the next Congress.

'We Believe in the Passenger Train'

A Statement by Trains, the Magazine of Railroading

Trains believes that the railroad passenger train, intelligently operated and merchandised, is a good thing for America. The train offers a unique medium of travel, combining as it does the essentials of safety and dependability with persuasions which no other form of overland transport can duplicate. The train offers steady, solid riding comfort . . . space to roam about . . . the privacy of room sleeping accommodations . . . dining service of restaurant standards . . . clublike lounges . . . and an eye-level look at the land.

Today the future of the passenger train is in jeopardy. It has been saddled with the deficits of an unrealistic accounting interpretation, and it has suffered from the indifference of management, labor and Government. Forecasts of its demise share press headlines today with proposals for ridiculously high fare increases. Pointless platitudes fail to cover the basic negativism of much of the industry regarding passenger trains. The public increasingly regards itself as unwanted.

We believe that the passenger train is in a state of crisis—and that those who believe in it, both in and out of the industry, must stand up and be counted.

Trains therefore declares itself for the passenger train. We believe that, with America on the go as never before, there is more growth potential in passenger traffic than in any other area of railroading. We believe that passenger traffic which meets its own direct costs and contributes to general overhead is financially healthy for the industry. We believe in the ability of the passenger-carrying railroads to unite in selling the train as a way of travel and to thereby invade the vast automotive intercity market as well as hold their own against other common carriers. We believe that the reserve passenger capacity of the railroads is essential to national security. We believe that good passenger service is a public relations' asset—the industry's only point of contact with large and influential areas of the public which the railroads appeal to for fair play.

Trains will continue to report, impartially and accurately, all news and opinion on the railroad passenger problem. This objectivity, however, does not preclude a firm stand on an issue of national concern. We simply could not believe in railroading at large without also having faith in the industry's ability to operate a profitable passenger service. Thus, we invite all of like faith to consider this magazine their common meeting ground.

Jet Plane Downs Itself

From The Providence Evening Bulletin

The news story about the airplane that shot itself down brings to mind the tale of the fabulous ball player. This fellow could run so fast, so the tale goes, that he could belt out a long fly, drop the bat, pick up his glove, race out to outfield and catch the fly ball.

That story was always good for a laugh. Just as fanciful was the thought that an airplane could fly so fast that it could overtake and collide with a bullet fired from its own gun. Fanciful?

As the Navy reconstructs the incident, it went something like this. Mr. Attridge's airplane was in a shallow dive, moving at about 880 miles an hour. The pilot fired a burst from the plane's 20 mm. cannon. The shells started out with an initial speed equal to the plane's speed, 880 m.p.h. plus their own velocity of about 1000 m.p.h.

The shells thus were moving at about 1880 m.p.h. and rapidly outdistancing the plane. But wind resistance quickly slowed down the speed of the shells, while Attridge's plane increased its speed in the dive.

The Navy says the odds against such an accident are about a million to one. Maybe so. But so many things are commonplace today which seemed fantastic and impossible only yesterday, we are inclined to go along with Mr. Attridge, who thinks the accident could be duplicated any time "at the speeds we are flying today."

For him and for all the other pilots of supersonic fighters who now face this new hazard, we pass on the advice of a fellow who had a string of successes as a bar fighter. Asked how he managed to inflict so much damage without catching a mark himself, he replied: "It's easy, chum. Just line up the bum and slug him. Then scram."

Between Book Ends

Fiction Can't Equal Fact

THE FOREIGN MINISTER, by Leo Lania. (Houghton Mifflin, 214 pgs., $3.50.)

The Republic the Foreign Minister serves is unnamed, but the reader will quickly recognize it as Czechoslovakia in 1947. Taking the facts of the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia, Mr. Lania has written a novel about the last rush of events in the personal life of the Foreign Minister before he was pushed out the window in Prague, probably in the way it happened to Jan Masaryk.

Though all the names are changed (President Benes becomes President Musar, but still weakly yields to the Communist factions in the coalition government), Author Lania is scrupulously accurate in his fictional account, even to such statistical details as May, 1946 election returns when the Communists polled only 38% of the vote.

Leo Lania

The Foreign Minister, the fictional one that is, has an inchoate romance with an American woman he met while at a U.N. Assembly at Lake Success, but it serves only to tighten his personal situation, the main dramatic impact being the struggle with the Communist politicians.

Mr. Lania writes that his novel "is not intended to portray any actual person . . . even though the main character may remind the reader of a historic figure," and that his purpose is to "make visible behind the reality of historical events and through the medium of artistic creation the deeper significance of an epoch." This he does, but the actual political [illegible] in post-war Czechoslovakia were so fiction-like anyway it might have been an even more forceful portrait of that epoch if he had been more reportorial in his approach, naming more people, places, and dates.

Readers who may not recall that the outward events Mr. Lania has chosen for his framework really did happen may find this simply another novel of political tension, but it is something more than that. JACK ALDRIDGE.

British Trade Unionism

TRADE UNION GOVERNMENT AND ADMINISTRATION IN GREAT BRITAIN, by B. C. Roberts. (Harvard, 370 pgs., $6.)

Whatever their faults, British trade unions are distinctly British, concludes the reader of this comprehensive manual about the trade union practices of our trans-Atlantic cousins. Unlike continental labor groups, the British unionists are not subdivided along religious and ideological lines. Unlike some American counterparts, they are not rife with petty racketeers. Careerism is definitely discouraged, albeit by poor union working conditions. British unionists are as interested as employers in keeping the government from legislating in labor relations.

Ben Roberts, a lecturer at the London School of Economics, has presented much detailed information about practices of different unions making up the Trades Union Congress, Britain's single central labor organization.

The leaders of the so-called "Old Gray Horse" face real difficulties when private and public objectives cannot be reconciled, Roberts writes. Union leaders, because of their union's affiliations with the British Labor party, are automatically political figures.

The news from Suez has obscured, but not removed, the grave decision facing any British Government from the pressure of wage claims in a full-employment economy that cannot afford increased inflation. Roberts's book, despite its bulk, does not indicate what will happen in this crucial test of progressive unionism, for it does not probe thoroughly the relationship of trade unions with the Labor party and the government. Within the field of intra-union and inter-union affairs, Roberts appears to have covered all that's worth covering. RICHARD ROSE.

WASHINGTON.

IT WAS ONLY a few days ago that our people watched so hopefully as the people of Hungary rose against their Soviet masters.

Now we are getting the story of the ruthless cruelty with which Soviet tanks and machine-gunners moved in to crush that self-liberation movement. In our newspapers and over the radio and television comes the ghastly saga of once-lovely Budapest. We have a feeling of frustration and helplessness. But now comes evidence that the spirit of freedom can survive the behemoth of armed might and can find other means of expressing itself and exerting its power, even though the Hungarian people were seemingly overcome and unable to fight back.

Thoreau

Passive Resistance.

They are fighting back still—through passive resistance in the form of a mass refusal to work, a general strike. That confounds the Soviet commissars as it paralyzes the economic system which they supervise, for they can do nothing about it.

Frustrated as we feel about helping Hungary, we can yet take some comfort in the knowledge that the idea of passive resistance can be traced back to one of our own, one who died nearly a century ago. Thus we can feel some kinship with Hungary through this link; and we can actually aid her passive resistance by sustaining her people with food and other necessities.

One Night in Jail.

The model for passive resistance on a grand scale closest to our times was fashioned in India by Mahatma Gandhi. Thus India eventually won her independence as a nation—not by arms, not by bloodshed, but by the meekness of folded hands. It reminded us of a saying by another teacher long, long ago: "The meek shall inherit the earth."

Whence came Mahatma Gandhi's idea?

He revealed that himself. It came from his reading as a young man when he was in South Africa.

What was he reading?

One of our great writers—one of the greatest, in the opinion of some—who died in 1862. He was Henry David Thoreau, the naturalist and philosopher in the New England circle that revolved about Ralph Waldo Emerson. His own passive resistance was of only short duration—one night in Concord jail for refusing to pay a poll tax to a government that permitted Negro slavery then existing in the South.

Behind Iron Curtain.

Thoreau was an abolitionist and died midway of the Civil War that ended slavery in our nation. Though his act of protest was a brief drama, out of his experience came the essay, "Civil Disobedience," which was read many years later by Mahatma Gandhi and influenced the formulation of his own philosophy and the passive resistance movement.

Thoreau's arrest and his overnight stay in jail occurred early in his 18 months' residence in his cabin at the edge of Walden pond from which came his masterpiece, "Walden."

So, from New England to South Africa to India did the Thoreau idea travel, as ideas do travel, and now to Hungary of today.

Perhaps, in one form or another, it may travel elsewhere behind the Iron Curtain to other nations where people writhe under Soviet rule and, though not strong enough for military revolt, can follow the Hungarian example of passive resistance.

From Our Abundance.

People out of work have to find some way to eat. The Hungarians seem to be pooling and sharing what food resources they have. This is where people outside, including ourselves, might help.

We can take our cue from President Eisenhower who, in his Thanksgiving proclamation, said the abundance of our soil and the production of our factories enables us "to share our bounty with less fortunate ones in other lands." He also said that our foundations of freedom give "hope to fettered people that they may walk as free men unafraid."

In concluding, he reminded us that we can give a good account of our stewardship of our many blessings by giving aid "to the ill, the destitute, and the oppressed in foreign lands."

ANNUAL ART FAIR AT PEOPLE'S CENTER

Paintings, sculptures, art objects and craftwork by 68 St. Louis area artists were put on display this week in the annual Art Fair of People's Art Center, 3657 Grandel square. Three downstairs rooms and the main hallway of the former residence occupied by the Center have been largely redecorated for the display, where works by professional artists, art teachers and part-time painters and craftsmen are impartially arrayed.

A prominent part of the display is the decor itself, the work of George Anselevicius, a practicing architect and faculty member of the Washington University School of Architecture. In what used to be the front parlor, the living room and dining room of the Victorian-style building, Anselevicius created an effect of spaciousness that belies the cramped quarters. He lowered the 14-foot ceilings visually by suspending screens of stretched string overhead. He also used the suspension idea in a craft display on a large fiber panel that hangs at table height in the center room.

Several prize-winning painters have works in the fair. William Quinn, who won the purchase prize at the current St. Louis Artists' Guild show, is represented by "Devotee," an enamel, and "Frog Metamorphosed," an aquatint, both abstractions.

Fred Conway has an untitled oil and wax abstract composition; Miriam McKinnie has two strongly expressionist canvases, "Carnival" and "Fiesta"; and Siegfried Reinhardt, two works, "Captive" and "Bone Forms."

Among paintings that have attracted attention are four small watercolors by John A. Yeates, former painting instructor at the Center. Yeates paints on a paper that he treats chemically to produce a heavily creased effect, like old parchment. Irregularities in the paper's texture are then incorporated in his design elements.

Dr. G. N. Lassar, a physician who has studied sculpture at the Center in his spare time, has a plaster figure called "Nude Torso" in the show. His wife, Marion Lassar, also a Center-trained sculptor, has one titled "Claudia." Elizabeth Phelan, whose sculptures are widely known, entered a red sandstone composition, "Big Bird." A terra cotta work by Robert Walker is called "Young Acrobat."

Craft exhibits include a number of stoles woven by Evelyn Anselevicius, wife of the architect and formerly a professional fabrics designer. Other stoles on display were woven by Maiel Obata.

Serving as hostesses and saleswomen at the fair are members of various women's organizations, who are on hand during daytime and evening hours. Proceeds from sales of items on display are divided between artists and the Center, a United Fund agency. The Center's share will go into a fund it is slowly accumulating for a new building it hopes to construct on the same site. The fair will run through Dec. 16.

GEORG SOLTI TO BE GUEST CONDUCTOR

Will Lead Symphony in Concerts Tomorrow, Saturday and Next Week.

Georg Solti, a European conductor who made his debut with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra last season, will be guest conductor in its concerts at 2 p.m. tomorrow and 8:40 p.m. Saturday and for another pair next weekend, at the Kiel Auditorium Opera House.

He is the third of five guest conductors to appear with the Symphony this season.

The program this week will include Mozart's C Major "Jupiter" symphony, a suite from the Stravinsky ballet "Petrouchka" and the Brahms Symphony No. 1.

A pre-symphony lecture will be given by Frank Menendez at 1:15 p.m. tomorrow in the Opera House, the third in a series sponsored by the Women's Association of the Orchestra.

Solti is permanent conductor of the opera company and symphony of Frankfurt, Germany, and is a guest conductor of the Lyric Opera Company of Chicago this season. He has made guest appearances with leading orchestras in this country for the last three seasons.

He was born in Budapest, and was conductor of the Hungarian State Opera until 1939. He spent the years of World War II in Switzerland as a pianist.

Tickets may be purchased at the Auditorium and at the Aeolian box offices, 1004 Olive street and 7754 Forsyth boulevard, Clayton, at $1 to $4.40.

White House Ex-Gardener Dies.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP)—Edward C. Sullivan, White House gardener from 1913 to 1952, died Tuesday night. He was 67 years old. His last task before retirement was to supervise the replanting of the rose garden during the White House renovation in 1952.

PHILHARMONIC OPENS SEASON TONIGHT

Pianist Russ David to Be Soloist in Gershwin Concerto in F.

The ninety-seventh season of the St. Louis Philharmonic Orchestra will open tonight at 8:30 o'clock with a concert in Kiel Auditorium Opera House. Russell Gerhart will conduct.

Russ David, pianist, will be soloist with the orchestra. He will be featured in a performance of George Gershwin's Concerto in F.

The program also will include Berlioz's Roman Carnival Overture, Beethoven's Symphony No. 7 in A Major and "Londonderry Air" as arranged by Morton Gould.

A performer and composer, David is master of ceremonies on 10 weekly programs on Post-Dispatch radio and television stations KSD and KSD-TV.

FUNERAL WILL BE SATURDAY FOR DAVID H. WALTER HORN

Funeral services for David H. Walter Horn, a jewelry salesman, will be at 2 p.m. Saturday at Messiah Lutheran Church, 2846 South Grand boulevard, with burial in Concordia Cemetery. He was 33 years old and died Tuesday of a heart ailment at Firmin Desloge Hospital.

Mr. Horn was elected president of a local retail jewelers association and was connected with the Wehmueller-Hamilton Co. He was active in Lutheran Church affairs and a member of the Walther League.

Surviving Mr. Horn, who lived at 8309 Julia drive, St. Louis county, are his wife, Mrs. Gloria M. Horn; his mother, Mrs. Anna Straub Horn, a brother and a sister.

SATISFYING PROGRAM OF CHAMBER MUSIC

By CHARLES MENEES

A program of chamber music attractive beforehand because of its wide taste appeal and afterward for the general competence of its performance was given last night on the Washington University series. The soloists were tenor Leslie Chabay, artist-in-residence at the university, and pianist Vivian Wilkerson, graduate student in music. Both were admirably supported by an orchestra of more than 30 members, most of them recruited from the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. Leigh Gerdine was the conductor.

Chabay lived up to his reputation as a consistently understanding and expressive artist with performance of "Salve, Regina" of Pergolesi and "Les Illuminations" of Benjamin Britten. The tessitura of the Pergolesi setting for the familiar hymn "Hail Holy Queen" was too low for Chabay's voice, but he surmounted this difficulty with negligible distraction from the richness and profundity of the music. With the Britten songs, inspired by the poems of Frenchman Jean Rimbaud, he was completely at home. This music is exciting in its switches from reflective to robust mood and Chabay penetrated it all, dwelling with consideration on phrases and words that call in particular for dramatic projection.

Miss Wilkerson encountered no technical problems with the Beethoven Concerto No. 3. Her clean playing was particularly evident in the cadenzas. Her comprehension of the heroic sweep of the music, however, was something less than complete. There were occasions, particularly in the largo when the orchestra was at too much volume for the soloist to overcome.

The orchestral offering was "Symphony Concertante," by Burrill Phillips, contemporary American composer who is on the faculty of the University of Illinois. This music, on first hearing, seems for the most part of mild consequence. Its first movement is in the vein of hoedown music and the second might well be subtitled "The Blues." Here there are Gershwinish uses of clarinets which might have been simply a reflection of the period in which it was composed (1935). The most solid writing is evident in the concluding allegro. The orchestra played the piece with a flourish and Mr. Phillips stood to acknowledge loud applause from the larger-than-usual audience in Graham Chapel.

PARTY FOR WABASH MAN

Burrell Higgenbotham, who retired last Feb. 17 after more than 35 years as an employe in the auditor's office of the Wabash Railroad Co., was honored yesterday at a party given by former fellow workers at the company.

Higgenbotham, 3100 Bellerive drive, Normandy, retired because of a disability, and employes previously did not have an opportunity to honor him, R. F. Donohue, head of the office, said. Higgenbotham, 70 years old, received gifts and a plaque from employes of the office.

PRESIDENT WILL LIGHT CHRISTMAS TREE IN CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP)—President Eisenhower will light the national community Christmas tree, a 65-foot spruce, in a park area south of the White House on Dec. 20.

It's not yet known whether Mr. Eisenhower will press the button setting the tree aglow from the White House or elsewhere. Last year he did it by remote control from Gettysburg, Pa., where he has a farm home.

The ceremony, including the President's Christmas message, customarily is televised, but final arrangements have not been made.

FEDERAL SCHOLARSHIP AID URGED BY COLLEGE GROUP

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP)—The American Association of Land Grant Colleges and State Universities called yesterday for federal scholarship aid up to $750 a year for able but needy students.

A resolution adopted by the association's senate was coupled, however, with another. The second resolution urged state and Federal Governments to figure out how to get enough quarters and classrooms to accommodate the increased numbers of students that it said scholarships would produce.

In adopting the twin resolutions, the senate modified somewhat the stand taken by a majority of its members in a poll taken by the association before its convention opened here this week. The poll showed senate members 4 to 1 in favor of Federal scholarships, but without reference to space to accommodate new students.

WESTMINSTER ALUMNI CLUB ELECTS HARRY J. DODSON

Harry J. Dodson, 5527 Pershing avenue, was re-elected president of the Westminster College Alumni Club of St. Louis last night at a dinner meeting at the Naval Air Station Officers' Club.

Other officers elected were J. Leonard Walther, vice president, and D. Waldo Edwards, secretary-treasurer. R. Elliott Scearce and James L. Floss were named as representatives to the national alumni council.

Dr. Robert L. D. Davidson, president of the college, spoke on progress made in the Fulton (Mo.) college's development program, with particular emphasis on steps taken to accommodate the expected increased enrollment in the next few years.

23,000 Youths and Leaders to Participate in Exposition at Arena.

A total of 23,000 boys and leaders will participate in the 1956 Boy Scout Exposition which opens today at 7 p.m. in The Arena, 5700 Oakland avenue.

The exposition, which will show the Scouts' advancement program in action, will continue Friday and Saturday.

There will be 431 booths and displays of Cubs, Boy Scout and Explorer units. Taking part in the exposition will be 10,000 Cubs, 6000 Boy Scouts and 7000 adult leaders.

In addition, a variety stage show has been included for the first time. Performing on the program will be the Piasa Indian Society, a drum and bugle corps, musical group and singer, Jack Graham, a Sea Scout.

One of the many events in the exposition will be presented by Troops 236 and 318. Swimming pools have been erected in Building "A" and boys will perform for the swimming merit badge during the exposition.

Other phases of the advancement program in action will be horsemanship, archery, cooking and others representing the outdoor life of Scouts. These will be held in front of The Arena.

UNIVERSITY CITY GIRL WINS NATIONAL SEWING CONTEST

Carol Sue McGinnis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. McGinnis, 7014 Cornell avenue, University City, last night won first place in a nation-wide sewing contest sponsored by a sewing machine manufacturer.

Miss McGinnis, a freshman at Visitation Academy, was one of four finalists from the United States and Canada who made the trip to New York after winning county, state and regional contests. She won $1000, a $300 college scholarship and a sewing machine.

Her prize-winning ensemble consisted of a full plaid skirt, a white cotton blouse with ruffled lace, and a matching plaid parasol. Miss McGinnis, whose father is police judge of University City, is 14 years old. Her three competitors were 17.

CONFEDERATE ARMY VETERAN OBSERVES 114TH BIRTHDAY

HOUSTON, Tex., Nov. 15 (UP)—Col. Walter Williams, oldest of the three survivors of the War Between the States, observed his 114th birthday yesterday and said he would "wait around until all the others are gone" to see what happens.

Williams said his chief ambition was to live as long as his father, who died at the age of 119.

Dr. Russell Wolfe, the colonel's physician, said the aged veteran is "in fairly good shape, considering his age." Williams's eyes are weak and he spends most of his time in a wheel chair.

All the Union veterans have died. The other remaining Confederate veterans are John Salling, 110, of Slant, Va., and William A. Landy, 109, of Laurel Hill, Fla.

FARM BUREAU CRITICIZED BY UAW OFFICIAL

N.F.O. Speaker Also Calls for Labor-Farmer Co-operation on Legislation.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Nov. 15 (UP) — Pat Greathouse, vice president of the United Auto Workers, told the 800 delegates of the National Farm Organization Tuesday night that the Farm Bureau "isn't interested in preserving the family-type farm."

The labor leader pledged labor's support to any realistic farm program indorsed by "legitimate" farm organizations. "The Farm Bureau represents corporate farmers and not dirt farmers," Greathouse said. "It represents those who farm the farmers and not the farmers who farm the farms."

Greathouse said it was the duty of labor unions and farm organizations to acquaint their members with the common interests of labor and farmers.

Urges Co-Operation.

"Labor and farmers must get together and lobby in Washington and in the various state capitals to work for legislation to aid workers and farmers," he said. "I am here to tell you that we can get a realistic farm program in 1957 if we work together.

"It is labor's position that the farm program should be written by farmers for farmers and labor will support such a program."

Former Iowa Gov. Dan Turner told the convention Tuesday the Administration's farm policy is "reminiscent of horse and buggy days."

"Secretary of Agriculture Benson's policies are not applicable to the small farmer while all other industries enjoy Government regulation. If other industries were under Benson's law of supply and demand, it would be all right for the farmer, but Benson is entirely callous about the fact he would destroy your standard of living," Turner declared.

Calls for Expansion.

Turner also urged the organization to make itself a strong group and expand its efforts for the family-sized farm.

The N.F.O. was told by Turner not to become discouraged in seeking growth. Turner said the organization is not asking for charity but to bring the level of prosperity for farmers up to that of other groups.

Another speaker, Representative George Christopher (Dem.), Missouri, charged that big corporations are "looking with greedy eyes on the soil—the last natural resource they do not control."

The Missouri Congressman urged farmers to fight for 100 per cent parity. He said: "This means nothing more than equality of purchasing power."

Christopher suggested that N.F.O. seek 2,500,000 members. It claims a membership of about 130,000, with delegates from 13 states at the convention.

Staley Re-Elected.

He said that in his 67 years farmers have enjoyed very few really good years, and that most of the time they have not received a "fair deal" in an economic way.

Oren Lee Staley of Rea, Mo., was re-elected president at a final session of the N.F.O. convention.

The N.F.O. is dedicated to 100 per cent of parity and high rigid price supports on all farm products.

Three Iowans were elected to office. They were Robert Casper, Winterset, vice president; William Barnes, Lamoni, secretary, and Clifford Houck, Corning, treasurer.

Six new directors elected are Noel Montz, Wenster, Ia.; John Nach, Vermillion, Kan.; William C. Reininger, Chrisney, Ind.; Lee Scott, Vinita, Okla.; John Holman, Cedar Rapids, Ia., and Carl Kapp, Fennimore, Wis.

Bagpipe Playing Scots Cheer Frustrated Armies in Egypt

British, French Troops Think Assault Should Have Continued — Feel They Won Opprobrium Without Victory.

By HANSON W. BALDWIN
(New York Times News Service)

PORT SAID, Nov. 15—The Royal Scots, the bagpipes skirling, disembarked yesterday and marched to their billets through the dusty war-torn streets of Port Said.

They were a "braw" sight as they marched—the pipers in their royal Stewart kilts with the Tartan flash on their shoulders and tan tamoshanters on their heads. The companies moved in slow step behind them, complete in battle dress and full kit.

It was the first bit of color Port Said has had since the Anglo-French assault on Nov. 5, and even the troops already here raised a cheer. The kilts were much admired and elicited the usual jokes, but to those who wanted to try them on the stock Scot answer was: "No mon, ye no have the figger for it."

The shrill music of the pipes and the joking and the color were tonics for the troops.

For Port Said, even at its peacetime best, returns a rather dusty answer to those in search of recreation and amusement. And today with the stench of war still pervading the charred rubble of ports of the town, with water rationing and a curfew and thousands of troops crammed into a congested sand spit, it is a grim place for an extended stay.

Hard to Keep Clean.

This was an army prepared for battle and stopped suddenly in the full shock of the assault. Troops are billeted for the most part in shell-torn buildings, and with limited water it is hard to keep clean.

Down on the Ismailia road, about 38 kilometers south of the canal entrance, where British advance units—the Royal West Kents—face the Egyptians across 500 to 600 yards of no-man's-land, the men lie in shallow slit trenches and foxholes, always on guard and pestered by swarms of flies. A few cases of dysentery—an "occupational" disease to all who stay in Egypt—are coming to the hospitals. So the troops here have need of color, of recreation, and of humor.

Despite these adverse factors the troops' morale is not low. The Marine commandos, the parachutists, the Royal Scots, the French Foreign Legion, these are some of the best troops that march beneath the Union Jack and the Tricolor. Many of them are professional soldiers, tough, eager and disciplined.

But they are a frustrated army, and their commanders know that as the November rains come to Egypt and as occupation without action is extended, morale must be guarded.

Wanted to Continue.

There is some bitterness, particularly among the officers, at the somewhat anti-climatic end of the Suez Canal campaign. Like good soldiers they carry out orders no matter whether or not they agree with them. This army, particularly the British element of it, was like the British public, divided as to the wisdom of the assault on Port Said. But once the assault was launched there was almost a unanimous feeling that it should have continued until Ismailia and Suez were captured.

The troops, particularly those in the narrow, artificial, and exposed front south of El Kap, feel they have been let down somewhat, that they should have been permitted to advance until they had a broader front and held a more tenable position.

Moreover, many are seriously concerned with the future political effects of the events of the past two weeks.

Six British nationals, four of them Jews, were arrested in Port Said and taken to Cairo prior to the Anglo-French assault. Other Britons arrested in other parts of Egypt are still in Egyptian hands. Those that remained here were treated well by the local authorities and were not molested, even during the assault.

But Britons ask: what will happen to their countrymen now? More important, they feel this equivocal military campaign has won Britain much opprobrium in the Middle East without bringing her the fruits of victory. The Suez Canal is blocked and Britain holds only about one-third of it.

Had a surprise assault by British and French airborne and seaborne forces been launched simultaneously against Port Said, Suez and Ismailia the casualties would have been higher but the seizure of the entire canal might have been accomplished before public protests and Russian threats could halt it.

In any case, the present inconclusive cease-fire has left a bitter taste in British and French mouths. The British fear they will now be linked forever in the Arab mind with support of the Jews and that Nasser's propaganda will convince some Arabs that Britain was defeated.

The French here are even more vehement. They blame both Britain and the United States for the halt in the advance. By stopping, they say, the whole Middle East has been delivered to Russia. They characterize American reactions to Soviet threats against Britain, France and Israel as weak. And they view with some misgivings the effects of the present situation on Algeria.

There is not much confidence that the United Nations can solve the Middle Eastern problems. And soldiers of both armies gravely fear that this is merely an interrupted battle—that someday, somewhere, it may have to be resumed against a more formidable foe.

Further Criticism.

He expressed this criticism of the Soviet Union:

"The Soviet Union considers, in view of the fact that interference in internal affairs has assumed rather broad proportions in radio propaganda and sending material by ballons, that disagreeable consequences might be the result if they were to leave these countries entirely and give them the status enjoyed by Yugoslavia.

"They fear that reactionary forces might triumph in these countries.

"In other words, this means they do not have sufficient confidence in the international revolutionary forces of those countries.

"This is wrong and the root of all later mistakes is their lack of confidence in the socialist forces of these countries."

Russia Seeks to Blame Tito for Uprisings.

LONDON, Nov. 15 (UP) — Russia is massing armored forces on the Yugoslav border and passing the word to neighboring satellites that President Josip (Tito) Broz is to blame for the upsurge of anti-Soviet sentiment in east Europe, diplomatic sources said yesterday.

These sources reported the Kremlin campaign has made Tito a "very worried man."

Moscow's resentment at the world criticism inspired by its intervention in Hungary was reported to be focussing on the Yugoslav leader, who has become the chief symbol of "independent" Communism.

Tito's successful defiance of the Kremlin, climaxed by Communist party chief Nikita S. Khrushchev's pilgrimage to Belgrade last year to woo him back into the Soviet fold, had won him considerable respect among his satellite neighbors and Communist parties outside the Iron Curtain.

Officially, Russia blames its troubles in Hungary on "imperialist forces," but a Moscow-sponsored whispering campaign in satellite Europe is saying that the "subversive effect" of Tito's "dubious political conceptions" is at least equally responsible.

FOOD STORE CHAIN CUTS COFFEE PRICE UP TO 4 CENTS

A. & P. Food Stores today reduced by four cents the price on three brands of their coffee, and cut two cents off the price of the fourth brand.

A spokesman for the grocery chain said the cost of green coffee has gone down, since A. & P. carries no inventories, the reduction in retail prices could be made immediately.

Three brands of coffee offered in bags were reduced, respectively, from 89 to 87 cents a pound, 99 to 95 cents, and from $1.03 to 99 cents. A vacuum-packed brand was cut from $1.07 to $1.03. There was no reduction in the price of "instant" brands.

BRITAIN APPOINTS NEW AMBASSADOR TO MOSCOW

LONDON, Nov. 15 (AP) — D'Arcy Patrick Reilly, until recently British minister in Paris, today was appointed Britain's ambassador to Moscow.

Reilly succeeds Sir William Hayter, who has been promoted to deputy under secretary of state in the Foreign Office, a post formerly held by Sir Harold Caccia, the new British Ambassador to Washington.

Reilly has been in the foreign service since 1933. He has served in Iran, Algeria and Greece. In recent months he has been deputy under secretary of state in the Foreign Office.

RUSSIA DEMANDS DAMAGES

LUXEMBOURG, Nov. 15 (UP) —Russia has demanded punishment of demonstrators who ransacked the Soviet embassy here Nov. 6 and payment for all damages to the building.

Soviet Ambassador Alexandrowitch Melnik submitted the demands yesterday. Demonstrators, protesting against Russian intervention in Hungary, tossed furniture out of windows onto a bonfire and wrecked two embassy cars.

FINLAND OFFERS 250 MEN FOR U.N. FORCE IN MIDEAST

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Nov. 15 (UP)—Finland offered today to place a contingent of 250 men at the disposal of the United Nations police force in the Middle East.

Finland had announced on Nov. 5 its support of the U.N. force but today defined the extent of its contribution. Finnish Ambassador G. A. Gripenberg informed Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold in a letter that:

"It is the understanding of my government that the emergency force will not be used for any other objective than the one set out . . . and that the Finnish unit will not be stationed in foreign territory without the permission of the state concerned."

EDEN SHRUGS OFF BID TO CALL H-BOMB PARLEY

LONDON, Nov. 15 (AP) — Prime Minister Eden today shrugged off a suggestion that he take the initiative in calling a top level conference to discuss limitation and eventual abolition of the hydrogen bomb.

Eden replied to a Laborite in the House of Commons who raised the idea.

"In the present international atmosphere, I rather doubt, and I think you will on reflection, whether we would go very far with the proposal."

STAN MUSIAL TO HEAD 1957 EASTER SEAL DRIVE

Stan Musial, St. Louis Cardinals star, has accepted appointment as chairman of the 1957 Easter Seal campaign, it was announced today by Mrs. George A. Fischer Jr., president of the St. Louis Society for Crippled Children.

"We in the field of sports realize all too well the importance of strong healthy youngsters to the future of our athletic programs as well as to the future of our nation," Musial said. "The Easter Seal Society is the only organization offering complete rehabilitation services to children with all types of physical disabilities and does not duplicate services of hospitals, clinics, private physicians or other agencies."

Proceeds from Easter Seals also provide crippled children with therapeutic treatments, braces, artificial limbs, wheel chairs, specialized care, nursery school training, summer camping, transportation and other services, Mrs. Fischer said.

CRISIS EXPECTED TO SPUR NUCLEAR POWER OUTPUT

Middle East Dispute Shows Vulnerability of West to Attack on Oil Supplies.

By DAVID M. NICHOL.
The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Radio. Copyright, 1956.

BEIRUT, Lebanon, Nov. 15—Oil men and political experts alike feel that the present Middle East crisis will give an immense boost to the development of nuclear power for peaceful purposes.

The Suez dispute and its flaring aftermaths have demonstrated how vulnerable the free world is to attack on its primary oil reserves.

One fourth of the free world's supplies originate in the Middle East and two-thirds of its known reserves are scattered through this tension-ridden region.

The Suez Canal is blocked by sunken ships. Even after political problems are resolved it may take weeks or months to clear it.

Pipeline Damaged.

In response to Egyptian President Gamel Abdel Nasser's appeal to cut off oil to the western world, the Iraq Petroleum Company's pipeline across Syria has been damaged so severely that experts say one year of work under peaceful circumstances will be necessary to restore it.

Even the dry line running across Jordan to the Israeli port of Haifa has now been broken.

The only functioning pipeline to the Mediaterranean is that of the American-owned Aramco subsidiary Tapline. It continues, as one man said, only "at the sufferance of Communist agitators and Arab leaders."

For the rest Middle East oil shipments to the western world must now move by tanker along a much slower and more costly route around South Africa. This will increase prices sharply. Newspaper reports already suggest that gasoline rationing may be necessary in western Europe this winter.

Part of Argument Removed.

The cost of nuclear power has been one of factors slowing its commercial development. At least part of this argument now has been removed.

In addition, there is the overwhelming political and military necessity of freeing the western world of its dependence on the arbitrary actions of Middle Eastern governments, uncontrolled mob violence by their peoples, and possible Soviet intervention.

Until the present crisis erupted this summer, oil men believed it would be some 20 years before their fuel monopoly was threatened seriously by nuclear power. There is no one here with sufficient technical knowledge to make an accurate forecast, but it is generally believed that this period now will be much shorter.

They are aghast at the suggestion that they may have speeded the day when their oil reserves won't be needed for much other than outboard motors and the manufacture of plastics.

In the long run this might still be the salvation of the Middle East. Oil used as raw material for manufacturing might provide the region with the expanding industry and economy necessary for its existence.

At the same time the political temptations to which the Middle East is both subject and exposed would be much reduced.

$125-A-WEEK BUS DRIVER TO INHERIT $4,500,000 ESTATE

NEWARK, N.J., Nov. 15 (UP)—Stuart Holzman is driving a bus toward a $4,500,000 payoff.

While the 28-year-old millionaire-to-be enjoys his daily round trips between Paterson and the Port Authority Bus Terminal in New York City, he has an additional incentive to the $125 a week he receives as a driver.

Under the terms of his uncle's will, Holzman, in order to come into an estate valued at $4,500,000, must remain on one job from his twenty-fifth to his thirty-fifth birthday. In the meantime he receives an allowance from the estate which boosts his temporary income to about $9200 a month.

SILVER DOLLAR NOT LOSING ITS POPULARITY IN MONTANA

BILLINGS, Mont., Nov. 15 (UP)—There is one symbol of the West that folks in these parts refuse to give up—the silver dollar.

The "cartwheels" are popular with Montanans for several reasons. Business men believe it's good advertising when visitors take them back to their home states to spend—the "Montana dollar" always prompts questions in paper-money areas.

Old-timers, and even some newcomers, prefer silver dollars simply because they are handy. There is no need to reach for a wallet when there is "clanking money" in your jeans.

Estimates vary, but one generally accepted—and verified by local banks—is that silver dollars are favored over paper money by a ratio of 10 to 1.

Bankers say no merchants will buy paper dollars, but one bank ships in 10,000 silver dollars a week to meet the local demand. None of the hard money ever has to be returned to federal reserve banks.

HUNGARIAN BEGS IN U.S. FOR 'HELP OF EVERY NATION'

Freedom Fighter Makes Appeal in Advance of Appearance Before Senate Group.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (UP)—A Hungarian freedom fighter today begged for "the help of every nation" in his country's struggle "against tyranny and slavery."

He made the appeal in a statement issued by the Senate Internal Security subcommittee in advance of his testimony before the group this afternoon.

The witness, who said he was "in the thick of the fighting of Budapest," arrived in the United States Monday. Subcommittee counsel Robert Morris said he would show photographs the witness took of "Soviet atrocities" in Hungary. Morris said the witness, who is in his 30s, would wear a mask to conceal his identity when testifying.

He is using an assumed name, Arpad Hazafi, because "I have beloved ones at home and I fear vengeance."

Expects New Revolts.

Hazafi said his country "is ready to sacrifice its life rather than renounce freedom." He predicted that the pattern of uprisings in Hungary and Poland "will eventually develop in all the enslaved countries because humanity will not forever stand for tyranny and despotism."

Hazafi said "life in Hungary became a hopeless treadmill" under eight years of Communist rule.

"The Communist government year after year talked about raising the standard of living but always the opposite happened," he said. "The greatest part of the produced goods was transported to the Soviet . . . the barest minimum only was left for the Hungarian people."

He said Communist party members went from house to house "trying to convince the people that life in Hungary is superior to that in the West" but nobody believed them.

He said the people's dissatisfaction "grew in direct proportion" to the worsening of the economic situation and the "fear" spread by the AVH, the Communist secret police.

Slight Causes for Arrest.

"The slightest disapproval of the regime, correspondence with western relatives or friends, sometimes baseless accusation was sufficient to cause arrest, torture or even death for the people, without court trial or verdict," Hazafi said.

He said the Communists "deported to the countryside" 60,000 persons from Budapest in May and June of 1951 and confiscated their apartments.

Hazafi said the move toward "real democratization" in Hungary was started by the "intelligentsia" following the downgrading of Stalin. "It is an interesting symptom of the times that young men filled with Communist ideology were the first ones who dared to give voice to non-Communist ideas."

He said a Communist youth organization called Disz (federation of the working youth) started a debating circle which criticized both "the sins of the Stalin era" and the "mistakes of the 'new look'." Hazafi said writers, newspaper men and scientists joined the debating circle and the press began to "get more and more courage."

U.S. MOVES TO REVOKE PROBATION OF ILLINOISAN

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 15—United States District Judge Charles G. Briggle today set a hearing for Dec. 7 on a federal petition seeking to revoke the three-year probation of Charles E. Williams, East St. Louis druggist who was convicted of income tax evasion in 1954.

The petition charged that Williams has failed to make a bona fide effort to meet payments due on his tax liabilities. A condition of his probation was that he pay about $60,000 in tax liabilities due from 1944 through 1947. If probation is revoked, he could face a maximum sentence of five years.

Williams, 50 years old, was found guilty of understating his income by $10,881 in 1946 and 1947 and evading payment of $3283 in taxes and was fined $5000. He is a former president of the Retail Druggists Association of East St. Louis.

JUDGE VAN OOSTERHOUT'S WIFE HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FORT DODGE, Ia., Nov. 15—Mrs. Martin D. Van Oosterhout, wife of Judge Van Oosterhout of the Eighth Circuit, United States Court of Appeals, which includes St. Louis in its jurisdiction, suffered a crushed chest and head and internal injuries in an automobile accident near here yesterday.

Mrs. Van Oosterhout, whose home is in Orange City, Ia., was injured when the automobile she was driving went out of control and struck a house near Havelock, Ia. Her car was demolished and the house was damaged extensively.

She was alone at the time. She was brought to a hospital here, where it was reported her condition is serious.

No Short Cut in Driving Test.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Glenn V. Carmichael, a traffic safety researcher at Northwestern University, told a safety conference recently it takes a minimum of 30 minutes to test driving ability.

WORLD TRADE UNIONS ASK FOR RUSSIAN BOYCOTT

HAMBURG, Germany, Nov. 15 (UP)—The International Free Trade Unions federation appealed to its members in all countries today to refuse to handle Russian cargoes, stop building Russian ships and generally boycott Russian goods.

Secretary-General Jakob H. Oldenbroeck said a conference of 40 delegates representing the IFTU, the European regional IFTU organization and the International Transport Workers federation "unanimously" decided to back the boycott plan.

The IFTU has 56,000,000 workers in 83 countries. Its proposed boycott would halt the transportation of Russian goods in the free world, would stop the loading and unloading of Russian ships and repairs to the ships and would halt shipbuilding for Russia.

$32 A SHARE BID FOR STOCK OF LIFE INSURANCE FIRM

The Western & Southern Life Insurance Co. of Cincinnati has offered to buy all the 400,000 shares of the outstanding capital stock of the Life Insurance Co. of Missouri at $32 a share, it was announced today.

The offer followed a purchase agreement by the Ohio firm with holders of a substantial amount of the stock of the Missouri firm and is contingent upon more than 50 per cent of the entire issue being tendered on or before next Jan. 31. A formal notice inviting tenders will be made soon by A. G. Edwards & Sons, the brokerage firm said.

Life Insurance Co. of Missouri acquired its present name last April 30. Until then it had been known as Missouri Insurance Co. with home offices at 705 Chestnut street. Lon Hocker, unsuccessful Republican candidate for the governorship of Missouri, is president. The firm was established in 1907.

TITO EX-AID SAYS COMMUNISM END IS NOW ASSURED

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (AP)—Milovan Djilas, former Yugoslav vice president, says the Hungarian revolution is the beginning of the end of Communism.

Djilas was formerly the right-hand man of President Tito, but he split with the Yugoslav leader in 1954. He is no longer in the Tito government but remains in Yugoslavia. He gave his views in an article in the anti-Communist weekly New Leader. He declared: "The Hungarian revolution blazed a path which sooner or later other Communist countries must follow. The wound which the Hungarian revolution inflicted on Communism can never be healed."

Djilas wrote that the events in one Communist country necessarily affect all other Communist countries.

He declared that Yugoslav Communism, separating itself from Moscow, initiated "the crisis of Soviet imperialism," that is, the inevitable birth of national Communism. In the same way, he said "the revolution in Hungary means the beginning of the end of Communism generally."

U.S., PEIPING ENVOYS MEET

GENEVA, Nov. 15 (AP)—United States Ambassador U. Alexis Johnson and Wang Ping-nan of Communist China held their sixty-first meeting here today and agreed to meet again Nov. 30.

The two envoys have been negotiating for 16 months on the questions of the release of 10 American civilians still imprisoned in China and a Red Chinese renunciation of the use of force against Formosa. They have made no report of any progress.

SITTER WHO FATALLY SHOOK TWO BABIES GETS 10 YEARS

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 15 (AP)—A woman baby attendant, who said "children sometimes get on my nerves," was sentenced to 10 to 22 years in prison yesterday for the fatal shaking of two of them.

Virginia Jaspers, who stands 6 feet tall and weighs 220 pounds pleaded guilty to two counts of manslaughter three weeks ago. She stood impassive as the judge pronounced sentence.

Police said she admitted fatally injuring another one of her charges, but she could not be charged with that because it happened in 1948, too long ago to allow prosecution.

LATE SELLING WAVE TURNS LIST LOWER

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (AP)— The stock market underwent a late sinking spell today to post its second straight decline.

The downturn came in the final minutes after the market had managed to hold about even through much of the session.

Losses ran to around 3 points among key issues. There were scattered gains of 2 points or so, with a few specialties faring well ahead of the market. Most major steels gained ground.

Brokers said the flurry of selling was triggered by a dispatch from Moscow that Premier Bulganin had sent notes on the Egyptian situation. Details of the notes were not disclosed at that time.

After the close, it was disclosed that Bulganin had expressed satisfaction at the halting of hostilities in Egypt but had demanded that Egypt be compensated for "damage inflicted by the intervention."

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined 90 cents to $177.90, with industrials off $1, rails 60 cents and utilities 50 cents.

There were 1158 issues traded, of which 378 closed higher, 519 lower and 261 unchanged. Thirty-seven stocks posted new 1956 highs and 92 made new lows.

Sales amounted to 2,210,000 shares, compared with 2,290,000 traded yesterday.

LONDON STOCK INDEX.

LONDON, Nov. 15 (AP)—The Financial Times daily index of London stocks today was 169.0, up 0.7.

U.S. Economy Today

HIGHER CREDIT STANDARDS, COSTS SEEN

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (AP).

STILL COSTLIER BORROWING and another boost in the standards for good credit risks are foreseen today by some observers of the financial market.

If so, it means that more persons will be turned down when they seek to buy goods on time, that some will find it still harder to finance a house purchase, that some stores will find it costlier to carry their Christmas stocks and some getting less credit from the bank may have to pare their ideas about how much stock to carry.

Sam Dawson

Some bankers see the renewed tightening of money as due in part to the international crisis which is bringing a greater demand for American dollars in Europe—although not in Canada where the reverse is true.

But most bankers think the demand of American business for funds for expansion is still the chief factor and will remain so.

THE FIRST MAJOR CHANGE IN THE MONEY MARKET since early October came this week when dealers in bankers' acceptances raised their rate—the seventh increase this year. They blamed tightening money conditions for the hike of one-eighth percentage point. Bankers' acceptances are used for financing exports and imports and domestic shipments of goods. The last previous hike in interest rates was about five weeks ago when the sales finance companies and dealers in commercial paper boosted their rates by one-eighth percentage point. Interest rates generally had risen in a series of hikes last summer.

THE TIGHTENING OF THE MONEY SUPPLY IS ALSO shown this week by the report of J. Stanley Baughman, head of the Federal National Mortgage Association (Fannie Mae), that this agency has been buying government-backed mortgages at record rates in the resale market. He blames "steadily dwindling supply of mortgage funds normally available from private sources." And he thinks the residential mortgage market will continue tight. Would-be home builders and corporation officials looking for funds for new plants and equipment aren't the only ones to feel the pinch.

BANKERS STRESS THAT ALL WORTH-WHILE PROJECTS are being financed and that their established customers are being given credit. But some of the smaller firms and merchants, and particularly the late comers, are complaining that they aren't getting as much credit as they'd like and are finding costlier borrowing an awkward new expense. Tight money is blamed chiefly on the swelling demand for funds which has outpaced the rate of savings. It is allowed to stay tight because the monetary authorities want it to act as a brake on inflation.

THE INFLATION THREAT SEEMS EVEN STRONGER in Canada and stricter counter measures are being taken. Predictions of a continuing boom there led Canadians to unload their holdings of American money this week, sending the Canadian dollar to a 20-month high. It now takes one American dollar plus three and a half cents to buy a Canadian one. In all the reports about a shortage of money for borrowing purposes, however, there runs the counter threat that the consumers have more money to spend than ever—and retail store sales are about 6 per cent ahead of last year.

AND, TOO, SOME 775,000 PERSONS HAVE FOUND a total of $572,000,000 around the house with which to buy new American Telephone & Telegraph shares, the largest direct common stock issue ever undertaken by an American company.

AIKEN AND CASE BACK PRESIDENT ON NEW G.O.P.

Vermonter Warns That Party Must Be Modern or Risk Voter Rejection.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP)—Two Republican Senators said today they agree thoroughly with President Eisenhower that their party must put over a program based on principles of modern Republicanism.

Senator George Aiken of Vermont told a reporter he fears that if the G.O.P. "fails to do this, it is likely to be out of office for a long time."

Senator Clifford Case of New Jersey in a separate interview cited a long list of legislation on which he said Republicans must get moving early in the 1957 session. Included were education, civil rights, immigration, housing, labor and small business items.

"The Republican party, in my opinion, will be successful in future elections only as it proves its desire and ability to carry out such programs," said Case.

Both Case and Aiken have backed up much of Mr. Eisenhower's program.

Mr. Eisenhower said at his press conference yesterday that he considered that he now had something of a mandate to work "industriously and incessantly" for his principles and program.

When asked his views on his own huge vote coupled with re-election of a Democratic-controlled Congress, he said:

"From my viewpoint, the United States has not yet been convinced that modern Republicanism is with us and is going to be the guiding philosophy of the Republican party."

Senator Mike Mansfield (Dem.), Montana, told a reporter today "the President is correct in that statement."

"What the electorate did," said Mansfield, "was to give a big vote of confidence to the prestige and popularity of the President, and at the same time vote for a strong national party—the Democratic party.

"I don't think the people voted for the Republican program presented by the President. If they had done so, it would have helped Republican candidates for Congress."

Both Case and Aiken are considered in the liberal wing of the G.O.P. The Vermont Senator said he had been espousing modern Republicanism for 20 years.

Case said the election "showed that his (Eisenhower's) philosophy is more popular by far than any other before the American people."

"Now that the election is over," he went on, "it is up to those of us who have long subscribed to the modern Republicanism of President Eisenhower to develop and push forward with the programs which will bring these works to real accomplishment.

"I think we can show the American people that the Eisenhower philosophy is the Republican philosophy from now on out."

RULING ON STATE DRIVER'S LICENSE LAW OVERTHROWN

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 15 (UP)—The Missouri Attorney General's office Tuesday overthrew a ruling of the State Department of Revenue regarding the state drivers' license law.

Assistant Attorney General James W. Fears noted that a driver's license may be suspended for two convictions on charges of careless driving within two years. That will hold, Faris ruled, despite the fact that one conviction occurred before the effective date of the license law.

Prior to August, 1955, a driver's license could be suspended for conviction on three charges of careless and reckless driving within two years. The Legislature voted to change it from three to two convictions and the change went into effect Aug. 19 of last year.

Robert E. Wilson, prosecuting attorney of Polk county, said in a letter to the Attorney General's office that his magistrate court had suspended a license for one year. Later, Wilson said, the Department of Revenue returned the license because one of the convictions involved was prior to the effective date of the law.

REMOVES FLAMING TRUCK, THEN PUTS OUT ITS FIRE

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 15 (AP)—John Meinhardt drove a flaming gasoline truck away from a highly congested area yesterday to prevent a possible disaster. He suffered only slight burns on his hands.

Meinhardt was delivering gasoline to a garage when an underground tank overflowed and gasoline flooded across the floor of the garage. A coal stove ignited the fumes which spread through the hose to the rear of Meinhardt's truck, setting the rear wheels ablaze.

Meinhardt unhooked the hose, jumped into the vehicle and drove it nearly two blocks to a vacant lot. He then jumped out and used three fire extinguishers to control the blaze until firemen arrived.

U.S. BONDS STEADY IN VERY LIGHT TRADE

Bankers Acceptances Edge Up 1/8 Percentage Point 2nd Time in Week.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (AP)—The bond market turned downward in trading this afternoon after being slightly higher earlier. The trading pace was moderate. United States government bonds were steady in extremely light trading.

Industrials were off sharply, while rails declined modestly and utilities remained firm.

Bankers acceptances edged up 1/8 of a point for the second time this week, matching an increase Tuesday.

New Financing.

In new financing, Chase Manhattan Bank set a price of $47 a share for the additional 1,000,000 shares of its stock, to which holders will be offered rights to subscribe. Holders of record Nov. 15 will have until Dec. 5 to subscribe in the ratio of one new share for each 12 held.

The Florida State Board of Education announced the biggest new issue in the municipal field, $9,325,000 in bonds slated for sale starting Nov. 27. The school bonds are marked to mature Sept. 1 and Dec. 1 1968-77.

SAYS:

Upon the death of a friend you should go at once to the house, write "With sympathy" on your card and leave it at the door. Or, you write a letter to the family. In either case you send flowers, addressed to the funeral of (name of the deceased) or to the nearest relative. The latter method is preferable, if the relative is a friend. But the former method is followed if the deceased alone was known to you.

IN MEMORIAM 16

POGGEMOELLER, ELMER L., passed away Nov. 15, 1954.
Two years have flown
Since that sad day,
The one we love
Was called away.
God took him home
It was His will
But in our hearts he liveth still.
Sadly missed by WIFE, CHILDREN and FAMILY.

Flynn Says Baker's Best for Dandruff-Scalp Discomfort

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill.—Harry D. Flynn, 2 H Villa Griffin Apts., says: "I have used practically everything on the market, and Baker's Hair Tonic is the only thing that will do the job on dandruff and itchy scalp. I would also like to say Baker's Lathernist Shampoo is very good. I use this statement if you want to, as Baker's products deserve all the praise they are getting."

The Maker's Guarantee:

Baker's Hair Tonic will do the job on dandruff and itchy scalp.

Baker's Lathernist Shampoo will make your hair look better or Money Back. Adv.

Bake Your Holiday Fruit Cake Now

All the Ingredients Are Available, Many Budget Buys for Pre-Holiday Meal Planning.

JUST forty days until Christmas! Now is the time to bake fruit cakes to be served during the holidays or to be given as gifts. The markets have fresh supplies of all the needed ingredients: all varieties of nuts, figs, dates, candied fruits; raisins, prunes and dried apricots, peaches, apples and figs. Before you shop for the ingredients for your fruit cakes, check your supply of spices and be sure to use fresh spices to have the right tang and aroma in your cakes.

* * *

AS for everyday meal planning, the markets offer many good buys that will help ease the strain common to budgets at this time of year.

Pork is the best buy in meat this week with most all cuts reasonably priced. Veal is also on the good-buy list. There are also good buys in heavier beef now and the quality is excellent. Hams, including canned hams, have come down in price considerably. As has been the case for weeks and weeks, frying chickens are still real bargains.

As for Thanksgiving poultry, this column will give you up-to-the-minute news next Monday but this good news can be passed along now: turkeys will be plentiful and much cheaper than they were last year.

* * *

Potatoes Are Cheaper.

POTATOES are still downright cheap in all varieties; sweet potatoes are also reasonably priced and very good this year. The recent freeze has nipped the future supply of many homegrown vegetables but there are still some available at reasonable prices including turnips, beets, parsnips, cauliflower, greens, kale, and spinach. You may find a little brown edge on the leaves of homegrown spinach, but this does not impair its quality or flavor.

Most varieties of lettuce are a little higher now but you'll find celery cabbage, which is reasonably priced, a very fine salad vegetable. Speaking of salads, avocados are moderately priced but add a luxury touch to any salad.

Onions are still holding their own, pricewise, with the small yellow variety still the best bargain. Cabbage, too, remains a good buy and the heads are ideal for kraut and slaw.

There are green beans in from Florida that are good and moderately priced and the same can be said for California broccoli.

Brussels sprouts, carrots and celery are a bit higher now as are eggplants, cucumbers and green peppers.

Several varieties of squash are available at moderate prices and there is some excellent quality corn, but it's no bargain.

* * *

Apples Overflow Stands.

FRUIT stands are overflowing with good buys in apples, particularly locally grown and Michigan Jonathans as well as Red and Golden Delicious. For cooking and baking there are Rome Beauties and Willow Twigs.

Bigger shipments of Florida grapefruit are arriving now and as mentioned last week, the quality is better than ever. The same can be said for Florida oranges and the prices for both are getting more in line.

Good California Valencia oranges are still around and the smaller sizes are very reasonably priced. California navel oranges will be bigger and better this year, but local markets don't expect to receive shipments before Thanksgiving.

There is an ample supply of lemons. A few tangerines have made an appearance, but supply and quality will be much improved a bit later.

In pears, your best buy is in Boscs from Michigan and there are also some moderately priced Comice, Bartlett and D'Anjou pears from the West.

Cranberries Abundant.

Grapes are no problem pricewise and you can take your pick from a number of varieties including Almerias and Emperors.

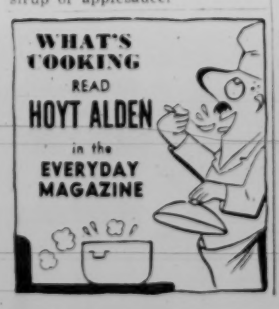
Because there is an abundant supply of cranberries it is not expected that the price will rise even for the Thanksgiving demand.

The price and quality of bananas remain the same. Occasionally some California strawberries make an appearance and the big orange persimmons from the same state are adding color to the fruit stands.

Cocoanuts are very reasonably priced now and there are some excellent Cuban pineapples that are really good buys.

ORANGE TOAST DE LUXE AN INTERESTING CHANGE

Orange toast de luxe is a welcome variation of French toast. Combine two eggs, beaten, one-fourth cup milk, one tablespoon sugar, one tablespoon grated orange rind and a dash salt. Mix well. Dip bread slices in egg mixture, lightly coating both sides in hot butter or margarine in skillet. Serve hot with honey, sirup or applesauce.



Some Nutty Ideas for the Holidays

Any time now, when it is convenient, it's time to mix up a fruit-cake for the Yuletide holidays. Ingredients are in the market now and a fruit cake needs time for a snooze before that Christmas eve ride with the Good Saint. This is a no-bake cake, with brazil nuts.

Another way to "no-bake" a holiday fruit cake is to buy one ready made at the family's favorite food market. Here's an Old English style cake and recipe for a sauce to go with it.

Fruitcake You Can Buy Or Make---Holiday Treat

With the holiday season almost closer upon everyone than makes for ease of mind (got all YOUR shopping done yet?) the hour is here to think about holiday goodies for the family meals and for gift boxes. One such good food is the fruit cake, not so difficult to produce as it once was.

Brazil nuts, just about the only in-shell nut of foreign origin sold in the United States, offer some exotic possibilities. If the new crop is not in your favorite market today, it soon will be.

Because of high financial risks involved Brazil nuts are imported by a very small number of long - established importers, and most are sold to consumers in-shell.

Many in-shell Brazils are now colored . . . via a vegetable dye of red or red brown tones . . . for improved appearance. The dye is harmless and has no flavor, nor does it affect the nutmeats. In fact, Brazil nuts which are colored may actually indicate better handling and inspection, as defective nuts will not take color.

Since many Brazil nut importers are selling their nuts in one-pound packages with brand names, they want the most attractive and the highest quality Brazil nuts to represent them. The color addition is not limited to Brazil nuts as walnuts, almonds, filberts and pecans also receive color or bleaching operations for look improvement.

Shelled Brazils.

Shelled Brazils are imported ready to use. In fact there is no commercial shelling of these nuts done in this country. These shelled nuts come from Brazil in 33-pound cans, two cans to the case. They are packed whole, chipped or broken. The main buyers for these shelled nuts are the candy industry, nut salters and baking trades.

Retail sales of shelled Brazils are increasing, however, and some large food markets are beginning to carry the shelled variety in one-fourth and one-half pound packages.

Because of the favorable price of Brazil nuts in recent years, candy manufacturers are finding new uses for them, especially in candy bars. Bakers use them as an ingredient in cakes, cookies and hot breads and as a nut trim for these products.

Here's a recipe in which whole Brazil nuts are used so that, when the cake is cut, the nuts make a polka dot effect in each slice. The Brazil nut cake should be stored in the refrigerator or home freezer.

It can be made way ahead of the holidays, for it keeps for months.

No-Bake Brazil Nut Fruit Cake.

One pound graham crackers.

One and one-half cups seedless raisins.

One-half pound pitted dates, cut up.

One cup (eight ounces) diced, mixed glazed fruit.

One eight-ounce jar maraschino cherries, drained.

One-third cup orange juice.

One-half cup sugar.

Twe-thirds cup unsulphured molasses.

One teaspoon vanilla.

One teaspoon grated orange rind.

One-fourth teaspoon each, cinnamon, nutmeg, cloves.

One-eighth teaspoon each, allspice, ginger.

Line a nine and one-fourth by five and one-fourth by two and three-fourths-inch loaf pan, or two loaf pans, seven and one-fourth by three and one-half by two inches with two strips waxed paper, extending paper three inches above rim. Set aside. Put Brazil nuts in a large mixing bowl. Finely crush graham crackers with a rolling pin; add to Brazil nuts with raisins, dates, glazed fruit and maraschino cherries. Soften gelatine in orange juice; place over boiling water and stir until gelatine is dissolved. Add sugar; stir until dissolved. Pour molasses into large bowl of electric mixer; add gelatine mixture, vanilla, orange rind and spices. Beat on highest speed of electric mixer 15 minutes. Add to Brazil nut-fruit mixture; blend thoroughly with spoon. Turn into prepared pan, pressing with spoon. Fold waxed paper over cake, press down with hands. If desired, garnish with additional maraschino cherries and sliced Brazil nuts. Chill in refrigerator six to eight hours. To store, wrap in aluminum foil and keep in refrigerator.

If desired, commercial marshmallows may be used in place of the homemade marshmallow mixture. Substitute one pound commercial marshmallows for the gelatine, sugar and molasses. Cut marshmallows with scissors; place in top of double boiler. Increase orange juice to three-fourth cup. Add to marshmallows with orange rind and spices. Place over boiling water, stirring occasionally, until marshmallows are melted. Continue as directed.

Old English Style.

Old English style fruit cake chock full of rich nuts and bright fruits from all over the world is particularly tempting when served sliced and topped with a tangy sauce. The fruit cake, which you will find waiting for you at your grocer's ready-to-eat cake department, cuts easily if you chill first and use a sharp knife, wiping it after each slice with a moist cloth.

LEMON SAUCE

One-half cup sugar.

One-fourth teaspoon salt.

One teaspoon grated lemon rind.

One tablespoon cornstarch.

One cup water.

Three tablespoons lemon juice.

One and one-half tablespoons butter or margarine.

Blend sugar, cornstarch and salt together in saucepan. Stir in water. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and is clear. Remove from heat; add lemon juice and butter or margarine. Mix well. Makes one and one-fourth cups sauce.

ORANGE SAUCE

SPICY LEMON SAUCE

Follow recipe for lemon sauce given above. Add a dash or two of nutmeg to dry ingredients.

CINNAMON SAUCE

Follow recipe for lemon sauce given above. Omit grated lemon rind. Add one-fourth cup red cinnamon candies to mixture after water has been added. Stir thickened sauce until candies are entirely melted. Reduce lemon juice to one and one-half tablespoons. Red vegetable coloring may be added if desired.

STAUNCH FRIEND APPLES, CHOPS

Appetites follow the season. Sharp days sharpen appetites. And a dish such as this Scalloped Apples and Pork Chops is a real aid and comfort in planning and preparing meals for your hungry crew.

For one thing, it is good eating—pork chops, sweet potatoes made rich and savory with tangy canned apple slices, spices and seasonings, all slowly oven baked to fork tenderness.

Then, this staunch friend of a dish is easy to prepare. You can start with whole apples or buy apple slices already cored, peeled and ready to use — no work there. The other ingredients are also familiar ones available in any market (probably in your kitchen supply right this minute).

So this is a dish to serve—and often—for family supper or dinner. You'll enjoy serving it, too, as one of your guest specialties — because it looks so appetizing when brought to the table and because it smells and tastes so downright good!

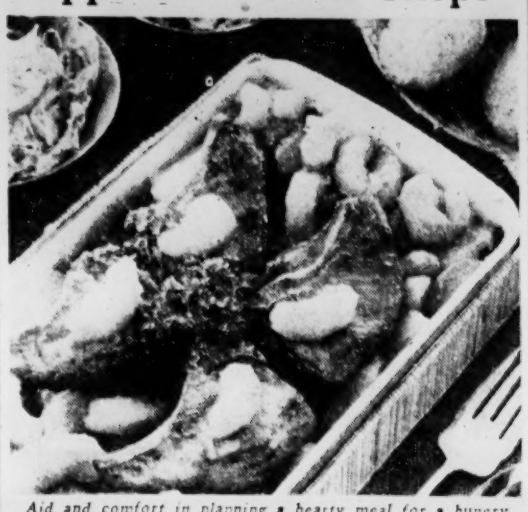
Scalloped Apples-Pork Chops.

Two and one-half cups (one can) canned sliced apples. Four small cooked sweet potatoes. One-third cup seedless raisins. One-third cup brown sugar. Few grains nutmeg. Three tablespoons currant jelly. Three tablespoons prepared mustard. Four rib pork chops, cut three-fourths inch thick. Few grains salt and pepper.

Place an equal quantity sliced apples at each end of glass baking dish 11½"x7¼"x1½". Cut sweet potatoes in thick slices, place in center of dish, between apples. Scatter raisins over all. Sprinkle with brown sugar and nutmeg. Combine jelly and prepared mustard, beat until smooth. Trim off excess fat on pork chops; coat both sides with jelly mixture; arrange on sweet potatoes; sprinkle with salt and pepper. Place two or three apple slices on each chop. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees Fahrenheit, one hour and 40 minutes, or until chops are tender. Yields four servings.

Apples and Pork Chops



Aid and comfort in planning a hearty meal for a hungry crew, whether youngsters or adults is a recipe for scalloped apples with pork chops.

MUSTARD GLAZED HAM---30 MINUTES

Problem: How to create quick meals which have variety and appeal.

One solution: Use frozen, canned, packaged foods and quickly cooked foods, but give them personality with special seasonings and garnishes. A well-stocked herb and spice shelf is your best friend.

Example: Try a dinner which stars mustard glazed ham slice and has a supporting cast of creamy mashed instant potatoes, garden-fresh asparagus and corn bread. Here's how it's done with a total preparation time of about 30 minutes:

Mix packaged corn bread and put in the oven. Heat water for frozen asparagus and light broiler. Take ham slice from refrigerator and broil on one side about five minutes. While ham is broiling, put a package of asparagus in the water and put water on to boil for instant potatoes. Prepare topping for the ham:

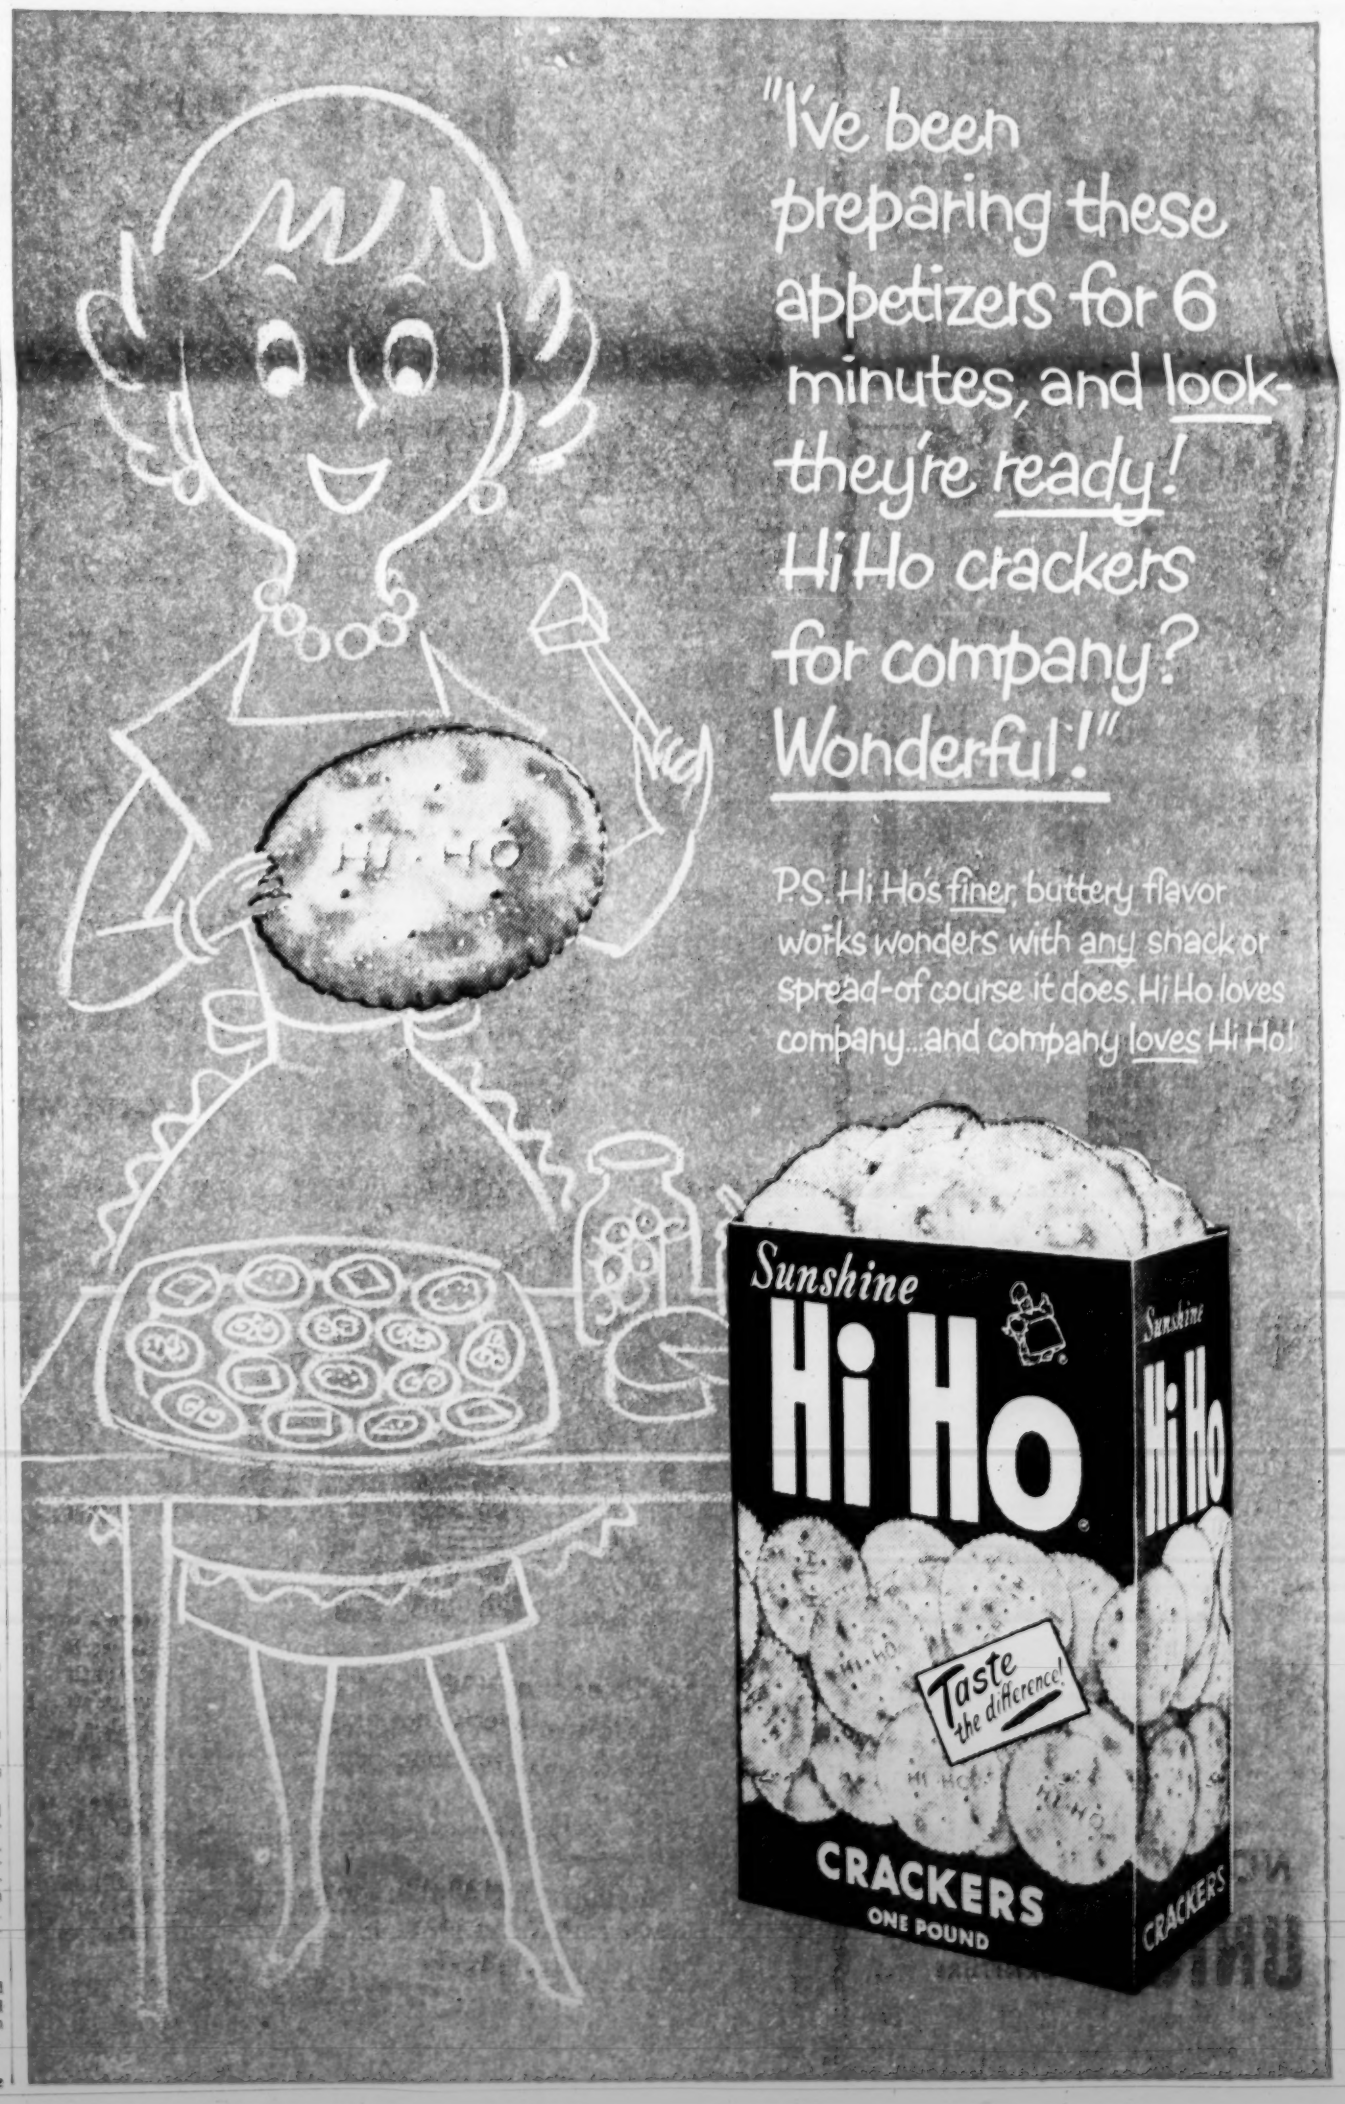
Blend two tablespoons of mustard sauce, four teaspoons of brown sugar, one-fourth teaspoon of onion powder or one teaspoon of finely-minced onion.

Spread this on the other side of the ham slice and broil for about three minutes or until the glaze is bubbly. This will give time to whip potatoes.

Sprinkle the ham slice with toasted almond slivers. Garnish with pineapple tidbits and maraschino cherry kabobs. Serve immediately.

Lemonade Biscuits.

Lemonade biscuits are easy—with the back of spoon, press a dent in the top of each biscuit before you bake them; put in a spoonful of frozen concentrate for lemonade.



"I've been preparing these appetizers for 6 minutes, and look-they're ready! Hi Ho crackers for company? Wonderful!"
PS. Hi Ho's finer, buttery flavor works wonders with any snack or spread-of course it does. Hi Ho loves company...and company loves Hi Ho!

43 EGYPTIANS ARE ACCUSED OF 'LEAKING' INFORMATION

LONDON, Nov. 15 (UP)—The Daily Mail said today Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser has arrested 43 Egyptian officers for leaking military information to France and Britain.

It also quoted "authoritative sources close to the Egyptian army" as saying there has been some dissension between Nasser and War Minister Abdul Hakim because of Egypt's defeat by Israel in the Sinai peninsula.

SAYS HUNGARY PINS HOPES FOR FREEDOM ON U.N.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP) A woman member of Soviet-ousted coalition government in Hungary said yesterday her country is pinning its hopes for freedom on the United Nations.

Mrs. Anna Kethly, minister of state in the short-lived regime of Premier Imre Nagy, said Hungary needs no military intervention from a free world because it would only bring more bloodshed.

"The whole nation is bleeding and the Russians have embarked upon merciless repression," she told newsmen during a visit to AFL-CIO headquarters.

Mrs. Kethly appealed for the free world's "moral and material support" to marshal world opinion against Russia's invasion and occupation of Hungary.

She said that if a U.N. mission could visit Hungary and get the facts of the Russian invasion it would have a "heavy impact" on the world even on the Russians themselves.

BELIEVES HE SAW DR. JOHN CROSS LINE

Prosecution Witness Thinks Former German Official Was Conscious.

KARLSRUHE, Germany, Nov. 15 (AP)—A prosecution witness in the treason trial of Dr. Otto John testified today he was virtually certain he saw the former West German intelligence chief crossing the Iron Curtain and fully conscious.

Gerhard Schmidt, 49-year-old West Berlin customs guard, told the supreme court three times that on July 20, 1954, he recognized John in an American-made car which stopped briefly for inspection and then drove into East Berlin.

Schmidt admitted he could not definitely rule out the chance he had made an error, but he said that on the basis of photographs submitted to him by police investigators he also identified Dr. Wolfgang Wohlgemuth as having been in the car.

John claims that Wohlgemuth, a friend and pro-Communist Berlin physician, drugged him with doctored coffee and abducted him to Soviet headquarters.

John is charged with defecting voluntarily to the Reds and with leaking state secrets to the Soviets during his 17-month stay behind the Iron Curtain. He returned last December and gave himself up to the West German authorities.

MRS. ROOSEVELT DEFENDS BRITAIN, FRANCE ON SUEZ

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 15 (AP)—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt said yesterday England and France had "great provocation" to send troops into Egypt because of this country's "lack of leadership."

She said the United States gave England and France "no hope of leadership" after Egypt's President Nasser seized the Suez Canal.

"I understand their action, but I regret it," Mrs. Roosevelt said at a news conference. She said she did not believe France or England "instigated or had advance knowledge" of Israel's invasion of Egypt.

"Israel acted in self defense. You couldn't expect her to sit like a duck in middle of a pond waiting to be shot," she said.

FILIPINO OFFICIAL PLANS COMPLAINT AGAINST AIRMAN

MANILA, Nov. 15 (UP)—Foreign Secretary Carlos P. Garcia asked five Filipino newsmen today to make formal complaint against a United States Air Force guard who fired over their heads at Manila international airport.

He said he needed a formal complaint in order to file a protest with the United States Embassy.

There has been much friction here because of the Philippine demand for jurisdiction over United States military bases. This was heightened Tuesday night when an unidentified United States Air Force guard allegedly fired over the heads of newsmen and photographers covering the crash of a United States C-119 Flying Boxcar at the airport.

The Filipino newsmen said the American fired over their heads, lined them up in the rain, made "derogatory" remarks about them, and confiscated their film.

The Manila airport is not a United States military installation, and Capt. Andere Miny, provost marshal of the United States military port of Manila, said the guard had no orders to bar press photographers from the crash scene.

EAST GERMAN ANTI-REDS DESTROY SOVIET MEMORIAL

BERLIN, Nov. 15 (UP)—Communist police have arrested four youths accused of destroying the Soviet war memorial at Radeburg, 12 miles north of Dresden, the Communist newspaper Neues Deutschland said today.

Junge Welt, newspaper of the Communist youth organization, said the monument was destroyed by anti-Communist students in a demonstration last week. It said the students carried banners charging that Soviet soldiers "murder freedom fighters."

Neues Deutschland said the Red regime also was attacked by farmers who demanded free elections and restoration of free economy.

Sucked Into Jet, Killed.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 15 (AP)—A 17-year-old airman was killed yesterday when he was sucked into the intake of an F-86-D Sabre jet plane at nearby Lockbourne Air Force Base. He was Airman third class Raymond Michler of Meadville, Pa.

4 ALABAMA MEN FINED FOR ATTACK ON NAT COLE

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 15 (AP)—Four of the six men arrested on charges growing out the attack on Nat (King) Cole, Negro entertainer, last April 10 have been fined for their part in the incident.

Edgar Lee Vinson was fined $50 and given a six-months suspended jail sentence yesterday by Judge Lewis Bailes. A jury convicted him two weeks ago and fixed the penalty.

Three others, Orliss W. Clevenger and Mike Fox of Anniston, and Jesse W. Mabry of Birmingham were fined $50 by Bailes when they pleaded guilty. The four men had appealed convictions in Birmingham Recorder's Court.

Two other men, charged with assault with intent to murder, still await trial. They are Willie ViCnson, brother of Edgar Lee, and Kenneth Adams, both of Anniston.

MIDEAST CRISIS TO BOLSTER U.N., TRUMAN ASSERTS

Only Way to Avert War, He Says — 'Not Surprised' at Party's Sweep in Congress.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Nov. 15 (U.P.)—Former President Harry Truman said yesterday that the United Nations must and will come out of the Middle East situation a strong force.

"If we are to keep peace in the world, it (the U.N.) will have to, or we will have another world war," Truman said as he and Mrs. Truman arrived for rest and mineral baths.

The former Democratic President would make no further comment in the Middle East or other world crises.

"I have no intelligence agency service now and am not informed enough to comment on these subjects," Truman said at a press conference.

He was asked if there was a possibility of a United Nations police force or military aid to Hungary. That, he said, was not for him to say, and would have to be settled by the United Nations rather than by private citizens.

Truman said he was not surprised at the sweep of the House and Senate by Democrats, but added the "glamor and brass" that surrounded Mr. Eisenhower was too hard to overcome.

He predicted another Democratic victory in Congress in 1958, and expressed the firm opinion that the Democratic Congress helped President Eisenhower more than a Republican Congress would have.

Truman said that Adlai Stevenson is a good Democrat, and will still "have a finger in the pie and things to say in the party." He added that in his opinion, Stevenson made a good campaign, but thought the health issue of the President should not have been injected into the speeches.

He was asked about his own relation to the Democratic party.

"I do not want to be boss or organize the party. I am a worker in the ranks and not an elder statesman," he said.

Who would he back for the 1960 nomination?

"That's too far in the future. I am not a prophet, and we will just have to wait for things to jell," he said.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE IN STABBING DISMISSED

A charge of manslaughter against Otto J. Piening, a retired construction worker of the 6700 block of Hoffman avenue, has been dismissed for lack of evidence, it was announced today by Prosecuting Attorney James A. Cole of Franklin county.

Piening was charged after a fight last Oct. 21 in which a hunting companion, Frank J. Wallace, 3331 Manhattan avenue, Maplewood, was stabbed fatally. Piening, 78 years old, said he stabbed Wallace in the chest with a knife Wallace had displayed during an altercation between the two men. He acted in self-defense, Piening told police.

The stabbing occurred on U.S. Highway 66 just west of Pacific as the two men were returning from a trip to Gasconade county with Edwin A. Wood, 3440 Oxford avenue, Maplewood. A corner's verdict of homicide was returned at an inquest at Clayton.

ELIZABETH TAYLOR SUES TO DIVORCE BRITISH ACTOR

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Nov. 15 (AP)—Actress Elizabeth Taylor yesterday sued for divorce from British actor Michael Wilding, charging mental cruelty.

She asked for custody of their two children, Michael Howard, 3½ years old, and Christopher Edward, 1½. She waived alimony but a property settlement dated last July 27 will give her a large, undisclosed amount. She asked for $250 a month from Wilding, however, for support of the children.

Miss Taylor, 24, and Wilding, 44, were married in London Feb. 21, 1952. They separated last July 25. This was the second marriage for each.

"I may never work again," Miss Taylor said in New York as she left by plane for Miami with producer Mike Todd. Todd said he did not know when he planned to marry her. "She hasn't asked me yet," he said.

BURKE QUITS P.S. CO. POST

Gaylord C. Burke has resigned as vice president and general counsel of the St. Louis Public Service Co. to become a member of the law firm of Bryan, Cave, McPheeters & McRoberts, 314 North Broadway, it was announced today.

Burke, who lives at 7339 Westmoreland avenue, University City, joined the Public Service Co. in 1948 as general attorney. He has been vice president since 1951. The resignation was effective today. Burke will continue to handle corporate matters for the company.

TREED HUNTER IS RESCUED

EDEN, Wis. (AP)—Firemen sallied forth from Eden to retrieve a retriever who was treed.

Clarence R. Ochs, from nearby Fond du Lac, shot a squirrel which became wedged in branches after it was killed. Ochs ascended the tree and became lodged in the limbs himself, 40 feet above the ground. A ladder company, summoned by Och's more cautious companions, dislodged Ochs from his perch.

Idaho's New Senator Learned Politics Arguing With Father

Studied Democratic Principles to Join Family Discussion and They Sank In.

FRANK CHURCH

BOISE, Idaho, Nov. 15 (AP)—If Frank Church's father had been a Democrat, young Frank might have wound up as a Republican Senator from Idaho.

But the elder Frank Church was a stanch Republican. And today his son is a Democrat and will be the youngest member of the Senate when the eighty-fifth Congress convenes in January.

Church is a lanky, dark-haired lawyer who looks even younger than 32. Making good use of an engaging grin, a firm handshake and a polished-speaking style, he beat Republican incumbent Herman Welker by some 50,000 votes in the general election Nov. 6.

Church says he started along the road to the Senate when he was in junior high school and his father, who loved to argue politics, used him as an opponent.

Boning Up on Politics.

Besides being taken to hear both sides of politics at party rallies, young Frank had to bone up on Democratic principles and background to hold his own in the friendly family debates.

"By the time I was a senior in high school, I was a converted and confirmed Democrat, much to the amazement of my father," Church said.

By then, too, he had decided he wanted to become a Senator.

His father, a Boise merchant, died in 1950.

Frank practiced speaking and won the national American Legion oratorical contest while he was in Boise High School.

When he began campaigning this year he was virtually unknown outside of Boise.

He got into his automobile and traveled at least 30,000 miles—not counting plane trips and travel with others.

His theme in the primary, in which he beat three other Democrats, including former Senator Glen Taylor, was:

"Let's build Idaho and get away from the leadership which has kept it dormant these last 10 years."

Beat Two for Senate.

Church went into the general election campaign against not only Welker but Taylor as well. Taylor ran as a write-in candidate but polled only about 12,000 votes.

Church continued his frequent state-wide tours. Besides pumping hands and talking to small groups, he made many television appearances "aimed at getting my message to more people than I could ever possibly meet."

Church received his law degree from Stanford after World War II service as an intelligence officer in India, Burma and China.

He married Bethine Clark, daughter of United States District Judge Chase A. Clark, a Democrat who served as Idaho's Governor for a two-year term in the early '40s.

The churches have one son, 8-year-old Forrest, a third-grader in the Boise public school system.

TRAINING ENTRENCHMENTS OF CIVIL WAR DISCOVERED

SCHENECTADY, N. Y. (UP)—Entrenchments nearly 100 years old have been discovered by workmen on the campus of Union College.

College records show that two professors trained a student cadet corps early in the Civil War and the trenches were the work of one of America's first college cadet units.

Airplane Ghost Squadron.

TILLSONBURG, Ont. (AP)—A squadron of 50 World War II planes has been sitting on the farm of Ernest Simmons in formation as though ready to take off, since 1945. He bought the Harvard trainers in 1945 to be repaired and sold, but the government vetoed the idea.

Impromptu Musical Act

—United Press Telephoto.

ELVIS PRESLEY AND LIBERACE PUT ON FREE ACT

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Nov. 15 (AP)—Liberace and Elvis Presley, two of the show world's highest paid entertainers, staged an impromptu act for nothing early today after Liberace's night club appearance.

Presley was in the audience at the Riviera Hotel as the piano-playing television star went through his performance. After the last show, he went to Liberace's dressing room.

With only a slight amount of urging from photographers and publicists Liberace exchanged his gold sequinned jacket for Presley's striped sports coat and from there it was only a short step to an exchange of musical instruments.

Elvis sat down at the piano and Liberace picked up a guitar and in no time at all a rock 'n' roll session was under way. It lasted about 30 minutes, with some 200 persons jammed around the pair.

Said one observer: "Elvis played a mean piano, but Liberace said he was an amateur on the guitar—and he sounded like one."

HENPECK, O., WANTS HIGHWAY SIGN TO PUT IT ON THE MAP

HENPECK, O. (UP)—Residents of this central Ohio community are campaigning to have the state put up a sign on the highway identifying the place as Henpeck.

The state has refused several times on the ground that the community, with a population of only 20, hardly merits being marked.

"There's no finer community in the state," according to Wheeler Johnson, owner of the general store here. "You seldom see anyone here who has been drinking, and there is little profanity in Henpeck."

The modern area has changed the community's way of life. Johnson recalls that before television there often were 15 persons in his store, all from Henpeck and the nearby farms, each night to play checkers and talk about this and that.

There are a lot of stories about how Henpeck got its name. The one generally accepted is that a traveler heard a woman bawling out her husband and called the place Henpeck. It's been that ever since.

EDUCATION FAVORS MORE EMPHASIS ON INCENTIVES

CHICAGO (UP)—A technical educator says greater emphasis must be placed on incentives if the United States is to meet the challenge of an expanding economy.

Dr. John T. Rettaliata, president of Illinois Institute of Technology, expressed this opinion in his annual report to the institute's board of trustees.

"Since the creative individual is a vital link to the dynamic society predicted for the future, he should be cultivated, encouraged and permitted to work in a climate compatible with intellectual prolificness," Rettaliata said.

He said individuals and organizations are most productive when there is a stimulus to research and invention.

Currently, he said, there are several deterrents to the expenditure of extra effort by individuals and corporations. He said these include: the income tax level, commercial restraints and the use of patents as a regulatory mechanism.

REASON FOR TENDER STEAK SOUGHT BY RESEARCHER

DAVIS, Calif. (UP)—Food researchers at the University of California here are making a study of why some steaks are tender and others are tough.

John R. Whitaker, instructor in food technology, is in charge of the project. His first attack on the problem will be to isolate a naturally occurring chemical in steaks that may hold to make them tender. The chemical, an enzyme, has not yet been extracted in pure form.

PANEL STUDIES CAPITALISM

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP)—A research center to teach the principles of the American capitalistic economy has been established here. Called the Princeton Panel, the center will invite leading scholars and researchers to "study how American capitalism serves social and moral as well as economic values."

The panel also aims to show "how the market can be a democratic, free-voting process in which the buying housewife can make or break the producer."

VENEREAL DISEASE ON RISE AMONG YOUTH, STUDY BEGUN

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (AP)—Venereal disease among teenagers, particularly girls, is increasing, the American Social Hygiene Association reported today.

It announced that this rise, after years of a downward trend, has prompted it to undertake a two-year study of promiscuity and veneral disease among young people.

The study, to start early next year, will be conducted among a variety of ethnic groups in rural and urban areas.

The association said the number of reported venereal disease cases showed a steady decline from 1947 to 1954 but had risen in 1955.

GROSS OUTPUT OF FARMS PER-MAN-HOURS INCREASED

ITHACA, N.Y. (UP)—The farm gross national product output per man hour has increased from 75 cents to about $1.70 during the last 25 years, according to Dr. M. C. Bond of the New York State Extension Service.

Bond said the per hour dollar value has gone up 78 per cent in industry compared with 127 per cent on farms.

"Agriculture has undergone a tremendous expansion in the use of mechanical aids to producing, processing and marketing," he said.

Dr. Bond explained the figures for the gross national product as the total value of all goods and services produced by the nation's economy.

Gen. Glubb Cites Red Technique Of Conquest by 'Sale' of Arms

Heavy Russian Weapons Thus Pre-Positioned in Foreign Country to Await Flying In of Troops.

Lt. Gen. John Bagot Glubb, known as Glubb Pasha, was until the Middle East turmoil forced his ouster in March, commander of the Arab Legion. In the following article, Glubb analyzes the increasing Russian military role in the Middle East.

By Lt. Gen. JOHN BAGOT GLUBB

(Copyright, 1956, by International News Service.)

LONDON, Nov. 15—The crisis through which we are passing has shown up with remarkable vividness the new Soviet technique.

In former times, a power desirous of carrying out military operations overseas dispatched an army, complete with weapons and munitions, in a naval convoy. This procedure has changed considerably.

Service personnel need no longer be sent by sea. Whole divisions of troops can be flown across sea and land in a matter of a few hours. But if the transport of personnel has become easy, the rapid transport of material has become vastly more difficult.

The bulk and weight of modern land armament — tanks, guns, vehicles, fuel and ammunition for them—made their dispatch to a foreign country a major operation.

Pre-Positioning of Material.

The ideal solution for a military commander must, therefore, be to pre-position his heavy material in a foreign country in peacetime. This done, troops to man the weapons can be flown out in a matter of hours.

These facts were justification for the British evacuation of the Suez Canal zone. Heavy material was to be left on the site. Troops could be flown back to Egypt whenever a crisis seemed imminent.

Russia has now produced a variation on the smae theme. It is the "sale" of heavy weapons to some small country. Under the guise of such an arms deal, heavy Russian war material can be pre-positioned in a foreign country.

A few weapons are issued to the army concerned. Russian experts can be placed to look after the material under the guise of instructors. But the real object is to store heavy weapons for use by the Russian army itself whenever an excuse can be found to fly personnel in.

Excuse Is Found.

All that remains to be done is to find such an excuse. The present case of the Arab-Israel conflict has been chosen for the purpose.

Everything must be done by Russia to provoke hostilities between Israel on the one hand and Egypt, Syria and Jordan on the other.

When hostilities begin, Egypt or Syria (where Russian arms already are sited) appeal for foreign volunteers. The Russian army flies in—just as the Chinese "volunteers" intervened in Korea.

Within a few hours, a complete Soviet army with tanks, guns and aircraft has occupied another country in a vital strategic area.

The Arab-Israel conflict fades into insignificance beside these moves in the life and death struggle between Russia and the West.

Arab hostility to Israel is merely a pretext which may enable Russia to place a large Soviet army in Egypt and Arabia.

But one thing is certain. If the Russian army were to succeed in establishing itself in an Arab country the Arabs would never again get rid of it.

May Have Countered Move.

It may well be that the French-British landings at Port Said have by a narrow margin anticipated such a move. If Col. Nasser had appealed for volunteers a few hours earlier, the Allies might have been confronted with a fait accompli—a Russian army in Egypt.

Perhaps the number of weapons destroyed or captured from the Egyptians by France, Britain and Israel may have destroyed the whole plot. We don't know how many weapons were destroyed or how many are left.

A buildup of such heavy weapons requires time. Recent operations may have gained us a respite for several weeks — perhaps months.

Soviet aircraft can be flown in at any moment. An armored division cannot.

If our action did anticipate such a plot by a matter of hours, then the reason for the fury of the thwarted Russian leaders is evident.

Lack of Realization.

In view of the cynical and sinister ruthlessness of Russian policy, the indignation roused against Britain and France is terrifying. It reveals a complete lack of realization in the free world of what is really afoot.

We may have been on the verge if world war. We may have been within hours of a second Korea. Port Said may have gained us a respite, but nothing more.

Russia will continue with its plans. At the moment, these seem to consist of provoking an Arab-Israel war, then flying Russian "volunteers" to help the Arabs. The Iron Curtain will then descend upon Jews and Arabs alike.

What we do not know is whether there is still enough Russian war material in Syria and Egypt to make the operation possible in the immediate future.

DISPLAY WINDOW BROKEN, MAN ARRESTED IN STORE

Robert Lee Crafton, an unemployed laborer, was arrested early today by Wellston police in Bailey's department store, 6312 Easton avenue, police said. Officers said he threw a piece of asphalt through a display window, which was wired to the burglar alarm.

Patrolman Norman Hagemann, walking the beat, and two officers in a police cruiser arrived at the same time and found Crafton hiding in the shoe department.

Crafton, 23 years old, who gave an address in the 5100 block of Easton, told police he had been lying in bed thinking that the store, where he recently bought new shoes, would be a good place to rob, and then went out to do it. Crafton, who has served City Workhouse terms for larceny, was booked suspected of burglary and larceny.

$32 CONFECTIONERY HOLDUP

William Moeller, operator of a confectionery at 5101 South Kingshighway, reported to police that eh was robbed of $32 last night by two youths, each carrying a revolver.

He said they entered his store and ordered him to face the wall. "Take the money in the cash register," he told them. They did and ran.

FIVE AFFTON YOUTHS HELD AFTER CHASE

Charged With Reckless Driving and Throwing Glass on Highway.

Five Affton youths were arrested early today for driving recklessly on Gravois road and throwing beer bottles on the highway, after state troopers tracked down their automobile by skid marks on backroads near Fenton. The machine was overtaken at Gravois and Weber road.

Four patrol cars joined in the search after motorists complained about a driver who, at one point on Gravois near Fenton, had made a U-turn with his light out, almost hitting another car. The passengers were shouting insults at passing motorists and throwing out beer bottles, the officers were told.

The errant driver had taken to the backroads before the state troopers arrived, but skid marks enabled the officers to follow the trail.

John A. Signorelli, of the 9500 block of Dorisann court, Affton, a 19-year-old pressman at the Post-Dispatch, was the driver, highway patrolmen said. Three passengers, all 19, gave their names as Walter D. Rhodes of the 9900 block of MacKenzie road; Marion C. Feuring, 8000 block of New Hampshire avenue, and Herbert J. Levy, 9800 block of Arv-El-len drive. The fourth passenger said he was Donald E. Murray, 17, of Concord Village.

Patrolmen quoted the youths as saying they threw 18 beer bottles on the roads and shouted threats at motorists after a passing driver had insulted them. Signerelli was charged with reckless driving, the others with throwing glass on the highway.

BRITON KILLED IN CYPRUS AND ANOTHER IS WOUNDED

NICOSIA, Cyprus, Nov. 15 (AP)—One Briton was shot to death and another wounded in Nicosia today as anti-British rebels intensified their campaign for union of Cyprus with Greece. Last night a 46-year-old Greek Cypriot was killed by unidentified gunmen at Episkopi, a village on the south coast.

The two British victims, both engineers in civilian clothes, were shot down on a street in the heart of Nicosia. Apparently the Britons had been enrolled as special constables. They were armed with pistols but had no chance to use them.

The deaths brought to 27 the number of persons killed this month in a mounting campaign of violence by the Cypriot underground in behalf of union of Cyprus with Greece.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGES IN AUTO DEATH DISMISSED

Manslaughter charges against Curtis A. Vanover, Robertsville, Mo., were dismissed today by Magistrate Leslie T. Lewis at Clayton when witnesses to an automobile accident in which Vanover was involved failed to appear in court.

The chage against Vanover came after Mrs. William S. Stogsdill, 3509 Shenandoah avenue, died as a result of injuries in an accident on U.S. Highway 66, a mile west of Eureka, last June 16. Five persons in the machine in which Mrs. Stogsdill was riding were injured.

KENNETH RILEY TO TESTIFY IN HIS TRIAL FOR MURDER

Kenneth D. Riley, of the 5800 block of Bartmer avenue, was scheduled to testify today in the second day of his trial on a charge of murdering his fiancee, Mrs. Jean L. Hayes, who was shot to death in her apartment at 5887 Cabanne avenue Sept. 27, 1955.

Both were employed at the Procter and Gamble plant at 169 East Grand avenue, and had been going together about two years. The shooting was said to have followed an argument over a telephone call Mrs. Hayes received from another man.

Riley's attorney, Mark Hennelly, indicated in his opening statement that he proposed to show the shooting was accidental.

FLEXIBLE SUPPORTS STAY, BENSON SAYS

Says U.S. Is Headed in Right Direction, Farm Outlook Is Encouraging.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 15 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson said yesterday the Eisenhower Administration would stick with its flexible price support program.

"We're headed in the right direction and we'll not turn back," he declared in a speech at the ninetieth annual convention of the National Grange.

"The outlook for agriculture appears encouraging," Benson said, "our markets are expanding at home and abroad. Surpluses are declining. Farm prices have improved and farm income for the third quarter is 8 per cent above a year ago.

"And of great importance to all, we are moving in the direction of less Government control and regulation and more freedom for the American farmer."

By the United Press.

In Washington, in a speech prepared for a meeting of the Association of Land Grant Colleges and Universities, Benson warned today that continued shift of power to the Federal Government may make the states hollow shells.

Benson said there has been a tremendous shift in the last 25 years from individual to governmental responsibility in many phases of economic and social life. At the same time, he said, "we have seen a rapid shift of responsibility from the states to the Federal Government."

He said the Federal Government 25 years ago received one-fourth of all taxes collected in the United States. Now, he said, the Federal Government collects three-fourths of all taxes. He added that all taxes —federal, state, and local—25 years ago amounted to 14 per cent of the national income. The percentage now is 31 per cent, he said.

"The typical American is inherently a states'-righter by inclination and sentiment," Benson said. "Deep in their hearts, the American people instinctively know that great concentration of power is an evil dangerous thing. They do not need to have it proved."

THOMAS SAYS NAVY IS ABLE TO MEET ALL COMMITMENTS

GREENVILLE, S.C., Nov. 15 (AP)—Navy Secretary Charles S. Thomas said here last night that the United States Navy, the most powerful in the world, "can meet all of its world-wide commitments."

The role of the Navy "is no different now than it ever has been—to control the seas in time of war. It is acting now as a deterrent to nuclear war and can defend our country in the event of war," he said. Thomas spoke to 300 Episcopal laymen at a meeting of the upper diocese of South Carolina.

He said that nuclear submarines, used as launching platforms for guided missiles, are the nation's greatest potential weapon. Referring to the Nautilus, the first atomic submarine, Thomas said it has "exceeded all our expectations . . . and there is no limit" to it "other than the endurance of its crew."

5 INTERNATIONAL GAMBLERS FINED $50,000 IN CANADA

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, Nov. 15 (AP)—Five men were fined $50,000 yesterday on charges of operating an international gambling syndicate, funneling bets from the United States.

The men—Stanley Zedd and Alexander Atcheson of Winnipeg, Leo Schaffer of Chicago, Jules Horwick of Terre Haute, Ind., and Moses Druick of Montreal—paid fines of $10,000 each.

Morality Inspector Jack Webster testified that investigation had shown the syndicate had 244 accounts throughout the United States and that bets ranged from $100 to $10,000. He said profits on some days were as high as $35,000 and there were losses at other times of the same amount.

CORPORATIONS' ROLE AS GOOD NEIGHBORS

Montgomery Ward Head Urges Change From Ignoring of Public.

Corporations prospered though ignoring the public in a past era, but they must now establish themselves as good neighbors if they are to be successful, John A. Barr, chairman and president of Montgomery Ward & Co., said here today.

Barr addressed the luncheon session of the meeting of the National Industrial Conference Board at Hotel Chase. The organization is a nonprofit institution for business and industrial fact-finding through scientific research.

"We need not go back beyond the span of our own memories to a period when 'the public be damned,' 'the employes be damned,' and 'the stockholders be damned,' was more the rule than the exception," Barr said.

"Corporations, in general, lived very comfortably and very profitably under the worthy, though narrow, injunction of Emerson that if we build a better mouse trap the world will beat a path to our door."

Barr said that today, building a better mouse trap is not enough. Improved transportation and communications have brought people closer together and made them better informed "about other people—their desires, needs, problems, successes and failures."

"The growth of interest in corporate affairs," Barr said, must also be attributed, in part, to the fact that corporate business is constantly growing, and more and more people as employers, suppliers, customers, investors and simply as neighbors, are affected, both directly and indirectly, by what the corporation does and how it does it."

Corporations must be good neighbors today, he said, because Americans, while wanting to feel closer to the corporations in their respective communities, "are anxious that we have a respectful interest in them."

"The attitudes of these millions of people is what makes it good business to be a good neighbor," Barr said.

The "seven commandments of corporate citizenship," Barr said, are:

"Be successful, and thereby an asset to the community; be a good employer; be responsive to community problems; be generous and helpful in community charities; be active, literally, in community causes; be accessible and hospitable, and be expressive in letting the community know the facts about your business."

J. W. McAfee, president of Union Electric Co., was chairman of a panel which discussed the business outlook in 1957. Another session considered pay and incentive problems relating to supervisors and technicians who are located between executives and the rank-and-file employes.

Kenton R. Cravens, president of the Mercantile Trust Co., presided over a panel which discussed the financial outlook. Another group examined the patterns of executive compensation.

LEGAL SAFECRACKING JOB

FRANKLIN SQUARE, N.Y., Nov. 15 (AP)—The door stuck on the main vault of the Roosevelt branch of the Franklin National Bank Tuesday and bank officers couldn't budge it.

Twelve professional — and legal—safecrackers were called in. They bored through the foot-thick steel top of the vault. Yesterday after nine hours of work, they managed to get the door opened.

ESTATE OF PAUL DILLON IS APPRAISED AT $12,696

The estate of Paul Dillon, attorney, Democratic politician and friend of former President Harry S. Truman, was valued at $12,696 in an appraisal for tax purposes filed today in probate court here. Deductions for administrative and court expenses, however, reduced the net value to $11,365.

Principal assets listed included 500 shares of Public Service Co. common stock with a current market value of $7000 and a joint bank account with his daughter, Mrs. John F. Weber, 4618 Maryland avenue, containing $4666.

The appraiser's report indicated that since Dillon died intestate, his estate will be divided between a son, Philip M. Dillon of West Newton, Mass., and Mrs. Weber. Dillon died Oct. 20, 1955.

ALDEN PINNEY DIES; ONCE OWNED BENTON (MO.) PAPER

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., Nov. 15 (AP)—Alden Pinney, former owner and publisher of the weekly Scott County Democrat at Benton, Mo., died today at a Cape Girardeau hospital.

He was twice president of the Southeast Missouri Press Association and served two terms as a director of the Missouri Press Association.

Mr. Pinney began working for the Benton newspapers in 1910, bought it from William H. Lewis in 1918 and sold it to the Blanton family of Sikeston on his retirement in 1949. He had done work for the weekly on a part-time basis since then until he became ill a few weeks ago. He was 69 years old.

PROGRESS CITED IN CONCEPT OF 'TOTAL MARKETING'

The concept of "total marketing" is becoming widely accepted and soon new manpower must be trained to use it effectively, Charles W. Smith, president of the American Marketing Association, said here yesterday.

Addressing a luncheon meeting of the St. Louis chapter of the association at Hotel Claridge, Smith said total marketing means integrating all of a firm's sales, advertising, promotion and marketing research under one executive command.

New techniques will be required for the marketing planning task, he said, and developing these will mean promotions and new careers for many.

FEUDING OF BUDDHIST MONKS CAUSES TENSION IN BURMA

RANGOON, Burma, Nov. 15 (AP)—A feud among Buddhist monks caused tension yesterday in Mandalay, where joyous religious ceremonies normally take place at this time of year.

Many Mandalay shops have been closed since a band of yellow-robed monks, armed with guns and swords, killed two other monks and wounded a third there Sunday.

Hundreds of young monks who normally throng the city streets have fled to their native villages. The split appears to stem from an election of officers of the famed Mahamyatmuni pagoda.

Czechs Charge Espionage.

VIENNA, Nov. 15 (AP)—The Prague radio announced today the arrest of three Czechs accused of espionage for the United States. The broadcast said the confessions of one agent led to the discovery of an espionage net and the consequent arrest of two others.

LARGER LEG TENDONS REMOVED

Easier to fix and to carve . . . plump, meatier

GOLDEN WEST
Butterball Turkey
distributed by Mayrose

Juicy tenderness, farm-fresh flavor . . . and something equally as important: more meat, more good slices to the pound . . . that's for you with Golden West Butterball Turkey.

This fine young turkey is specially bred to be meatier. Then, to give you even more sliceable meat, we remove all the large leg tendons . . . and, of course, rush the turkey to you completely cleaned and quick-frozen. Nobody need tell you what good eating that kind of turkey is.

Better order your Golden West Butterball Turkey now. Your nearest dealer is listed on this page.

Fits Easier in Your Roasting Pan. Specially plumped, more compact . . . broad where the pan is broad so you'll never again risk bruising the tender meat by crowding.

Carves Easier . . . More Slices to the Pound. Grown and packed to make the breast broader, meatier. Even the drumstick is carvable. Every large, tough leg tendon is removed.

How to carve a Golden West Butterball Turkey like the experts

1. Place knife between thigh and body of turkey and slash through skin to joint. Separate leg from body by pressing leg outward during cutting. Separate thigh and drumstick at joint. Cut off dark meat slices from leg.

2. Insert fork through ribs under wing and above backbone. With knife make long cut above the wing joint, through the body frame. If desired, wing can be disjointed from body by cutting through skin as fork presses wing away from body.

3. Slice downward with straight even strokes beginning half way up the breast. When knife reaches incision above wing bone, the slice of white meat will fall free. Carve enough white and dark meat for all guests before serving the plates.

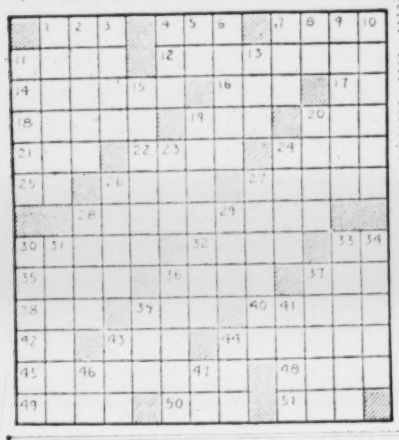
Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle



COMMITTEE ON VOTE MACHINES TO MEET

Election Board Calls Group to Instruct It on 'Nature of Report Desired.'

Plans for a meeting with members of a committee chosen to examine voting machines being considered for use in St. Louis were under way today by the Board of Election Commissioners, which yesterday voted for an immediate examination of the mechanical devices.

By a vote of 3-0, the board asked members of an examining committee appointed by Washington and St. Louis universities to appear Wednesday for instruction "as to the nature of the report desired."

The board directed that the examination of the machines should be "full, complete and unrestricted." It also moved that Shoup Voting Machine Co., which previously refused to submit its machine for examination, be invited to participate, along with Automatic Voting Machine Corp., which had agreed to the test.

Board member Daniel J. Nack abstained from voting on a motion embracing all of these points. He explained that the motion incorrectly accused him of seeking to delegate to the examining committee the board's authority to choose the machine to be purchased.

Board member Isaac C. Orr, who offered the motion, said the board's action constituted acceptance of the committee's position that it will act only as private consultants, not university representatives, in making the examination.

A motion calling for preparation "at an appropriate time" of a study of storage facilities and precinct arrangements that will be needed to accommodate voting machines was adopted unanimously. The May 1955 for purchase and storage of bond issue included $2,275,000 1150 voting machines.

TB SEAL DRIVE GETS UNDER WAY

The 1956 Christmas seal campaign was launched today in St. Louis and St. Louis county with delivery of letters containing seals to 225,000 homes, the Tuberculosis and Health Society of St. Louis announced.

The campaign, part of a nation-wide drive for funds to fight tuberculosis, will continue through Christmas day with solicitations by mail in lieu of door-to-door requests.

Last year in the city and county there were 129 tuberculosis deaths, William D. Walsh, president of the society, reported.

More than 56,000,000 1956 Christmas seals will be sent to persons in this area. They show a boy and a girl dressed in green, each carrying a red, double-barred cross which is the TB symbol. The words "Chrstmas Greetings 1956" lettered in gold on a white background, symbolize the fiftieth anniversary of seal drives.

Receipts from the drive will be allocated as follows:

Ten per cent to the Missouri Tuberculosis Association, 6 per cent to the National Tuberculosis Association and the remaining 84 per cent to the local chapter for use in the city-county area.

The largest expenditure of Christmas seal funds here is for health education services. Nearly 70,000 persons at 800 classes and meetings during the year were reached by members of the health education staff and more than 500,000 pieces of health literature were distributed, Walsh said.

Another activity conducted by the society is administration of free chest X-rays, of which 66,623 were given at 146 schools, industries and neighborhood locations in the 1955-56 program through the Christmas Seal mobile X-ray unit.

Tuberculin patch tests, another method of determining the disease, were made on 45,000 students in public, private and parochial schools in the area. In 1955 there were 604 new cases reported in the city and 166 in the county.

Because of the seasonal and traditional nature of the seal campaign as a low-cost method of raising funds, the Tuberculosis and Health Society is not a member of the United Fund. Persons who do not receive seals may obtain them by calling CHestnut 1-1554, the society headquarters in Room 210 at 911 Locust street.

GROUP SEEKS TO ORGANIZE BIGGEST BANK HOLDING FIRM

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP) —Federal and New York state banking authorities have been asked for their views on the proposed formation in the New York City area of a bank holding company which would be the nation's largest, the Federal Reserve Board said yesterday.

The board said it has received application for forming such a holding company involving the First National City Bank and its affiliate, City Bank Farmers Trust Co., both of New York, and the County Trust Co., of White Plains, N. Y.

The holding company would acquire the stock of these banks and thus control about $7,500,000,000 of assets. The banks' stockholders in turn would own the holding company which would be able to seek acquisition of banks anywhere in the state. The Reserve Board's approval is necessary for the move.

BRUCKER ASSAILS RUSSIA'S 'RUTHLESS' ACTS IN HUNGARY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP) —Secretary of the Army Wilber Brucker last night called Russia's action in Hungary ruthless butchery" and a warning that "America must be strong in every respec."

In a speech to the fifty-first annual dinner of the Washington Society of Engineers, Brucker said the events "should shatter any illusion in the mind of any American that we might safely put our trust in the good intentions of the Kremlin."

"The most wishful thinker surely must now see the smiles and promises of the leaders of the Communist conspiracy as the tawdry hypocrisy they have always been," he said.

CLAIMS RIESEL'S ATTACKER DIDN'T KNOW HIS VICTIM

Witness Says Had Acid Hurler Known Identity He Wouldn't Have Acted.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (AP)—Labor writer Victor Riesel would not be blind now if the assailant who threw acid in his face had known his identity, a Government witness testified today in United States district court.

The witness, Joseph Peter Carlino, has pleaded guilty of conspiracy in helping to plot the attack last April 5. He testified against three others named in the same indictment.

Identifying Abe Telvi, since murdered, as the assailant, Carlino said Telvi had agreed to "beat up a man" as a result of talks with Gondolfo (Shiekie) Miranti and Domenico (Nicky) Bando, two of the defendants.

Telvi told Carlino after the assault that Miranti gave the acid to him, telling him it was faster and easier, Carlino said.

"Bando's beef was that Shiekie did not tell him Victor Riesel was to be the victim," said Carlino. "He did not know who the principal really was no more than Shiekie knew. They were both lied to.

"It was a low trick to begin with because, if the truth were told Shiekie, Victor Riesel would not be blind today or at least Abe Telvi would not have done it."

Leo Telvi, brother of Abe, is the other defendant in the case.

Four others, including labor racketeer John (Johnnie Dio) Dioguardi, will be tried later.

Carlino was the first witness in the trial of Domenico Bando, Leo Telvi and Gondolfo (Sheikie) Miranti. Four others, including labor racketeer John (Johnny Dio) Dioguardi, will be tried later.

Carlino testified that the acid hurler was Abe Telvi, Leo's brother, who later was found killed on a lower East Side street.

Carlino said he met Bando one night last March and Bando told him: "I got a contract to beat up somebody. Do you know anyone who will take the job? The job's worth $500.

The next day, Carlino said, he met Abe Telvi, who agreed to do it.

"I said it was a love affair and this guy was annoying someone else's wife," Carlino said he told Telvi.

'A Little Guy. . . .'

Carlino said Telvi later told him, "He (Riesel) was a little guy and I told Miranti I could take him."

On April 4, the witness said, Telvi—taken uptown for the attack—related that "the time wasn't ripe. They told me to stand by."

Carlino testified he learned of the assault when, a couple of hours later, Telvi walked into a restaurant holding a handkerchief to his face.

Saying he took Telvi to his apartment, Carlino added: "Abie was in terrible pain. I applied baking powder to alleviate the pain. I said, 'How did you get burned? You were supposed to punch a guy around.'"

"I don't know," Telvi assertedly said. "I went up there and this guy walked out. I walked over and called him. He turned and I threw the acid.

"I pulled back my arm to empty the bottle. Somebody's legs got behind me and I smeared my face with it. I ran and a couple of cops stopped me. I told them a couple of guys tried to stick me up and I was running away. They told me to keep going."

Telvi told him, Carlino said, that on the way uptown to Lindy's he was handed a bottle by Miranti, who said: "This is easier and you can get away faster."

"The Boys Uptown."

Throughout his testimony, Carlino referred to "the boys uptown," whom he did not identify.

The Government said yesterday it would not try to prove Bando, Leo Telvi and Miranti plotted the attack, but only that they helped get Abe Telvi out of town on orders from "the bosses uptown."

The three on trial, as well as the four others to be tried later, all were indicted on two counts: One of conspiracy to interfere with a federal grand jury by blinding a prospective witness, and another of conspiring to conceal the existence of the alleged conspiracy, harbor Abe Telvi and cause his unlawful flight to avoid prosecution. The three are being tried on the latter count.

The federal grand jury was investigating rackets in the trucking and the garment manufacturing industries.

The same morning Riesel was attacked, Carlino testified, Bando paid Abe Telvi $500, returned later to pay him an additional $100, brought new clothing for Telvi and disposed of the acid-pocked clothes worn by Telvi.

The witness appeared annoyed with Judge William B. Herlands and defense counsel when they discussed legal objections. At one point, Carlino said: "I'll get to that; let me tell it my way."

Resuming his testimony, the 43-year-old Carlino said he saw a newspaper story on the Riesel attack on April 6 and told Telvi:

"I said to Abie, 'you know what you done? You threw acid on Victor Riesel,' and Abie said, 'I don't know who he is, he is the guy Sheikie pointed out to me.'"

On the Saturday after the attack, Carlino said, he met Miranti and told him: "How come you said some shlub (a Yiddish term for a person of no consequence) was to be beaten up and Abie winds up getting acid on his face and Victor Riesel get acid on his face?"

Refers to Higher-Ups.

"Shiekie told me," Carlino continued, "he was told by the higher-ups to tell me for Abie to stay out of sight for a month or two as they uptown were very much in trouble and very hot and could not leave themselves open for a pinch, an arrest, at any time."

A defense attorney asked Carlino if he was referring to any of the defendants when he talked about "the boys uptown."

"Of course not," the witness replied, "how could I possibly mean them?"

Abe Telvi hid out for a while in Youngstown, O. When he returned to New York, he was killed. Authorities have said he was killed because he demanded more money for the acid hurling.

When the Federal Bureau of Investigation broke the case, they connected Abe Telvi with the Riesel attack and said the assailant had been burned. Telvi's body was exhumed but it had deteriorated too much to tell whether his face had been burned.

PLANT SWEPT BY FIRE; FIREMAN SLIGHTLY HURT

Fire swept through the plant of the General Conveyor & Manufacturing Co., 3601 Salina street, early today. Two alarms were sounded and a fireman was slightly hurt.

BRITISH SALVAGE VESSELS TO HELP U.N. CLEAR SUEZ

CHESTER, England, Nov. 15 (AP)—Britain's naval chief said last night the Government will put a big force on salvage vessels at the disposal of the United Nations to clear the Suez canal.

Lord Hailsham, first lord of the Admiralty, told a Conservative party rally the force being readied consists of 34 ships plus tugs and pontoons.

He said Egypt's President Nasser had planned for months before the British-French landing in Egypt to block the canal if he could not get his way. A score of wrecked vessels was sunk in the waterway during the British-French clash with Egypt, and clearing them out is expected to take several months.

THREE KILLED WHEN U.S. JET RAMS INTO FRENCH BUILDING

KAISERLAUTERN, Germany, Nov. 15 (AP)—A United States F-86-D Sabre Jet crashed into a French ministry building in downtown Kaiserlautern yesterday, setting the building ablaze. The pilot and two other persons were killed.

Fire raged out of control for two hours after the fighter plunged into the top floor of the five-story building. German police listed the dead as the pilot of the plane, a French officer and a German woman employe of the French authorities.

It was the second crash of an F-86-D in this area within four hours. The pilot of another plane was killed and two homes set afire earlier at the nearby village of Schopp.

WARNS OF RADIATION FROM ATOM POWER

Rockefeller Medical Scientist Discounts Danger of Weapons Testing.

By New York Times News Service

ATLANTIC CITY, Nov. 15—A warning that a nuclear power program, even of modest dimensions, may produce "vastly greater" radiation hazards than those involved in the current development tests of hydrogen weapons, was given yesterday by Dr. John C. Bugher, the director for medical education and public health of the Rockefeller Foundation.

He told the eighty-fourth annual meeting of the American Public Health Association that the testing of nuclear weapons at the present rate is a minor health hazard. By contrast, he emphasized, an increased nuclear power program could introduce elements of real danger to a society.

Discounts Strontium Danger.

Particular concern has been voiced over the possibility that one radioactive fallout material—the artifically radioactive strontium 90—might be a hazard for people living today. However, Dr. Bugher said that thus far the amount of strontium 90 found in the bones of living individuals is only one-thousandth of the amount "presently considered to be the permissible body burden for industrial purposes."

"It seems obvious that the basis for concern for the public health is tenuous as far as the present rate of testing nuclear weapons is concerned," Dr. Bugher commented. "The same cannot be said for the prospective enormous and rapid expansion of nuclear power. Even a modest nuclear power program will bring into existence vastly greater quantities of radioactive materials than are produced by the development of nuclear weapons."

Dr. Bugher, a former director of the division of biology and medicine of the Atomic Energy Commission, made his remarks in an address at a session of the National Citizens Committee for the World Health Organization.

Fossil Fuels Running Out.

Nuclear power must be developed in the future, he said, because supplies of conventional fossil fuels will become depleted. The new power installations to be built in the next few decades probably will be nuclear, he noted. Fusion of light elements may be used for power sometime in the future.

Study of the nature of biological effects of radiation, and the means of controlling exposure to the radiation will "become of primary concern to the public health official for the decades that lie ahead," he said.

Technical ingenuity of the highest order will be required to control these operations so that at no time are dangerous quantities released to the environment," Dr. Bugher said. "Good techniques are already available but continued development will be necessary," he added.

INVASION OF SUEZ CALLED BIG BLUNDER

Editors Hear U.N. Reporter Criticize Move by France, Britain.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 15 (AP)—The British-French invasion of the Suez Canal Zone was a "monumental blunder" that increased the prestige of Egyptian President Nasser among the Arab and Asian nations, the Associated Press Managing Editors Association was told today.

Max Harrelson, A.P. chief correspondent at the United Nations, said the British-French move "probably will result eventually in their complete banishment as major influences in the Middle East."

Harrelson, who led a discussion of the Middle East situation, said the British-French action "seriously damaged their relations with the United States and undermined their positions as western champions of international law and order. It increased the prestige of Nasser among the Arab and Asian nations. It left a vacuum into which the Russians were quickly moving."

The explosion in the Middle East, Harrelson said, "was bound to occur."

"If Israel hadn't started it," he said, "Nasser would have. Everything was pointed in that direction since September 1955, when the Russians made an arms deal with Egypt."

The determining factor, Harrelson added, "was the Soviet difficulties in Poland and Hungary."

He said "the principal factor in the cease-fire and the agreement of Britain, France and Israel to withdraw was not public pressure or U.N. action but threats of Soviet intervention."

"All three invaders," he said, "were firmly convinced that Russia would move in and start a third world war."

The Egyptian situation, Harrelson said, is still "highly explosive."

"So much so," he said, "that it could touch off a real war. When will the U.N. be able to get the police units out? And, if so, what happens then?"

Alton Blakeslee, A.P. science reporter, told the meeting the launching of an outer space satellite a year from now will permit scientists to "go beneath the skin of the apple on which we live."

The satellite—and its successors—Blakeslee said, will develop new knowledge about the world, its size, weight and other measurements.

In addition, he said, scientists will be able to determine in great measure the answers to such modern puzzles as whether atomic fallouts can be absorbed in the oceans.

Family of 13 Murdered.

MANILA, Nov. 15 (UP)—Moro (Moslem) bandits have murdered an entire family of 13 persons on Sulu island in the southern Philippines, the Philippines news service reported today. It said 21 persons have been killed in crimes of violence on Sulu since Sunday.

LAUSCHE MOVES TO SEIZE UTILITIES HIT BY STRIKES

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 15 (AP)—Gov. Frank J. Lausche will ask a special session of the Ohio Legislature Nov. 26 for emergency powers to seize and operate public utilities hit by strikes.

He reached that decision yesterday after a conference with legislative leaders, state officials and members of the Portsmouth law and order committee.

The Governor's action stems from attempts to end the strike of the Communications Workers of America against the Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co.

A strike against the company's exchanges in 24 southeastern Ohio counties began July 15. Portsmouth and Scioto county have been without telephone service since the company closed its facilities there Oct. 15. Exchanges in other company areas are being manned by supervisory personnel.

U.S. DRAWS STRONG YUGOSLAVS IN OLYMPIC SOCCER

COLD WAVE WILL HURT YANKS, SAY CANADIANS

MELBOURNE, Nov. 15 (AP) —The United States today drew powerful Yugoslavia as its first-round opponent Nov. 28 in the Olympic soccer football tournament.

The new draw was made as a result of Red China's withdrawal from the games. Only eight teams will contest for the title which is not being defended by Hungary.

The schedule now has Germany opposing Russia in the opening game at Olympic Park Nov. 24. Thailand faces Britain on Nov. 26 and Japan opposes Australia on Nov. 27.

Opponents for the semifinals again will be drawn by lot. Semi-final dates are Dec. 4 and 5. Playoff for third and fourth places will be held on Dec. 7 and the final Dec. 8, closing date of the games.

First-round matches will be played at Olympic Park, the semifinals and final at Main Stadium.

(Four St. Louisans are members of the U. S. soccer team—Herman Wecke, Harry Keough, Ruben Mendoza and Bill Lody.)

Thirty-six Hungarian soccer players who refused to return to their Communist-subjugated homeland have requested asylum in Mexico. It was reported today by the United Press from Mexico City. The Hungarians are led by Ferenc Puskas, rated among the world's top soccer players.

U. S. Coach Encouraged.

Canada's Olympic track and field coach flatly predicted that the heavily-favored "United States athletes won't go so well in this cold weather," but U. S. Coach Jim Kelly insisted he is "highly encouraged" by his team's present form.

Fred Foot, the Canadian mentor, was emphatic in his belief that American athletes who have been training in the sunny climes of California will be hurt by the current Melbourne cold wave but that his Maple Leaf squad won't.

"We trained a full week in 40-degree weather," Foot pointed out. "This is warm to us, and the United States athletes won't like it a bit. We have a good chance for three gold medals in track."

Foot's sentiments were backed up by Canadian Team Manager Bob Osborne, who said he thinks the Canadians can win as many as 10 gold medals instead of the one they captured in the 1952 Olympics.

A U.S. Loss.

The United States suffered a major setback in another sport, the modern pentathlon when it was announced that Bob Miller of Seattle, Wash., probably would miss the competition because of a recurring leg injury. Miller, considered America's top hope in the military style competition featuring riding, running and shooting, was injured on Oct. 17 and team leader Lt. Col. Bill Hood said today, "I'm going to recommend now that he be withdrawn."

Elsewhere around the Olympic village: Hungarian weight thrower Joseph Czermak, who erroneously had been reported killed in the Budapest street fighting, had lunch with American rivals Hal Connolly and Al Hall. . . . The United States water polo team defeated Australia, 9-5, in a practice match and got an invitation to have dinner with the Russian team. . . . A squad of 350 United States athlets stood at attention as the Stars and Stripes were raised in front of the American quarters by an Aussie military color guard. . . . Greek pole vaulter George Roumbainis was selected to lead the parade of athletes into Olympic Stadium on opening day, Nov. 22.

Olympic 'Barber' Finds Competition Keen Down Under

MELBOURNE, Nov. 15 (UP).

THERE'S no singing today in the barber shop of Charley (Deacon) Jones. Jones is a steeplechase runner on the United States Olympic team. On the side, plying a trade he learned at Boys Town, Nebr., he is the team's unofficial barber.

"I've been getting a buck," moaned The Deacon. "But they found out haircuts are only 50 cents in Melbourne, so I've had to match the price."

There were, however, no refunds.

Blasingame All A-Blaze Over Raise---He Smiles Three Times

By Bob Broeg

Don Lee Blasingame, a brooding son of the South, set a personal record late yesterday afternoon after signing a 1957 contract with the Cardinals. "He smiled," said General Manager Frank Lane, amused. "Not once, not twice, but three times in an hour."

The solemn kid from Corinth, Miss., probably the quietest poker-faced second baseman since dead-panned Charley Gehringer of Detroit fame, received a salary increase that, Lane frankly said, was $500 more than the Redbird front-office boss had expected to pay.

"But he came in here, frowning with the weight of the world on his young shoulders, wanting more dough than I'd originally proposed through the mails, yet so self-critical he practically was arguing on my side," Lane said, adding with a smile,

"The change-of-pace approach got me—and got him an extra $500."

High Efficiency.

As a rookie, playing an uncertain shortstop and then a slick second base—he won praise from predecessor Red Schoendienst—the lefthanded-hitting Blasingame batted only .261. But, combining walks with hits, the 5-foot-9, 160-pound leadoff man reached base 228 times, a total exceeded only by Stan Musial (260) and Wally Moon (241) among Redbird players. And the swift little Dixie Dandy grounded into only three double plays in 150 games.

DON BLASINGAME

The handsome 24-year-old bachelor, widely expected to reach stardom, smouldered over his failure to hit for higher average, largely because he batted only .219 against southpaws compared with .279 against righthanded pitchers.

"I took too many strikes against lefthanders, got myself into the hole too often," Blasingame said, and Lane nodded agreement.

No Joking Matter.

"To me, competitively, Don resembles Nellie Fox, another determined little man," the general manager said of the White Sox second baseman. "Fox learned to punch lefthander's pitches to left field and to drag bunt. Why, one year he beat out 27 of 31 bunts—and The Blazer is faster."

Blasingame, restless, came here to look for a winter job as well as pursue contract improvement personally and, as mentioned, successfully. Lane said he'd be satisfied if the kid batted .275 next year, but Don insisted it would have to be .285 at least and 250 times on base.

"If not," said the brooding son of the south, "I ought to start picking cotton."

And he wasn't smiling.

Lane's Camp Makes $75,000 Pitch for Bout

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 15 (UP)—Lightweight contender Kenny Lane, with 10 straight victories under his belt, offere da guarantee of $75,000 today to Champion Joe Brown for a Miami title defense in February.

Southpaw Lane of Muskegon, Mich., registered his tenth consecutive victory last night on a unanimous 10-round decision over Frankie Ryff of New York in their TV bout before 1433 at Biscayne Arena.

Lane, ranked fifth among contenders, weighed 138¼ pounds to Ryff's 140, as he hammered out a 97-95, 98-92, 97-95 victory. Each is 24 years old.

Cousy Loses Temper, Celtics Lose Ball Game

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Nov. 15 (AP)—Bob Cousy blew his top, the Boston Celtics blew the game and almost blew first place in the eastern division of the National Basketball Association.

The great play-maker and scorer suffered through one of his poorest nights as the Minneapolis Lakers overpowered the Celtics, 113-97, in Rochester last night. In the second game of the doubleheader, Rochester came from behind to nip the New York Knickerbockers, 90-87.

Cousy was held to two field goals, almost got into a fist fight and sat out most of the second half. Held to one basket as the Lakers roared to a 55-41 half time lead, Cousy became enraged when fouled by Dick Schnittker on a fast break play and had to be forcibly restrained from swinging at the Laker forward.

Richie Regan and Dick Ricketts collaborated to bring an uphill victory to the Royals. With Rochester trailing, 86-84, with little more than a minute to go, Regan sank a field goal to tie the score. Ricketts then took a pass from Regan and put the Royals ahead 88-86 at the 34-second mark. After Carl Braun dunked a free throw for New York, Rochester lost the ball but Regan stole it back and dribbled in for the clinching two-pointer.

49 National Retriever Trial Entries, Record for 16 Yea

An entry of 49 dogs, largest number of seekers for t national retriever championship in its 16-year history, is liste for the four-day trials starting Friday at the Busch Memorial Wildlife Area, Weldon Spring, Mo.

Minnesota-owned Cork of Oakwood Lane, which captured the crown last year, is one of the entries, the number of which far exceeds the total of qualifiers for any previous year.

This will be the fourth time the duck and pheasant fetchers have competed in the fields and lakes of Weldon Spring. Two years ago the event was won by Major VI, whose owner Fraser Horn died recently at Southampton, N.Y.

In previous years at Weldon Spring King Buck of the Nilo Kennels in Alton, Ill., was the 1952 winner and Beautywood's Tamarack was the 1950 champion. Earlier national trials in the Middle West were held at Herrin, Ill., and Bourbon, Mo.

King Buck Comes Back.

King Buck, a two-time national champion and now getting up in years, is returning for another shot at the retriever title. The Black Labrador dog is one of four Nilo entries which also include the English importation, Staindrop Marton Marksman.

St. Louis area entries include Beau of the Lark, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon B. Wallace Jr.

St. Louis-owned winners of the past include the Wallaces' Ready Always of Marianhill (1951) and Black Magic of Audldon (1945), and Paul Bakewell's Marvadel Black Gum (1949) and Shed of Arden (1942-43-46).

Qualifiers this year come from about 20 states, including Minnesota, California, Illinois, Oregon, New York, Kansas, Idaho, Washington, Montana, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Arizona and Missouri.

BACK WHEN CONNIE MACK WAS YOUNG A BATBOY WAS KING, AND THEN UMP

By Jack Rice

Connie Mack's batboy, aged 77 and named Frank Moran, has been here this week. He came from New Kensington, Pa., to attend a convention that was meeting to make the world better for real estate men; but worthy as the cause is, it fortunately didn't claim his undivided attention. There are things that need remembering about baseball, before all the old men go and the world is left thinking the game always was divided into equal parts, innings and commercials.

Moran's baseball career began in '88, when his grandmother bought him a new pair of shoes. The new, solid footing encouraged him to walk the six miles to the ball park. He saw Billy Sunday, which didn't make the same hit with his grandmother it would have later, because at the time Sunday was still playing the outfield for Chicago.

A boy's eye view of baseball had several angles. A good knife, a basic talent for carving, and an outfield fence could be parlayed into a fair peephole concession. The rent was pins. "Who had money?", said Moran. "You took the pins home and they wound up being used to hold your pants together."

He was 12 years old in 1891, when Connie Mack came to Pittsburgh to catch. The boy who ran the fastest when the catcher was sighted making his way to work, claimed the right to carry the hero's equipment into the park, and onto the field. It stands to reason that after this foothold was gained there wasn't a groundskeeper going who could deport a boy back to the fence-carvers.

Moran was blessed with the speed to succeed, and he became Pittsburgh's batboy. There is an element of sadness in the tale thereafter, a decline that time can't comfort, for by the standards of the day Moran's career in baseball became a clean case of starting pretty near the top and working his way down. From batboy, he became an umpire.

"Being the batboy then was about the equivalent of being the vice-president, as responsible jobs go today, except that nobody objected to the batboy then," Moran said, with a nonpartisan look about him.

Everybody objected to the umpire, a one-man task force that had to spread itself thin covering all the action. Moran said it didn't help when the catcher retreated, sometimes as far as 90 feet, behind the plate and caught the pitches on the bounce. Moran said the umpire could not object to this, as the catcher wanted to stay alive but did not have chest pads, knee pads, or padded gloves to help him do it.

FRANK MORAN, Connie Mack's batboy.

But while in the rear area, close to the stands, many a catcher killed time by informing the nearby fans of the frailties of umpires. That, Moran believes, was the beginning of the noble tradition of umpire baiting, instigated by catchers who had the original television-eye view of the strike zone.

Moran went as far as the International League with his umpiring, but on the way he learned about money. After four years he quit umpiring, to learn more about money, in the real estate business. A large, diamond stickpin under a high collar says he succeeded. He left something behind him for umpires, too.

What he left was a piece of aluminum, chest-size, covered with a quilt that in turn was covered with leather. It was a time-spanning bridge between Sir Lancelot's shield and Jocko Conlon's. Would Moran say he'd pioneered the chest-protector?

"I wouldn't say I didn't," he said.

Loeffler Sidesteps as N.C. State Starts Own Probe

His School Believed to Be Involved

RALEIGH, N.C., Nov. 15 (UP)—President William C. Friday of the consolidated University of North Carolina today began a second investigation of the Jackie Moreland case which brought a stiff slap for North Carolina State college from the N.C.A.A.

It was State's recruiting of the Minden, La., high school basketball star which led to the four-year suspension imposed by the N.C.A.A.'s powerful policy council.

Friday promised to take personal charge of the full-scale investigation of the case but added "we cannot understand" the N.C.A.A. action.

The council itself refused to spell out the charges or to permit N.C. State or consolidated university officials to inspect its files on the case.

Maybe They'll Sue.

There was angry talk from Wolfpack supporters and alumni groups of the possibility of court action to secure an injunction against the N.C.A.A.

Friday, from his office in Chapel Hill, said he would confer with N.C. State Chancellor Carey H. Bostian when Bostian returned here today from a conference of land-grant colleges in Washington.

Bostian, who represented the school before the policy council, told reporters by telephone from Washington that he knew nothing of the recruiting violations charged by the council. Wolfpack Coach Everett Case also denied any knowledge of the violations.

The N.C.A.A. did not mention Moreland by name but said State had offered a prospective basketball player a five-year unrestricted scholarship, had paid him $80 travel expenses to Raleigh and offered a friend of the prospect a seven-year medical education.

Girl Friend Named.

The friend was believed to be Betty Clara Rhea, a student at Centenary College in Shreveport, La. Moreland had come here the day after he indicated he would enroll at Centenary.

Moreland also had signed letters of intent at Kentucky and Texas A.&M. before coming here.

Attempts to recruit Moreland also were believed to be the basis of N. C. A. A. charges against Texas A.&M., which is coached by Ken Loeffler, an old antagonist of Case and once a pro basketball coach in St. Louis.

Loeffler said last night at College Station, Tex., that he did not want to get mixed up in a controversy over Moreland.

He said he and Case are in "different parts of the world now — we're not competing against each other. . . ."

The N.C.A.A.'s decision to continue A.&M.'s probation reportedly was based on evidence that an alumnus had made an illegal offer to Moreland but A.&M. athletic officials denied it.

Bryant Explains.

Athletic Director and Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant of Texas A. & M. said that no matter what the N.C.A.A. thinks, A. & M. isn't breaking either the letter or the spirit of the recruiting rules.

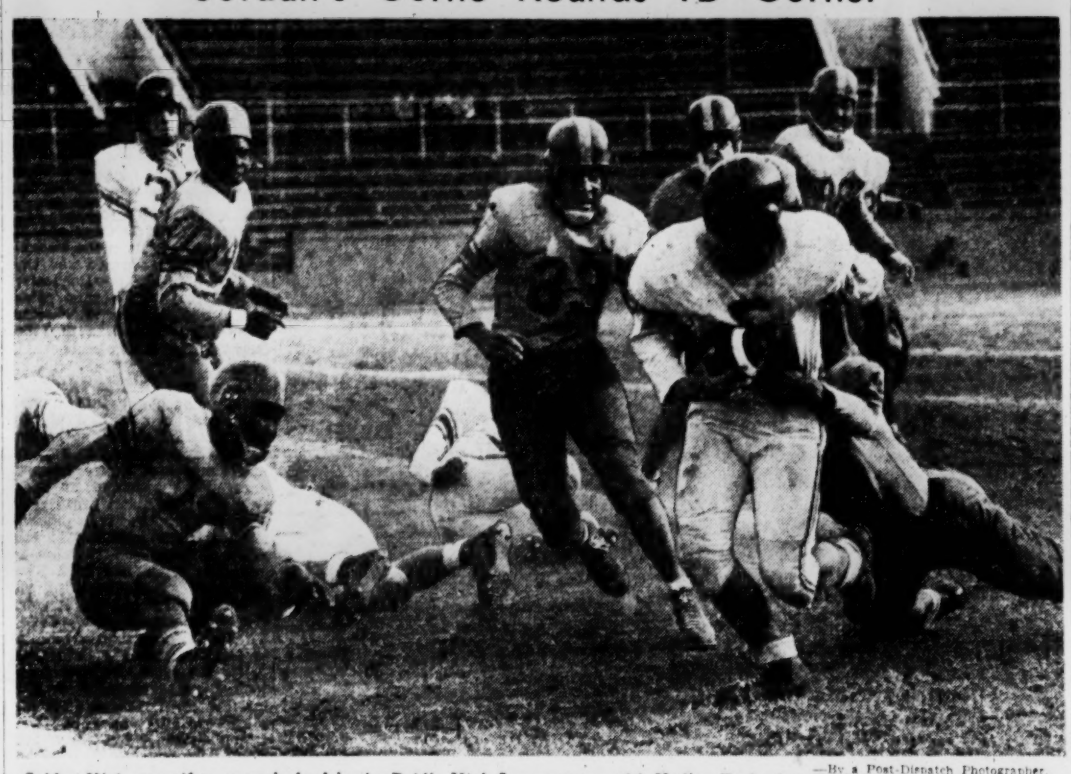
Bryant gave this version of the basketball recruiting complaint:

"When I learned from the chairman of the athletic council chairman that the N.C.A.A. was investigating the case, I gave him a written statement of our overall recruiting policy that we followed in each and every case.

Seven Goals in Last Period.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP)—The New Haven Blades exploded for seven goals in the third period and routed the Washington Lions, 12-6, last night at Uline Arena before a crowd of 1006.

Soldan's Corno Rounds TD Corner



—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

Soldan High was off to an early lead in the Public High League game with Hadley Tech after BOB CORNO (No. 6), Tiger fullback, turned the corner toward pay dirt in the first quarter despite a desperate tackle by a Hadley defender. No. 83 of Hadley is WILLIAM ROBINSON who moved in, without success, trying to stop Corno. Hadley won the game, however, 26-13.

Hadley in Third Place In Public High League After Defeating Soldan

By Harold Tuthill

Hadley's football team moved into third place in the Public High League with a 4-2 record by defeating Soldan yesterday, 26-13, after spotting the Tigers a 7-0 lead. Soldan ended its P.H.L. campaign with a 1-5 mark.

Soldan was very much in the game until the last six minutes. The Tigers of W. O. Sanders tied it at 13-13 in the fourth quarter but Hadley's speedy Curtis Priest quickly untied it with a 60-yard TD run.

The touchdown was Priest's second of the day and his fifth in the last two games for he scored all three against Southwest last week. His total is 36 points, good for third place behind Vashon's Norris Stevenson, who has 42 and McKinley's Charles Miller, who has 38.

Soldan started against the stiff wind which blew out of the south as if it would roll easily to its second league triumph. The Tigers moved 54 yards for their first-period tally, Bob Corno capping a drive in which he figured prominently by going around end for the final three yards. Gil Andresen place-kicked the extra point.

Soldan Leads at Half, 7-6.

Otis Finley's Lions countered with a touchdown on Priest's buck from the two-yard line after a penalty against Soldan moved Hadley up to the one-yard mark. Calhoun Washington's placement for the tying point was to the right and the Lions trailed at the end of the half, 7-6.

Jehoda Gaines, another Hadley speed merchant, broke loose for a 39-yard touchdown run in the third quarter and this time Washington converted, but that 13-7 score was changed in the fourth period when Soldan went overhead for three quick forward passes, the last being good for 25 yards and a tying touchdown. The score-producing combination was from Ben Averbuch to Willie Brown. Andresen failed to convert, leaving the count 13-13.

Shortly after the kickoff that followed, Priest made his 60-yard run and Washington converted. Then near the end of the game Hadley also took to the air for a touchdown as time expired. The pass, good for 25 yards, went from Burrell Ross to Walter Brown. Washington missed the conversion.

Jefferson School Wins.

Pete Lockwood scored on a penalty kick and Nathan Dixon also came through with a goal to give Thomas Jefferson School's soccer team a 2-0 victory over Taylor School.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS STADIUM, Nov. 15—An automatic safety in the first quarter gave Southwest a 2-0 lead at the half in the Steers' Public High School League football game with Vashon here this afternoon.

Favored Vashon had the ball on its 20-yard line with Robert Harrison back to kick. The pass from center sailed over his head and beyond the end zone for an automatic two points.

Play was slow because of the muddy field.

FOUR UNBEATEN TEAMS LEFT---SOONERS TO STAY THAT WAY, DUFORD PREDICTS

By Dukes Duford

Four major football teams, Oklahoma, Tennessee, Princeton and Wyoming, are still undefeated and untied in the 1956 football season. This Saturday the Missouri Tigers face one of those teams — the powerful Sooners at Norman, Okla. Illinois will entertain the Wisconsin Badgers at Champaign, while Washington will hit the road, tangling with Butler at Indianapolis.

Let's get a closer look:

Oklahoma 35, Missouri 14—Not even an Oklahoma cyclone can stop the Sooners from winning their thirty-eighth consecutive victory. I expect them this week to be out to show the sports writers that they belong in first place in the national rating poll. But why take it out on the Tigers?

Illinois 14, Wisconsin 7—This looks like a nip and tuck contest. The Badgers hold the edge in victories over the Illini in the last few years but Saturday Ray Eliot's boys will be out for revenge and they will get it.

Butler 27, Washington 13—The loss of tackle Jess Horstman, who was injured in the Bradley game and who was the Bears' key man on defense, will hurt Washington's chances for a victory—which were slim any way. Butler with a 6-1 record, has a powerhouse this year. It shouldn't have any trouble in this one.

Tennessee 21, Mississippi 10—Even though the Volunteers were keyed up to the limit last Saturday in their game with Tech, they will be ready for the Rebels. Mississippi is a good offensive team—but so are the Vols.

Michigan State 14, Minnesota 7—Those Spartans can be tough when they want to be and this Saturday they are out to defeat the Gophers who seem to have lost their offensive punch ever since they played Michigan three weeks ago.

Texas A&M 27, Rice 7—Now that the National Collegiate Athletic Council has ruled the Aggies ineligible for Bowl competition, you can bet your life they will be out to get even with somebody this Saturday. It's too bad that the Rice Owls are in the way.

Yale 21, Princeton 20—The law of averages favors the Bulldogs to defeat Princeton, one of the nation's four major undefeated teams. It could go either way. It will be a rip snorter.

Michigan 28, Indiana 7—The Wolverines still have a chance for that trip to Pasadena on New Year's day, so there's plenty of incentive left for them to run up a big score against the Hoosiers.

Arkansas 21, Southern Methodist 14—The Razorbacks who always seem to finish strong, will be playing this one at home. They'll have trouble with the Mustangs who are still in good position to win a bid to the Cotton Bowl. It will be a game worth seeing.

Pittsburg 20, Army 13—The Cadets have been scoring a lot of touchdowns the last two Saturdays but the opposition hasn't been too strong. The Panthers on the other hand have proved themselves tough against strong opposition.

Georgia Tech 27, Alabama 7—Even though the Crimson Tide has been getting stronger week by week, it doesn't have a chance against Tech which will be out to make up for the loss suffered last Saturday against Tennessee.

Notre Dame 27, North Carolina 13—The Irish can't go on losing forever. This game will do much to restore their confidence for the remaining games against Iowa and Southern Calif.

Oregon State 35, Idaho 7—This game should just about clinch the Conference championship as well as the Rose Bowl bid for the Beavers. They deserve both.

The rest on the run:

Purdue over Northwestern, Miami (Fla.) over Clemson, Dartmouth over Cornell, Mississippi State over Louisiana State, Auburn over Georgia, Navy over Virginia, Kansas State over Iowa State, Harvard over Brown, Dayton over Wichita, Columbia over Pennsylvania, Oklahoma A.&M. over Detroit, U.C.L.A. over Kansas, Stanford over Washington, Baylor over Nebraska, Vanderbilt over Tulane, Holy Cross over Marquette, T.C.U. over Texas, South Carolina over Maryland, Tulsa over Texas Tech, Duke over Wake Forest, Penn State over North Carolina State, Syracuse over Colgate, Colorado over Utah, and Wyoming over Brigham Young.

Duford's 'Special'

Ohio State 20, Iowa 14—The Hawkeyes will be sure to represent the Big Ten in the Rose Bowl game at Pasadena on New Year's day if they can get by the Buckeyes on Saturday. They have a good chance because pressure will be on both teams. Ohio State will be trying to win to keep its Conference consecutive victory record alive, and the Hawkeyes for a sure trip to the West Coast. It will be a game worth seeing. Do you know anyone with an extra ticket?

YONKERS, N.Y., Nov. 15 (AP)—Magic Trick paid $118.50 for $2 last night in winning the featured Fern Park pace at Yonkers Raceway.

Colder weather has spread over the Dakotas and the Upper Mississippi Valley, except southeast Minnesota, with temperatures ranging from 10 degrees above zero in western North Dakota to 15 to 20 in South Dakota, and 20 to 40 in Minnesota. A rising trend has set in over northern portions of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba. Cloudy weather prevails over the North-Central States and Manitoba, with light snow in Minnesota, eastern South Dakota and southern Manitoba. Snow depths in Canada range up to 8 and 9 inches in Manitoba and up to 3 and 4 inches in western South Dakota.

Indications are for heavy snow, with strong northerly winds and turning considerably colder in eastern South Dakota and much of Minnesota this afternoon and tonight. Elsewhere in North-Central sections skies will be partly cloudy, and temperatures will show an upward trend in western portions of the Dakotas tomorrow.

Santee Says Olympic Stars Took 'Extras'

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (UP)—Suspended track star Wes Santee declared in a magazine story today that he could "decimate" the United States Olympic team now in Australia by telling what he knows of rules violations by other stars.

Santee, barred from amateur competition by the A.A.U. for accepting excessive expense money, said in a story under his by-line in the Nov. 19 issue of Life Magazine:

"Most of the post-collegians on our 1956 Olympic track team are as guilty as I, but I don't plan to blow the whistle on them . . . if I talked it would decimate the U. S. team. This would be particularly foolish since we all know how other nations competing in the Olympics, especially Russia, subsidize their athletes."

Santee also said, "Last year I was offered—and given—more than $10,000 for running the mile . . . of the $10,000, I spent a good portion in traveling and living expenses on the road."

M.V.P. Award Gives Mantle Extra Salary Wedge

Vote for Yankee Is Unanimous

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (AP)—If Mickey Mantle needs any ammunition for his $50,000 salary bid, he can point to his unanimous election as Most Valuable Player in the American League.

Only once before in the voting by the Baseball Writers Association of America has a player placed first on the ballots of all of the 24 members of the committee, three from each league city. Al Rosen of Cleveland had that distinction in 1953 when he led in homers and runs-batted-in, but lost the batting title by a point to Mickey Vernor.

Mantle's selection as Most Valuable was a foregone conclusion when he swept the triple batting crown with a .353 average, 13 runs-batted-in and 52 home runs. His unanimous victory wasn't made official until the votes were opened and counted yesterday.

Everybody's Leader.

Actually, the 25-year-old New York Yankee center fielder won the "triple crown" of the majors. His marks were higher than corresponding figures in the National, where Hank Aaron of Milwaukee won the batting at .328, Stan Musial of St. Louis led with 109 R.B.I.s and Duke Snider of Brooklyn was tops with 43 homers. The last to lead both leagues in all three divisions was Ted Williams of Boston in 1942.

It was Mantle's first M.V.P. award in the greatest of his six seasons at Yankee Stadium. In addition to his three big victories, Mantle topped both leagues in runs scored, 132, and slugging percentage, .705.

A threat to Babe Ruth's all-time homer record of 60 set in 1927, Mantle finally lost out due to an extended slump in September. During most of the season he held a comfortable lead on the Babe's figures but he fell victim of Ruth's September pace of 17 homers.

Those Solid Yankees.

Mantle's sweep and the solid second-place vote for teammate Yogi Berra emphasized again the ease with which the Yanks won the pennant. Yogi, a three-time M.V.P. winner in 1951-1954-1955, was second on nine ballots and third on 10. He and Mantle were the only players to be named on all 24 votes.

The point total, figured on the basis of 12 for first, nine for second and so on down to one for tenth, found Mantle with a maximum 336 points to 186 for Berra.

The first 10, with point scores:

1. Mickey Mantle, New York — 336
2. Yogi Berra, New York — 186
3. Al Kaline, Detroit — 142
4. Harvey Kuenn, Detroit — 80
5. Billy Pierce, Chicago — 75
6. Ted Williams, Boston — 70
7. (Tie) Bob Nieman, Baltimore — 55
   Gil McDougald, New York — 55
9. Vic Wertz, Cleveland — 45
10. Bob Lemon, Cleveland — 40

LADUE'S COACH OF CHAMPIONS IS A CANDIDATE FOR MISSOURI U. JOB

By John J. Archibald

Bob Davis, a prep coach who believes high school football players can be taught the same things as college players and has four years of excellent results to prove it, is one of the candidates for the coaching job at the University of Missouri. Davis, one of many Don Faurot-trained players coaching in the St. Louis area, led Ladue High to four consecutive first-place finishes, and the superintendent of Ladue schools, Ivan C. Nichols, is among a group urging Mizzou officials to give Bob consideration.

"We'd hate to see Bob leave us," said Superintendent Nicholas, "but we know that it won't be long before we'll be losing him to some college, so naturally we'd like our state university to get him. A number of football-wise persons not only in Ladue, but throughout the county, believe Davis is well qualified to take over when Don Faurot retires as coach at the end of the season."

Davis, who has devoted much of his 31 years to intensive study of the game of football, said he hasn't applied for the Missouri U. position but that he'd certainly be happy to get the opportunity. He was a Tiger backfield reserve after the war.

Ladue has finished at the top of its division of the Suburban League all four years it has been a member. Davis's Rams were undefeated in league play in 1953 and 1954, shared the title last year after suffering a single loss, and were unbeaten champions this season. Playing a schedule in which the majority of the opponents have larger enrollments than Ladue, the school has a four-year overall record of 25 and 7.

BOB DAVIS

Davis doesn't go along with the idea that high school players must be taught a highly simplified version of football.

"Teen-aged boys can be taught just as many fine points of the game, complicated plays and numerous variations of these plays as college players," said Davis, "if enough time is devoted to the teaching. Ladue doesn't practice any longer than most other schools, but we do concentrate on using our time economically."

And that may be the key factor in Davis's success—a college-like practice routine that has every player working every minute he is on the field.

Davis, a split-T man, is an admirer not only of his own former coach, Faurot, but of some of Don's favorite enemies. Oklahoma's Bud Wilkinson is one. Davis has spent parts of four summers with Wilkinson at a boys' camp in Michigan and for the past five years he has sat in on part of the Sooners' spring practice.

"We just shoot the breeze mostly," said Davis of his sessions with Wilkinson. "At camp we may be playing bridge or golf, but the conversation usually sticks to football. When I'm at Oklahoma's spring drills I just watch how things are done, then sometimes I help Bud check players' performances on films."

Other coaches that Davis has learned from during the summer camp sessions include Murray Warmath of Minnesota, Pete Elliott of Nebraska and Bill Meek of Houston.

One of the things Davis acquired from the experts is a respect for the value of paper work. Ladue players start getting matter from their coach in early August, a series of weekly letters suggesting how the boys can get themselves in condition and in other ways developing a frame of mind suitable for football.

When pre-season practice actually begins, each player receives a 15-page booklet on drills. Then every day of the season Davis issues a mimeographed bulletin of from two to four pages in which that day's practice is outlined, coaches are given instructions about specific players, and virtually every member of the 45-man squad is assigned to a certain type of work.

Pre-practice is a Ladue custom. Players are paired off in advance and as soon as they reach the practice field they start working with each other on certain plays. Each back is assigned to an end to drill on pass plays, a quarterback, fullback and center are grouped so they may work together on faking.

"That way," explained Davis, "if there is a delay because a few boys are getting their ankles taped or some such reason, no time is lost. Instead of having the boys just lobbing the ball around aimlessly, they are doing something useful. That usually goes on for about 15 minutes, then the regular practice starts."

A Full Staff.

Helping Davis this season were Charles Young, coaching the ends; Steve Neilson, line; Elmer Schweiss, guards; and Don Schroeder, Len Schneider and Ed Velten on various assignments. These men also coached the freshmen and sophomore teams.

"Once the season has begun, we rarely scrimmage," Davis said. "I feel that so much of football depends on agility and timing that we usually concentrate on drills that improve these techniques. Sometimes we go an entire week between games without putting the pads on. It cuts down on injuries, and meanwhile the boys are learning something they wouldn't learn in scrimmage."

Spink Receives Elks' Celebrity Award Tonight

The award, limited to persons native to or residents of St. Louis, will be made by the Elks Club at a 6:30 dinner before about 600 persons at the organization's headquarters, 3619 Lindell.

Spink's name will be inscribed on the Elks' trophy along with five previous winners of the award—Stan Musial, Enos Slaughter, Red Schoendienst, Ed Furgol and Marty Marion.

The principal talk will be made by Frank Lane, general manager of the Cardinals, and the presentation remarks by Robert L. Barnes, Globe-Democrat sports editor.

Angela Mica Follows Up 701 With 723 Total

Score Is Highest For U.S.

Angela Mica, former Missouri State all-events titleholder who rolled a 1956-57 season record score of 701 last week, bettered her own mark last night at Bowl-Mor Lanes by shooting a 723 total.

Miss Mica's score is the season high for the United States, topping the 716 by June Llewellyn of Cleveland, according to latest W.I.B.C. statistics.

Mrs. Berdie Speck, secretary of the St. Louis Women's Bowling Association, stated that this was the first time any St. Louis woman bowler had ever registered 700 totals in two consecutive weeks. The 723 is the highest score in the area since Mary Holtsclaw tallied 731 during the 1953-54 season.

Miss Mica, who serves as an assistant at the Bowling Esquire, had games of 257, 243 and 223 for her 723 total. She is a member of the Slays in the Bowl-Mor Banner League. Rolling on alleys Nos. 9 and 10, the Slays registered a team high three of 2809 to win two games from the Southern five. Miss Mica's 701 was rolled on alleys Nos. 1 and 2.

Jackie Young's 713 was the top total bowled last season, and Betty Schneider paced the previous season with 708.

Buds Roll 13th 3000 in a Row For New Record

A few more seasons and the Budweisers may have bowling's record book rewritten. The Buds set another mark last night in the Masters League at Floriss Lanes when they rolled their thirteenth consecutive series of 3000 or better. There was no pressure whatever as the Buds opened with an 1182 game and finished with a three-game total of 3307.

The best previous string, according to A.B.C. records, was 12, by the Suffrin team of Detroit in 1945. In breaking the record, the Budweisers won three games from Fix Mix, and added a game to their lead over the Falstaffs, who won two out of three from Plaza. The Buds, who will meet the Chicagoans next Wednesday in a preview of their January battle for the national match-game title, lead by four and one-half games.

The Falstaffs tore things apart in their first and last games, 1174 and 1135, but skidded to a 995 in the middle, and Plaza, with 1104, won easily. Carl Richard, the big Kansas newcomer to the Falstaffs, led his team with 683. Lee Haefner had 708 for Plaza.

The third-place Pulaskis won two from Lindenbusch and H. & B. won two from Vendeen.

Dennis Chapis, bowling in the Masters' Three-Man Scratch League that follows the regular Masters' action, came through with a 746 total, including a 280 high single.

Col. Frank Thompson, U.S.A. (Ret.) – Chairman of the Board, Glenmore Distilleries

Col. Thompson Believes in Fresh Air...

"We don't believe in aging our Old Kentucky Tavern in artificially-heated warehouses – the way mass-produced whiskies are aged," says Col. Thompson.

"Our special warehouses breathe fresh air. It's costlier for us this way, because evaporation steals more of our whiskey. But what's left has been so smoothed by Nature's changes in temperature and season that, in my opinion, it's the finest Bonded Bourbon made.

"I'd like to have you try some. I do believe you'll find it remarkably good."

Possum Trot Farm

Birds and Beer Cans Among the Roses

By Leonard Hall

ON a fine afternoon last week, I hiked over to the Huff Field west of the highway. I wanted to see what recovery the grass had made there since the recent showers—and whether there was any water in the little pond—so that we might move some cattle over there to graze until winter comes in earnest. The highway here runs through the farm for a distance of about a half-mile and our fields on both sides of the road are bordered with hedges of multiflora rose. Some of our neighbors point out that these hedge fences have disadvantages, the chief one being that they can't look over into the fields to see how our cattle are doing. Yet we find the hedges attractive; fragrant in late May and June with masses of white blossoms and bright throughout autumn and winter with scarlet fruits. These are actually the ripening seed pods of the plant and are called "rose hips" by our British cousins, from an old Anglo Saxon word, "heope," meaning seed. We also find that the rose hedges make excellent fences; quite impenetrable to livestock or human beings, once they matured, and providing excellent cover for birds and small furbearers. Hiking along the hedges inside the fields, it was interesting to note the number of bird's nests which were of many kinds and sizes and located at different heights from the ground. Sometimes the nests were close together, sometimes quite far apart; this depending, I suspect, on the size of territory needed by the individual species for insect hunting and seed collecting during the nesting period. On the average, however, I would estimate a nest every 50 feet or a total of not less than 70 pairs of nesting birds in this one stretch of hedge which would mean more than 200 pairs for all the hedges on the farm.

★ ★ ★

POSSIBLY BECAUSE of the unusual amount of fruit on the roses this year, the hedges were alive with birds and I made a rough census as I hiked along. This came to 17 mockingbirds, 10 pairs of cardinals, 15 cedar waxwings, a covey of 15 quail, two shrikes, a dozen meadowlarks, two doves, some 40 white-throated and white-crowned sparrows and an almost countless number of juncos and smaller sparrows that included the field, chipping, song, fox, eastern tree and some others which I didn't identify. Thus in a landscape which has constantly less room for song and game birds, the multiflora hedge affords a haven of safety during the time when they raise their young, as well as shelter and considerable food during the less hospitable months of the year. We'll be glad when the seasons of normal rainfall come again so we can resume our hedge-planting program, the survival of plantings during the drouth years having been too small to make the effort worthwhile.

★ ★ ★

AS I CAME OUT of the Huff Field gate onto the highway, I was struck immediately by the amount of human flotsam and jetsam, chiefly in the form of beverage cans, which was visible without moving from this one spot. The count from where I stood ran to 17 cans; one wine and one whisky and five soft drink bottles, a bedraggled and unidentifiable under-garment and an undetermined number of paper cups, picnic papers and other trash. This led me into a bit of serious scientific research into the touring habits of the species "homo sapiens"—and then on into some philosophical consideration of the esthetic responsibility of the purveyors of the trash which litters our highways all across America.

★ ★ ★

THE ACTUAL DISTANCE for which the highway traverses our farm is something less than 2000 feet—or double that for both sides of the road. I walked down the shoulder on one side of the road to where his property ends at Reed creek and then back on the other. As you can readily guess, the incidence of trash was far greater than the incidence of birds nests—far greater, even, than the incidence of living birds. It ran at the rate of one trash item per four feet, as close as I could calculate. The common disposal method for soft drink bottles seems to be not to throw them, but to hold them just outside the car window and drop them where they will break on the highway shoulder and do the most damage. Oddly enough, the tossers of bottles which originally contained less harmless beverages seem to be in a softer and merrier mood, for these bottles are generally flung a fair distance from the car window.

★ ★ ★

AN INTERESTING PART of my research—which I will be delighted to pass along for a fair price to some advertising agency—had to do with brand preference on the various brews which have helped make St. Louis famous. Beverage cans averaged one every six feet, thus being by far the most numerous of the trash items and out-numbering soft drink bottles by almost 10 to one on both the north and south routes. Something over 80 per cent of beverage cans carried the names of St. Louis makers, which speaks well for the dispensatory efforts of our manufacturers. As for brand preference, the percentages ran roughly 45, 20, 10 and 5; with the remaining 20 per cent scattered over a large number of "foreign" makers.

WALKING HOME down our country road, I pondered the philosophical aspects of this problem which has become a very serious one on every highway in the nation. We know this to be true because on our lecture trips each winter we drive many thousands of miles and have long had the custom of carrying our lunch with us and eating beside the road. This has the advantage of enabling us to see more of the countryside, as well as avoiding the vast concourse of "greasy spoon" restaurants which clutter the small towns of America—and this with due apology to the occasional good eating place which may be found by diligent search. Sadly, however, some 90 per cent of picnic sites are trash littered. It seems to me the only way we'll ever teach the traveling public—or shame it—into cleaning up after itself is through a real job of education. It likewise seems to me that primary responsibility for this job of education rests with the manufacturers who provide the litter. Today most of them salve their consciences by donating a fraction of 1 per cent of their advertising appropriations to organizations such as "Keep America Beautiful," but it's going to take a lot more than this to get the job done.

Try and Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

FOR his seventh birthday, Johnny received a shiny new bicycle, with strict warnings that he ride it only with extra care. A neighbor found him at the corner a few mornings later, forlornly gazing at the bike's chain which had come off the sprocket.

The neighbor made the necessary repairs, smearing his new suit with mud in the process.

"There you are, Johnny," he announced, conscious of having performed his good deed for the day. "Now that you're seven, you'll soon be able to fix loose chains like that yourself."

"Shucks!" said Johnny. "I can do it faster than you now—but I don't like to get my hands dirty."

Oh, Deer! Don't Let It Throw You

Many Persons Consider Venison a Treat, but Few Know How to Prepare It

By Hoyt Alden

IF things keep going the way they have in recent years, venison will become as common as hamburger. Each year the deer herds of the country have been increasing, and each year the hunters come back with more deer. This year Missouri hunters, for instance, killed 8000 deer, which set an all-time record.

A whole deer is quite a bit of meat, as a result of which most hunters find themselves with more venison than they can use. They pass it around among their friends, who feel grateful, in a vague sort of way, because while they are under the impression that venison is quite a treat, they haven't the slightest idea what to do with it.

Some try to cook it like beef, and then they're disappointed. As a result you hear people praising venison, and a lot of others saying it ain't fit for man nor beast.

There are some basic rules to follow about venison, one of which is that it has to be stripped of all fat, which isn't edible. So to keep it from being too dry, it should be larded with pork fat or bacon to keep it from drying out while cooking.

It should also be hung for not less than four days, and a couple of weeks doesn't hurt. Then, if it's the meat of a full grown deer, it should be marinated.

IF THINGS KEEP GOING THE WAY THEY HAVE IN RECENT YEARS, VENISON WILL BECOME AS COMMON AS HAMBURGER.

CHOP up an onion and a carrot and a stalk of celery. Make a bouquet of parsley, thyme and bayleaf and a couple of cloves. Cook all this in oil for a minute or so, then add a half pint of vinegar. Bring it to a boil and cook it for a quarter of an hour. Pass it through a strainer, let it cool and then pour it over the venison, which has been previously salted and peppered.

Venison should marinate 12 to 24 hours, but never in a metal container. Use china or earthenware or glass. The marinade not only tenderizes the meat, but eliminates much of the gamey taste.

Here's another good marinade, made with wine, which is especially good for a roast saddle of venison. Use two thirds red wine to one third of water, and season it generously with bay leaves, pepper, thyme, mustard seeds and tarragon.

After it has marinated for 24 hours, lard it well with salt pork and stick in some slivers of garlic. Roast it in a 350-degree oven about 30 minutes for each pound and baste it frequently with the drippings.

Now for the gravy. When the meat is done, take it out, but keep it hot. Add a glass of red wine and a tablespoon of brandy to the drippings and bring it to a boil. Let it boil until it has reduced considerably; then slowly add a half cup of sour cream and four ounces of currant jelly, and stir it well.

A hunter friend of mine recently came up with a venison ragout which he thinks is the best venison dish of all. Like this:

Cut shoulder of venison into cubes an inch or more in size and marinate them for a week in a marinade of three parts red wine to one part of vinegar, seasoned with a chopped onion, two chopped carrots, salt and bay leaves.

When it's ready to cook, line a roasting pan with bacon, heat it very hot, and then put in the venison. Let it cook in a hot oven for 30 minutes, and then add the onion and carrots from the marinade, but not the liquid. Add also two cups of red wine, and enough water to barely cover the meat.

Cover the pan and let it simmer gently for three hours. Then skim off the excess grease and then add enough flour to make a fairly thick gravy. Then put the venison in a dish and strain the gravy over it.

BARBECUE fans like their venison, like everything else, barbecued. First, the sauce: Simmer together a cup of cider vinegar, two tablespoons of Worcestershire sauce, two tablespoons of brown sugar, a cup of catsup, two teaspoons of salt, a half teaspoon of pepper, a minced clove of garlic and a couple of sliced lemons. Let it simmer for 15 or 20 minutes.

Now trim all the fat from the venison and cut it into two-inch cubes. Fry some salt pork in a deep copper skillet. Then take out the pork and use the grease to brown the venison cubes.

Slice enough onion to partly cover the meat, pour in about a third of the barbecue sauce, and then put it in a 350-degree oven. As the sauce cooks away, add more.

In about an hour's time the meat should be cooked and the sauce pretty well used up. Now put the meat where it will keep hot then add to the liquid in the pot enough sweet cream to make a fairly thick sauce. Pour this over the meat and serve it up.

What to serve with venison? Well, red currant jelly is usually considered a must. As for vegetables, the roast of venison is well set off with baked hubbard squash, cole slaw and green beans. The barbecued venison goes well with baked yams, spiced beets and a good green salad.

Other vegetables that go well with venison are baked zucchini, little boiled potatoes, cabbage salad, cooked red cabbage, baked onions and broiled tomatoes.

Learning Is Work Even in First Grade

By Angelo Patri

THERE IS, in my opinion, a wrong idea about children and their lessons. Children like to work. This means they like to be busy about something that calls on their intelligence and ability and skill.

A common complaint of a young schoolchild who goes to kindergarten is, "We only played." He means that he felt a lack of demand for his energy and ability. He felt the need for stretching himself in order to accomplish something and so to grow in stature.

The understanding teacher of little children knows this and meets the situation by offering instruction that makes demands on the children's minds and nerves and muscles. After a lesson that plants an idea comes the one that does something about it. The children call that "work," and so it is.

THE IDEA that arithmetic is "fun" for a first-grade child is not correct. It is work and a session of it is likely to leave him thoroughly fatigued. He should be told he has worked hard and has done well. The same thing goes for reading. Learning to read is work. After his session of work, learning to get the meaning that lies in the sentences, he will enjoy a word game, charades, dramatics. But do remember that all this entails work on his part. Thinking is work; acting on thought is work. All the powers of mind and body are being called on, and when the accomplishment meets reward, most of the fatigue is lessened.

Schoolchildren have a certain dignity that should be respected. The work of study, work and play is dignified and calls for respect from parents and teachers alike. A beginner or a graduate knows he has worked hard to accomplish a goal set for him, and he needs to feel the pride of that accomplishment accented by the appreciation of his elders.

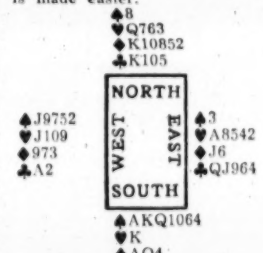
SCHOOLCHILDREN, all children, need the stimulus the idea of work accomplished gives them. They need, too, to learn that work dignifies the worker. It brings the respect of other and older workers and they crave that respect.

It would be a good idea, then, to think about school as a place of work, the work that feeds intelligence, increases self-respect, adds stature to the learner. Fun, the spirit of fun, is out of place at lesson time. There are plenty of places for it, but lesson time should be looked on as work time. This is true from first grade through secondary school. Some seriousness is in order.

Contract Bridge

By Sam Fry Jr.

IF SOUTH hadn't made a bad bid and West hadn't made a bad double and West had guessed the winning opening lead, we wouldn't be able to report South's excellent dummy play on today's hand. We all may seek perfection but even the Life Masters don't come very close to it and contract bridge is a better game for it. Certainly the columnist's task is made easier.



South opened with a spade and North responded, correctly, with one no-trump. South bid three spades and North bid three no-trump. South should have passed at that point. He had already shown his good spades and urged a game bid there and with a reliable partner the nine-trick game at no-trump should now have been more appealing to him. But, we guess, South was 100 honor-happy and went on to four spades. Nothing, but nothing, could have beaten three no-trump.

West greedily doubled four spades, despite South's strong bidding, and that was the start of a well deserved downfall. Doubtful doubles of this sort rarely pay off.

We can't find fault with West's selection of the heart jack for his opening lead, although had he stumbled on the ace and another club declarer pretty surely would have been stymied. East won the heart ace, dropping declarer's king, and shifted to the club queen. West won the ace and continued with the club deuce, dummy's king winning that trick. Declarer threw his club loser on the heart queen and then, mindful of West's double proceeded to shorten himself by trumping a heart out of dummy. (His selection of a third round of hearts for this purpose rather than clubs was a very good—or lucky—decision.)

Two rounds of spades confirmed the break South had suspected (understatement of the year) and he was now very glad he was down to West's level in trump strength. Abandoning trumps, South then led out his high diamonds with a silent prayer that West would have to follow on three rounds, for that was a must if the contract was to be made. When West did follow three times the stage was set for the two "sure" trump tricks, which had been flamboyantly advertised by West's double, to be cut down to one.

West was down to the J-9-7 of spades, declarer now had the Q-10-6. It made no difference what card was led from dummy. South put in his spade six. West won the seven but had to lead away from his jack into declarer's tenace.

Tasty Tricks

For a casserole dish, alternate layers of browned ground beef, tomato sauce and cooked zucchini slices with a little garlic. Top with potato chips or corn flakes.

Carrot Suggestion

On Broadway

By Walter Winchell

FIRST NIGHTS: The critics agreed that Eugene O'Neill's "Long Day's Journey Into Night" (at the Helen Hayes Theater) was the week's major event. The autobiographical drama reaches back into the darkness of the playwright's dismal youth and dramatizes the torment of his home. The pitiless intensity of the high tragedy is magnificently conveyed by Fredric March, Florence Eldridge, Jason Robards Jr., and Bradford Dillman. The N.Y. Times inspector rejoiced: "It restores the drama to literature and the theater to art." . . . The City Center's reprise of "The Teahouse of the August Moon" merited an encore. The reunion was enjoyed by Almost All . . . Chicago was the scene for another O'Neill triumph. The revival of his "Desire Under the Elms" (starring Geraldine Page) was blessed by reviewers. . . . "Auntie Roz" has joined the money-making champs, of course. Others playing to capacity are "Most Happy Fella," "Separate Tables" and "My Fair Lady." . . . The top meal-tickets beyond Broadway's borders are Ethel Merman's "Happy Hunting," Judy Holiday's "The Bells Are Ringing."

Fleeting Youth

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D.

"HOW old are you, young man?" I heard a woman say to a little fellow yesterday as she chucked him under the chin. The mother stood by, looking on proudly. But you could see it was distasteful to the youngster. He twisted his head away and said: "Mom, I wanna go home."

DR. PETER STEINCROHN

Since we have become old enough to understand, we are bombarded by variations on the theme: "How old are you?" As distasteful as it was to the boy the question becomes more irritating as we grow up. We are not allowed to forget that we are getting older. Whether you admit it or not, chances are you are no exception. As a practicing physician I have seen evidence every day of patients' reactions to this prodding, privacy-invasive question: "Just how old are you?"

Really, now! What difference does it make other than ungenerously making another human being conscious of his fleeting youth. And we doctors are more guilty of making people age-conscious (unnecessarily) than any other group in our society. Granted that—for statistical reasons—you must give your correct age when asked by an insurance agent, at the registration table or by your draft board.

But how about us doctors? No sooner have you sat down than comes the inevitable, prying question: "What is your age? It has become a habit. I have been as guilty as the rest of my colleagues until recent years. Then I changed. I stopped asking. The reason? I could not help becoming conscious of the uncomfortable squirming and self-consciousness that the query so often produced.

I HAVE FOUND IT TO BE TRUE at all ages after 21. I recall a very unhappy girl of 22 who—when I asked her age—told me, smilingly, then suddenly burst into heavy sobbing which lasted for many minutes. The explanation? Her best friend, aged 20, had been married the previous week. And the young woman in tears was certain that she was getting decrepit and old. "I don't want to be left an old maid."

Men and women alike are sensitive to the passing years. See how the man or woman who has just turned 40 react. They will joke about it; but underneath you can sense the heavy feeling of dismay and wistfulness.

★ ★ ★

I HAVE HAD THIS HAPPEN OFTEN: I would, for example, in 1950 ask a patient The Question. She might say: "I'm 39." Three years later her answer might be 36 or 40, apparently unaware that her previous age-notation on my chart indicated that she had decided to "stop counting" the passing years.

I am all for the abolishment of birthdays after one reaches 21. Just keep a notation for essential statistical reasons—but not for telling your doctor (or any one else) just how old you are.

Birthdays—except for kids—are a grisly, unnecessary celebration. Forget your age! I met a woman yesterday who is 62. She shouldn't have told me that. She should have said: "I'm fortyish" and have let it go at that. She looked no more than 45, and felt it.

Next time you visit your doctor and he asks your age say: Thirtyish, fortyish—or whatever ish-classification you happen to be in. If he insists on having your correct age, I suppose you'll have to give it to him. Nevertheless, remember this, if you feel like being stubborn about it: It is not essential for a doctor to know how old you are to do a good job in diagnosing and treating.

It's just a bad habit we doctors have gotten into; and I guess we doctors (and you patients) are stuck with it.

'We Die Alone'

Mandal Men Search for Jan in Vain

Arrival of Germans Delays Rescue Attempt; Marius Finds Him Buried in Snow, but Alive

Before writing this story, the author went to Norway to see Jan Baalsrud, hero of this great adventure. Then, because Jan had forgotten some incidents and there were others he had never known, the author and a photographer retraced the fugitive's route to get the facts of his fantastic flight from the Germans (1943) who occupied his native country. This is the fifth installment from the book, "We Die Alone."

By David Howarth

IT HAD not been easy to decide on a place for the meeting—between Marius's group and the Mandal men—because hardly any spot on the plateau can be distinguished from any other. But from Furuflaten a single steep bluff could be seen on the far horizon and they had told the Mandal men to meet them at the foot of it.

They came upon the place almost unexpectedly, as they breasted a little rise in the valley floor. It was quite unmistakable, the only piece of black, vertical rock in sight. On top of it was a thick snow cornice. But down below at its foot in the valley, nobody was waiting. They stood aghast. Their first thought was they had arrived too late and the Mandal men had gone. But search showed them there were no ski tracks. Nobody had been there.

It was decided that something had gone wrong with their instructions about the meeting place—that the Mandal men were waiting somewhere else. A forlorn hope struck them that the men might be close at hand, hidden in one of the hollows in the valley. Someone suggested they should shout. But the sound fell dead. Each of them set off in a different direction to search for the Mandal group.

When they came back, one by one, Jan could see from the face of each that there was no sign of the Mandal party. Amandus was the last to return. He had been right up to the route they had expected the Mandal men to take. There were no tracks leading out to it. He had looked down the whole length of Mandal and had seen the houses scattered in the bed of the valley. He saw no sign of life.

Jan knew that the four men had stayed with him already far longer than was safe. They had to get home or their absence would certainly be discovered, and that would be the end of them. Marius and the others knew that it was out of the question to take Jan down again. Thus the decision to leave him on the plateau did not need very much discussion. There was nothing else to be done. Marius promised Jan he would get a message through to Mandal the moment he got home and do everything to make sure the Mandal men would come and find him the next night. But he made this promise with a heavy heart, because he did not really believe that under the open sky Jan would last through another day.

They searched for a place where Jan would have a little shelter and they found a boulder where the wind had scooped out a hole in the snow, four feet deep and the size of a grave. They lowered him into it sledge and all, and then untied the lashings which held him down. They gave him what little food they had and the remains of the bottle of brandy.

They looked at the haggard, bearded emaciated face which grinned at them. Jan said he would be all right and thanked them as best he could. One by one they said goodby, and turned away to put on their skis again. Amandus was the last to leave Jan, and he remembered well the last words that were spoken, because they were absurd.

"No thanks," said Jan. "I've got everything—except hot and cold water."

• • •

THE schoolmaster of Mandal, Herr Nordnes, had lived in that community all his life. When he got the message that Jan was on his way to the plateau, he went to a few of his recent pupils and told them what was needed. They responded eagerly.

Because of the isolation of Mandal and the fact that most Mandal people had not seen a German soldier, ship or aircraft, and had heard no authentic news of the world outside for several years, they felt they had not had a chance to do their bit, so Nordnes had no lack of volunteers. His only embarrassment, in fact, was to avoid having too many people take part in the adventure. Yet their enthusiasm was surprising because the appeal for help was impersonal. They had not seen Jan and had no idea what kind of person he was. This was the situation when the message arrived to say Jan was on his way.

Nordnes rounded up his volunteers. They were all men in their early twenties. There had never been any question of Nordnes going. He was a generation older than the others and also he was one of the few people who had to be at work exactly on time in the morning.

There was still no news of the Lapps, but the volunteers could take charge of Jan until they heard if the Lapps were coming. At that moment a strange boat was sighted approaching Mandal. This was a rare event and plenty of people watched the boat. As it came to the jetty, they saw something which was to put the whole valley in a state of apprehension. There were German soldiers on board. The Germans came ashore and those in the know put on their skis and pelted up to the schoolhouse to warn Nordnes. As the news spread, all the people he had consulted converged on the school to talk about the sinister development.

THE GRIM BUT BEAUTIFUL MOUNTAINS THAT SURROUND THE TINY VILLAGE OF MANDAL. MEN FROM MANDAL SEARCHED IN VAIN FOR THE PLACE WHERE JAN LAY, BURIED BUT STILL ALIVE, IN THE SNOW.

They took it for granted that it had something to do with the plot. It seemed certain that the organization in Furuflaten had been broken up and that the Germans knew Mandal was involved in it. At all events it would have been crazy to make the climb that night, before the Germans had shown some sign of what they meant to do.

That evening, the people of Mandal watched every move the Germans made. But they seemed in no hurry to do anything. There were only six soldiers and an N.C.O. This seemed to suggest they had come to arrest a single individual. That night, while Marius and his party were hauling the sledge up Revdal and searching the plateau, nobody was sleeping soundly in Mandal—except the Germans.

But during the night nothing happened. The Germans stayed in their billet, and in the morning they sallied forth and began a house-to-house check of the inhabitants. This relieved the tension. It pointed to a vague suspicion of Mandal as a whole, rather than anything definite against a particular person. Yet it meant that nobody could go away from home until the check of his house had been completed. To judge by the desultory way the Germans went to work, this would put a stop to any journey to the frontier for several days.

The whole thing remained a mystery all day. Whatever way Nordnes and the others looked at it, it was hard to believe that after so long without a garrison, the sudden arrival of even a section of Germans on the very evening when the ascent of the pleateau was planned could be a coincidence. Yet nothing the Germans did, once they landed, seemed to have any bearing on the plot, or to suggest that they knew what was going on.

• • •

AN urgent message arrived that night. It had come by a devious route, but it had originated with Marius. It told Nordnes that Jan had been left at the plateau meeting place and begged them to have him moved without delay.

It also told him, by the mere fact that it had been sent, that there was nothing wrong in the rest of the organization and that they did not even know that the Germans had come to Mandal. Nordnes went out to round up his team again, and to see whether it would be safe to start at once. But before the point was decided it began to snow.

Nobody in Mandal knew exactly where Jan had been left. They would have to depend on seeing the steep bluff which the Furuflaten message had described, and to search for it when they could not see more than a few yards in front of them would have been suicidal.

It snowed all night and all morning. They were ready to go at the first sign of easing. The chance came on the third night after Marius had left Jan. Four volunteers assembled. The ascent was made without serious trouble. After four hours on skis they got to the rim of the plateau. There were no signs that anyone had been there. They scoured the plateau shouting, but there was no answer. After two hours they had to go back to be home before the Germans began the day's checking of houses. The only conclusion they could come to was that Jan had gone off somewhere by himself.

They knew little of Jan. It had also crossed their minds that he might have died and been buried in the snow.

For all practical purposes, Mandal just then was cut off from the outside world. The Germans had been making inquiries about anyone not found at home. Nordnes could not send a messenger to tell Furuflaten what had happened. He could not use the telephone, either. It was sure to be tapped, or simply cut off, while the German search was going on.

ALVIN LARSEN ON SKIS AT THE ROCK AND SIMILAR HOLE IN THE SNOW ABOVE REVDAL WHERE JAN LAY FOR DAYS. LARSEN WAS ONE OF THE MEN WHO HAD HELPED CARRY JAN TO THE ROCK, WHERE HE WAS TO HAVE BEEN PICKED UP BY ANOTHER GROUP OF MEN FROM THE NORWEGIAN UNDERGROUND.

A second party made the climb the following night, the fourth since Jan had been abandoned. This time the valley below the bluff was still covered with the ski tracks of the night before. They extended the search. Toward morning the party retreated without having found anything. As they went down the weather was worsening.

However the blizzard hampered the German troops. They could no longer keep an eye on the whole valley. Under cover of the storm a skier slipped out of the valley and carried the news of Mandal's plight to Kaafjord. From there, after a day's delay, the news reached Legland, and he sent a message to Marius.

This message was a shock to Marius. It reached him in Furuflaten when the blizzard was at its height. It meant to him that after all Jan had suffered, he might be dead. It was exactly a week since Marius had left Jan. All that time he had taken it for granted that the Mandal men had found Jan, and he had even thought of him in a Swedish hospital.

Marius hated to think what Jan must have thought of him when he knew his end was coming. Marius disliked the idea of leaving Jan's body where it lay. He wondered if Jan could have left him a message, written on paper which the thaw would destroy. At any rate, whether it was rational or not, and even if it was suicidally dangerous, he was going.

It was a question who would come with him. Two people on the mountain in a blizzard are always twice as safe as one. Two of the former companions were away fishing and the other was suffering from broken ribs. There were no other men in the village in the know. Olaf Lanes had several sisters, and one of them was Agnethe, who knew Marius well. They were fond of each other. When she heard that he was determined to go that night, she told him she would accompany him.

They climbed the first steep 2000 feet quickly. When they crossed the rim and stood on the level beyond it, the wind snatched at their clothes and threw them off balance. The last three miles to the rendezvous was against the wind.

• • •

WHEN they came to the bluff they could see the loom of it through the snow mist, but even Marius hesitated before he could find the boulder where Jan had been laid. The puzzle of why Mandal men had found nothing was solved. Marius took off his skis and began to dig in the snow. Agnethe crouched behind him in an agony of cold. When he had dug away three feet of snow, the rest collapsed. He cleared it away and saw Jan's ghastly waxen face below. His eyes were shut and his head was covered with rime. "Don't look," Marius said to Agnethe. "He's dead."

But at the sound of his voice, Jan stirred. "I'm not dead, damn you," Jan said in a feeble voice. Then he opened his eyes and saw the astounded face of Marius. "You can't kill an old fox."

Nobody can give an exact account of what happened to Jan during the time he spent on the plateau. Some incidents and impressions were clear to him. They were isolated, like distant memories of childhood. The one thing that is perfectly certain is that he lay in the sleeping bag in the snow for days.

Apart from the cold, the sledge made a very uncomfortable bed, with only two layers of blankets and one of canvas, besides his clothes between him and the wooden slats. Because he had to keep moving he got sores on his back and sides. Eventually, the heat of his body and his movements made a cavity in the snow. Slowly the snow sifted over his trunk and legs. For some hours he had kept a hole clear above his head, so that he could see the sky. Finally, the snow closed the opening. He was buried for either four or five days. The nearest to the truth for his survival might be put down to a stubborn distaste for dying in such circumstances. The only vestige of physical comfort he had was the last of the brandy. He would put off taking a sip for hours so that he could enjoy the anticipation of the warmth going down his throat. At times he was struck by the humor of lying buried in a "grave" and swigging brandy. there was only one more spoonful left. This, he kept as if it were his only link with life and it was there when Marius found him.

• • •

MARIUS and Agnethe scraped away more snow until Marius could get down into the hole and clear a space so that Jan had more freedom to move. Marius had brought food with him, more as an offering to fate than with any hope of it being of any use. He fed Jan with bread and bits of fish, while he explained how the Mandal men had tried to find him. He had also brought more brandy and tobacco. Jan could not eat much, but he had a craving for a cigarette. Marius rolled one for him.

Marius knew he could not do any good by staying. A message from Mandal had said they could make the climb again as soon as the weather permitted. He told Jan of this, and to help them find Jan he made a flag by tying a piece of cloth to a ski-stick, which he stuck in the snow beside the hole.

After staying with Jan for half an hour, they left, with the forlorn signal flapping in the storm above them. Here was a slight chance that the Mandal men might be arriving at that very moment. The only way to make sure of it quickly was to go on toward Mandal and see if they were coming.

Accordingly, instead of turning back, Marius and Agnethe faced into the wind and climbed on. Agnethe agreed willingly when Marius proposed it, but she nearly died as a result. They pressed on to a small isolated rock, a point which the Mandal party would come on to the plateau. But that night, although it was light, he could see only a few yards down the valley to the scudding snow. Nobody was in sight. Agnethe collapsed beside the rock. When Marius came back, she was unconscious. He shook her limp body and slapped her face. He said afterward, that apart from anything else, this would make her angry, and that anger would improve her circulation. It brought her back to consciousness and he dragged her to her feet and started back, half-carrying her.

The climb did Agnethe no physical harm, but the memory of Jan lying in the hole was to haunt her for years.

Words, Wit And Wisdom

By William Morris

Some Words From France.

TODAY we have queries from two readers asking the significance of a pair of French terms which have become almost part of our own language. "In the course of a discussion of the atom, hydrogen and cobalt bombs and their menace to future generations," writes a reader, "one speaker said the trouble with many of our politicians is that they are taking the attitude of 'Apres moi le deluge.' I know that this means 'After me, the flood' but I wonder if you can tell me when it originated and what its exact significance was."

The popularity of the phrase stems from its use by Mme. de Pompadour, celebrated beauty and intimate of King Louis XV of France. The French court at the time was famed for its lavish and wasteful extravagances. When Pompadour whose philosophy was "live for the minute—who cares what happens when we're gone" was reproved for these excesses, she replied, "Apres nous le deluge."

Incidentally, the pompadour hairdo in which the hair is brushed straight up from the forehead—a style which has been in and out of fashion a hundred times since her day—was, of course, named after this celebrated court favorite.

"IN ONE of those late-night British movies," writes a New York reader, "one of the characters referred to his lodgings by a phrase that sounded like pyed-uh-tair. It seemed very elegant indeed. Can you tell me what the term is?"

"Pied a terre," a French term meaning literally "foot-to-the-ground," is rather a popular expression in England to designate temporary lodgings. Thus an actor in town for the brief run of a show, might rent an unpretentious "pied a terre" rather than take a lavish apartment or, as the British would call it, a "flat" on a long lease.

Apricot Lemonade

Method: Turn lemonade concentrate into a pitcher or other container. Using lemonade can as measure, add three cans of cold water. Stir in apricot nectar; chill. Serve over ice cubes. Stir before pouring. Makes six servings. Increase recipe as desired.

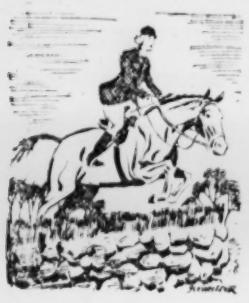
Bridlespur Hunt Ball Scheduled on Saturday

By Margaret Allen Ruhl

A GAY hunt ball, sixth in the series given by the Bridlespur Hunt since the close of World War II, will be held Saturday night at the St. Louis Country Club. It is to climax a weekend of hunting activity with numerous out-of-town guests here to participate.



Many of the visitors will arrive tomorrow and tomorrow night Mr. and Mrs. Louis Werner II will give a cocktail and dancing party at Deer Creek Club. Hunter trials will be held all day Saturday, beginning at 9:30, at Trails End Stables. Luncheon will be served on the grounds. The judge will be Tim Durant of Washington, Conn., and Los Angeles, outstanding horseman and a motion picture actor and technical adviser. Former master of the foxhounds for the Smithtown (L.I.) Hunt, he was here last year for the Bridlespur's point-to-point race, and accepted an invitation to return this year to be a trials judge.

Sunday morning at 11:15 the ceremony of the blessing of the hounds will be conducted by the Rev. William Pezold of Cottlesville, Mo., on the grounds of the new Bridlespur Hunt club in New Melle, Mo. Afterward the hunt will move off for a fox hunt. Later Mr. and Mrs. Bradford Shinkle Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. James Busch Orthwein will give a party at Trails End Stables.

The Monday morning hunt will move off from the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Clarkson Carpenter Jr., in St. Charles county. Afterward the out-of-town guests still remaining in St. Louis will be luncheon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Scherck at their home, 31 Oakleigh lane, Ladue.

Elaborate Decorations for Ball.

Mrs. Carpenter, decorations chairman, has painted a Mephistophelean fox, which is to occupy the wall opposite the front door of the club behind a real brush jump. In the east room, back of Russ David's orchestra, which is to play, foxes will dance at a ball. The setting will be flanked by post and rail jumps. In the small lounge the still gay foxes will be pictured having mint juleps on the porch of the new clubhouse and a poster is to show hounds chasing the pigs at the Carpenter farm.

On the buffet table a stuffed fox will appear to be sneaking through the undergrowth. At one end of the table a pheasant will stand in "Wallaces' Kennel" and at the other, a pair of game chickens will occupy "Walshes' Chicken Yard." Small dinner tables, covered in pale blue satin, are to hold centerpieces of red carnations and greenery surrounding hurricane lamps.

Many Guests to Be Here From Out-of-Town.

MR. AND MRS. SCHERCK will entertain Mr. and Mrs. G. Russell Van Brunt of Milwaukee; Miss Rosalyn Hauss will have as her guest Mrs. Edwin Morgenthau of Birmingham, Ala.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Egan will entertain Mrs. S. S. Perkins of Santa Barbara, Calif.

Three couples, Mr. and Mrs. William Appleby, Mr. and Mrs. Edward McDuffie, Atlanta, Ga., and Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Spalding, Unionville, Pa., will visit Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Shinkle, and Mr. and Mrs. William C. Wright of Milwaukee, will be with Mr. and Mrs. Orthwein. The Robert R. Hermanns will have Michael Wales Butler of Hinsdale, Ill. Charles Dennehy, Lake Forest, Ill., and Lee Jennings will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dunstan.

Mrs. Adalbert von Gontard Jr., arrived yesterday from New York with her three children, Adalbert III, Marie Eugenie and Victoria. Mr. von Gontard will be here in a few days to join her at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene F. Williams.

Some of the visitors will stay at hotels, among them Miss Christy Firestone, Akron, O., William D. Haggard III, Nashville, a former member of the United States Olympics equestrian team, and Mr. and Mrs. John H. Daniels, Kansas City, Mo.

From New York will come Mr. and Mrs. George Skakel and Robert Oscar J. Streuber, guests of the Werners. The Skakels will stay at the home of his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Rushton W. Skakel.

Out-of-Town Visitors in St. Louis.

MRS. GEORGE PREWITT GIMBEL of New York is spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Eberhard Anheuser at Goltinhurst, their home on the Sunset Country Club grounds in Sappington. Mrs. Gimbel is on her way to Palm Beach, Fla., to spend the winter. The Anheusers, too, will winter in Palm Beach. They went south some weeks ago to find a house which they have leased for the season beginning Jan. 15.

Thanksgiving visitors here will include Mr. and Mrs. Horace Fuller Henriques Jr., of Greenwich, Conn., and their two children, Horace III and Alice Dudley Henriques, who are expected tomorrow. They will be with Mrs. Henriques's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Werner at the Woodlands, 9625 Ladue road.

At Christmastime Mr. and Mrs. Reuben C. Taylor Jr., of Clintonville, Wis., will be here with their 16-year-old daughter, Miss Anne Taylor, and their son, Reuben Champlain Taylor III, for a holiday visit with Mr. Taylor's parents, Col. and Mrs. Reuben C. Taylor, 8333 Delmar boulevard, University City. The visitors will stay at the Park Plaza Hotel. Miss Anne attends the Baldwin School, Bryn Mawr, Pa., and her brother is a student at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn.

★ ★ ★

Miss Patricia Lee Pollnow, a student at Skidmore College, Sarasota Springs, N.Y., will spend the Thanksgiving holidays in St. Louis. Miss Pollnow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick F. Pollnow, 7335 Huntington drive, Pasadena Hills, is a debutante of the season.

★ ★ ★

Career Day, held every two years at Centenary College for Women, Hackettstown, N.J., took place Tuesday and two St. Louisans, students at the college, took an active part in the program. Miss Marian Shipley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Shipley, 7303 Maryland avenue, University City, introduced Fred E. Odhner, vice president of the New Jersey Occupational Therapy Association, who spoke for the occupational therapy section. Miss Jane Oxenhandler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Oxenhandler, 4 Rio Vista drive, Ladue, served as hostess for Miss Ann Westmoreland, a stewardess for Eastern Air Lines, who spoke at the airlines section meeting.

Series of Parties For Gay Hirsch

MISS GAY MICHEL HIRSCH will be guest of honor at many pre-wedding parties, in addition to those already announced, before her marriage Sunday, Dec. 23, to Harold Gilbert Lieberman.

Saturday afternoon, Dec. 8, Mrs. Lester Ackerman Jr. and Mrs. Lionel Kalish Jr., will be hostesses at a champagne luncheon in honor of the bride-elect to be given at the Kalish home, 32 Crestwood drive, Clayton, while a week later, Dec. 15, Mrs. Richard Levis and her daughter, Miss Susan Levis, have planned a closet shower at their home, 51 Arundel place, Clayton. That night Mr. and Mrs. Roswell Messing Jr., 61 Lake Forest, Richmond Heights, uncle and aunt of Miss Hirsch, will entertain a group of young people at a cocktail party. Tuesday, Dec. 18, Mrs. Sam Langsdorf Jr. and Mrs. Jack Friedman will give a luncheon, the place to be decided on later and that night Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Michelson have planned a family dinner.

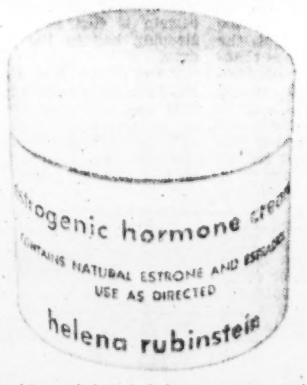
The bridal party will be entertained Dec. 19 at a cocktail supper to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Emil Tamm and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ullman Jr. and the next evening the prospective bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Lieberman, will give the rehearsal dinner in the Hunt Room of the Chase Hotel. The bachelor party will take place Dec. 21 and the last party, Dec. 22, will be a luncheon at which Miss Hirsch's grandmother, Mrs. Roswell Messing, will entertain out-of-town guests, the families and bridal party.

THE recently organized Women's Association of Missouri Baptist Hospital, 919 North Taylor avenue, gave a breakfast party Tuesday in the lounge of the nurses' home. The purposes were two-fold: to give leaders of Baptist Church organizations an opportunity to tour the hospital and to hear a discussion of the hospital's volunteer service program.

With Mrs. Fred H. Pillsbury as moderator, they heard talks by Mrs. Joshua E. Jensen, association president, who outlined activities; Mrs. Harry Urban, president of the Women's Auxiliary board, who described the functions of her group; Miss Helen V. Treibal, assistant to the administrator, on the volunteer service program; Mrs. Louis M. Bohnenkamp, on volunteer aid; Miss Patricia Bohnenkamp, whose topic was "What It Means to Be a Volunteer," and Mrs. Anita Hybes of the Red Cross, on volunteer service.

Other officers of the association are Mrs. Richard A. Jones and Mrs. E. W. Davis, vice presidents; Mrs. E. R. Lerwick, secretary, and Mrs. Arthur R. Dalton, treasurer.

WRINKLES?



Today, wrinkles and shriveled skin are not inevitable, thanks to Helena Rubinstein's scientific research in estrogenic hormones. These hormones, applied externally in a rich cream, are absorbed into the skin. They help replace the hormones that are plentiful in youth but diminish with age. This enables your skin to hold moisture again, to fill out age signs—and makes little lines disappear. You will see definite results after one month. Beauty is prolonged for years to come.

TRIM INCHES FROM YOUR HIPS...

THIGHS, TUMMY, LEGS with the STAUFFER HOME PLAN

Excess weight often is measured in inches, not pounds. Normally, you can't redistribute your weight and lose equally all over, on diet alone. Those extra pounds seem to leave last from areas where they have existed longest. The passive exercise and caloric reduction of the STAUFFER HOME PLAN will trim those stubborn inches from certain areas like hips, tummy, thighs and legs...beautifies your posture, firms and tightens muscles...and gives you the lovelier figure you desire.

My Day

Comment on Situation In Hungary

By Eleanor Roosevelt

SCHENECTADY, N.Y.

DEDICATION ceremonies at the Woodrow Wilson Memorial in Washington, D.C., last Sunday were very impressive, I thought—simple but dignified. And Bernard Baruch's address was very fine.

I hoped to stop at Dean Sayre's house for tea after the ceremonies, but unfortunately could not make it, having barely enough time to make my 6 o'clock plane. The trip back to New York was uneventful and I reached home in plenty of time for a late supper.

On Monday morning I had the great pleasure of meeting Mme. Kelthy at breakfast. What an interesting face she has. She must be a woman in her sixties, with gray hair.

MME. KELTHY spent more than four years in a Hungarian prison and came out to become a member of the Nagy regime. She is a Communist, belonging to the Social Democratic party. But she naturally understands the desire of her people, while remaining Communists, to do their own policing and to be free of Soviet troops.

I gathered that she thinks no one in Hungary wants to go back to the old regime of large estates and concentrated power. Naturally, the people want to own land and land reform is of great importance, but hardships have continued to exist. Even though World War II ended more than 10 years ago, there are Hungarian children who have never seen a banana or a piece of chocolate.

★ ★ ★

HOW CURIOUS it is that the Soviet Union can condemn interference by violence in Egypt and at the same time enter a satellite and bend its people to the Soviet will by force instead of permitting them to settle their differences at the ballot box under the supervision of the United Nations.

I suppose the Russians will contend that since the Hungarian uprising started as a difference between Communist groups, the Russians had to come in to restore law and order.

Now that law and order is being restored, let us hope the Russians will retire their tanks, their soldiers and their secret police, permitting the Hungarians to settle their internal difficulties themselves.

The International Rescue Committee was accused by Russia of inciting to rebellion. It is understandable that the Soviets should look for a scapegoat rather than confess they had not been successful in meeting Hungary's economic problems and achieving at least some basic security for that country's citizens.

Installation For Catholic College Club

By Fay Profilet

OFFICERS for the Catholic Women's College Club will be installed at a luncheon Saturday, Nov. 24, at Missouri Athletic Club at 2 p.m. Mrs. Charles L. Harrison Jr., is the new president.

Msgr. Mark S. Ebner, pastor of St. George's Church, Gardenville, will be guest speaker. Msgr. Ebner, who was among clergymen attending a recent liturgical conference in Assisi, Italy, will have as his subject, "Pius XII—Pope of Liturgical Reform." Mrs. Joseph D. Walsh will review, "A Right to Be Merry," by Sister Mary Francis. The author, a former St. Louisan, was Miss Alberta Aschmann before she entered the Second Franciscan Order, popularly known as the Poor Clare nuns.

Mrs. Harrison was graduated from the Sacred Heart Academy and from Trinity College, Washington. For the past year she has served as vice president and program chairman for the club. Mrs. Pierce J. Reilly is the retiring president.

Other officers to be installed are Mrs. Clinton A. Bliss, vice president; Miss Mary Louise Streit, corresponding secretary; Miss Mary Clair Krebs, recording secretary, and Miss Rose Ernst, treasurer.

The Rev. Robert J. Henle, S.J., dean of the Graduate School of St. Louis University, is advisor to the club which is composed of Catholic women graduates of recognized colleges and universities. The club presents evening programs open to the public and maintains a book group which meets monthly from September through June for reviews of current literature.

Public Relations Day.

THE Woman's Auxiliary to the St. Louis Medical Society has invited representatives of Federated Women's Clubs and P.T.A. organizations to a meeting Monday at noon at the Medical Society Building, 3839 Lindell boulevard. The auxiliary will celebrate its annual Public Relations day at this time.

Luncheon, served by the hospitality committee, will precede the program. Mrs. F. M. Grogan, program chairman, will be assisted by Mrs. James W. Colbert and Mrs. Carl V. Moore, co-chairmen. Mrs. Grogan will present the speaker, Leo E. Brown, director of public relations and assistant to the general manager of the American Medical Association. Mrs. Harold Feller, president of the auxiliary, will preside.

Mrs. Hugo Neuhaus, 5757 De Giverville avenue, will be hostess to the Bay View Reading Club Monday at 12:30 p.m. Mrs. Fred J. Statler will speak on "The Religious Americans."

★ ★ ★

A dinner meeting will be held by the National Association of Legal Secretaries Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. at the Coronado Hotel. The program chairman, Miss Lorraine Wood, will introduce the guest speaker, Frederick W. Trampe, who will give an illustrated lecture on the seal industry.

A training program, sponsored by the group, to begin the first part of next year under the chairmanship of Mrs. Mary Jungerich, will be discussed. Returns from a recent card party will be announced by the co-chairmen, Miss Frances Correnti and Miss Rosemary Bellers. Proceeds from the party will go to the occupational therapy rehabilitation program of the St. Louis Chronic Hospital.

Martha Carr's OPINION

REG U S PAT OFF

Dear Martha:

AFTER 22 years of marriage my husband has told me he doesn't love me anymore. He is a good provider and good to the children. In the past two years he has talked very little to me, sometimes going for the entire week without a word or glance. If I talk to him he won't answer. I can't stand this any more. I worry all the time about his sullenness. I cover up his actions as much as possible, never mentioning anything in front of the children. I would like to leave but hesitate because of the children, who are now 9 and 13. I have no place to go and I haven't worked for 22 years. Maybe some of your readers could advise me. Do you think I should stay with him? The children will be happier, but it will be terrible for me. MRS. T. L.

I can't advise you to break up your home, but I do think something should be done for your own sake and the sake of the children. What kind of a marriage do you call this, when your husband walks around like a pouting child? That's not being "good" to the children. They need more than a roof over their heads and food for the table and an occasional pat on the head. They need the love and affection and concern of both parents and they need the sense of security that a loving home can bring them. Professional counseling at one of the family agencies will help you look squarely at the problem and see what can be done.

Dear Martha:

ABOUT A MONTH AGO I received a letter from a nice young fellow in the navy. He was employed by my father before entering service. We never dated and only said a few words when we met. In the letter he said he wanted me to write to him. He was in the hospital and was to stay there two more weeks. He said after he got out of the hospital he would be able to write me only about once a week. He will be home on leave around Christmas. I wrote him back a nice letter but did not receive a reply. The only address I have is the hospital. Do you think I should write again or just forget about him altogether? BUNNY.

It's possible, of course, that he had left the hospital earlier than he anticipated and never received your letter. If that's the case, your second one probably wouldn't reach him either. On the other hand, if there were no forwarding address for him, chances are that any undelivered letter would have been returned. So it may have been a case of homesickness, aggravated by his physical illness, that caused him to ask for letters from home and now that he is all right again, perhaps those letters don't seem so important. So, it probably would be just as well to drop the whole thing until Christmas. Then you could invite him to a party at your home or, if he is dropping into your dad's place of business during his stay to renew acquaintances, maybe you could "just happen" to run into him there. If you do see him, ask him casually about the letter.

Planning a shower for a mother-to-be? Martha Carr's free stork shower leaflet will suggest entertainment. Please close a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Opera Star—From Soap to Light to Grand

Adelaide Bishop, Here With NBC Company, Made Singing Debut at 6

By Mary Kimbrough

BLOND Adelaide Bishop is a happy contradiction to the long-held theory that opera stars can't sing worth a dime unless they're fat and fiftyish and have a fine Italian name.

The New York-born Adelaide is doing right well with her American name, her pretty face and attractive figure. With a professional career that dates back to her kindergarten days, she has now progressed through three phases of opera—soap, light and grand—and with the last-named she hopes to stay. She is in St. Louis to sing the role of Susanna in Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro" with the NBC Opera Company Friday night in Kiel Auditorium Opera House. Curtain time is 8:30.

"Singing opera in English, as we are doing in this case, and taking it right into people's homes via television means that it is becoming more and more popular with the American people," she said. "For too long, people have felt that opera couldn't be good unless it was sung in a language they couldn't understand. No wonder young people don't like it.

"Then, opera made a big mistake in casting people who were too fat and too old for their young, romantic roles. That's ridiculous, and the American people won't go for it. Now, we're being more realistic, and casting according to appearance as well as to singing talent."

* * *

ALTHOUGH she has sampled almost every phase of musical show business, with several years of radio acting thrown in, Adelaide feels that she has found her niche in serious music. It is what she had always wanted from childhood, even though it required a number of years before she could reach the grand opera stage.

First came ballet lessons at 3, singing lessons a little later, and a radio debut with Paul Whiteman's orchestra at 6. Then, appearances in the radio series, "Let's Pretend," and, at 15, her light opera debut. Two years later, she was appearing in adult roles at the St. Louis Municipal Opera and the following year, not yet out of her teens, made her serious debut in Philadelphia.

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

ADELAIDE BISHOP . . . SHE'S PROOF THAT OPERA STARS DON'T HAVE TO BE FAT AND FIFTYISH AND HAVE A FINE ITALIAN NAME.

That occasion was marked somewhat inauspiciously by a tumble into a wheelbarrow, right in the middle of an aria.

"Another member of the cast, with his debut jitters, left the wheelbarrow on stage and I, with my debut jitters, didn't see it," she recalled. "But the audience did, and they watched with fascination as I slowly backed into it and suddenly disappeared from sight.

"It didn't stop me in my opera career, but I must say it slowed me up a bit."

As she looks back on it, even though grand opera was always her dream, she is a little surprised that she continued toward its fulfillment after the first opera she ever saw. It was when she was still a child and the choice for her introduction to grand opera was "Parsifal."

"And I hated it," she said. "I knew then I would never sing that one."

But strangely enough, it didn't blight her dream and she began to work seriously toward the grand opera stage as soon as she felt she had advanced far enough in her musical studies. She now has portrayed 38 roles in five different languages.

"Don't say I speak all those languages, but I do have a nodding acquaintance with them," she said. "Of course, you have to know the language before you can really interpret a role. The memorizing is easy enough. That may take just a short time. But to really project yourself into the characterization and feel that you are living the role takes much longer."

* * *

HER "favorite" is always the one she is currently singing, and whether she meets a typically-operatic demise via a dagger, a poisoned cup or other murderous weapon makes no difference. Nor does she mind if it's tragic or light.

"And there are more comedies in the grand opera field than you would think," she said. "They aren't all stark and grim. 'Figaro' is one of the most delightful operas you could want to hear."

Just as Adelaide is glad to note that American singers no longer feel they must adopt Italian names to succeed, she also believes that soon it will not be necessary to dip far into the past to come up with quality grand opera.

"Many American composers are writing fine opera today and that is a wholesome and healthy sign," she said. "I feel we can have the same kind of renaissance in grand opera that we have had in ballet. As soon as opera-goers learn to relax and realize they are seeing and hearing something good—even if it is contemporary and in a language they can understand—American composers will be turning to it more and more. Its acceptance will prove to be a real stimulus to them."

She also looks forward to the day when communities will present grand operas just as Little Theaters today present legitimate plays.

"Some cities are doing it now, either bringing in a star or letting one of their own local singers perform the major role," she said. "Maybe they don't do it as well as a professional company, but they find joy in it."

And that's what it has been to Adelaide. Bread and butter, yes, but for all its tragic overtones a lot of fun.

By and for and about Women

Points for Parents

By Edyth Thomas Wallace

NOT THIS

Mother: "To punish you for breaking Dad's lighter, you will have to come right home from school and not play football for a week."

THIS

Mother: "You knew you should not play with Dad's lighter and since you broke it you must buy him a new one with your own money."

Cider Cranberry Sauce

Ingredients: ½ cup tart cider, ½ cup water, ⅔ cup sugar, whole cloves, two cups fresh cranberries.

Method: Mix cider, water, sugar and a few whole cloves together in a saucepan. Bring to a rapid boil. Add cranberries and continue cooking over moderate heat for about five minutes, or until all the berries pop. Remove from heat and allow to cool in saucepan; do not stir. Remove foamy top with a spoon. Chill before serving. Makes about one pint.

The Dean Speaks Up

An Outpouring of Advice on Ticks

By Adele Starbird

"ONE touch of nature makes the whole world kin." My boxer and I have lots of kin since I wrote about woodticks. No column has ever brought the same passionate response, the outpouring of advice and sympathy, or the sheer volume of mail.

Dean Starbird

One woman said that she and her husband had waged war on ticks for years without success, and then suddenly, for no apparent reason, their cocker spaniel was immune.

Another said that she could share my humiliation, because her dog, alone of all the dogs in her block, acquired ticks, causing the neighbors to look at her askance.

* * *

FROM FLORIDA came a letter about a fence erected by a neighbor to keep the dogs separated. "She always insisted that her dogs got ticks from playing with my dogs. But now, her dogs are the ones that have the ticks and mine are free!" Of such small triumphs is suburban life composed.

And another woman wrote that she and her husband had been so desperate for eight months that they couldn't decide whether to shoot their dog or each other, when at last they found a cure. Once a week for six successive weeks she used a liquid dip on her dog, thus breaking the life cycle of the ticks. At the same time she sprayed the shrubs in her backyard thoroughly. She found that the ivy was badly infested.

How parasites can thrive on mere vegetation is a mystery to me. But not for me to reason why. Our supervising engineer, Fred St. Clair, sent a man to spray the shrubs and ivy near my apartment. I had Tiny dipped several times. Professional exterminators went over the inside of the apartment twice. Result of all these measures: complete freedom from the pests.

* * *

MARY TUDOR SAID that Calais was written on her heart. On Tiny's heart the word is "Food," I am sure. Eating is her enduring obsession. Last night she was asleep on the bed; I tried to get her to jump down. She refused to awake. I sat down by her, talking and patting her; she remained inert, deaf and immovable. Not even her stump of a tail quivered to give her away. So I stepped into the bathroom and picked up the jar containing kibbled dog biscuit. Even before I poured it into her pan, she was there; she had heard the faint swish when I lifted the jar. I called her fraud and possum, but she took it as a compliment, wagging her tail without lifting her head for a second from the pan. And for some reason I thought of those lines from "Maud":

"My dust would hear her and beat
Had I lain for a century dead."

Pleasant Greeting

By Ruth Millett

"WELL, what have you been doing all day?" When your husband comes home after a hard day's work and asks that routine question he isn't asking to hear a tale of woe. It won't brighten his homecoming any to get that dispirited reply: "Oh, nothing special. Just the same old routine."

RUTH MILLETT

Did you ever stop to think what he hopes to hear? Or what he'd like to hear?

To begin with, he'd like a little enthusiasm. He would like to find you at least mildly excited over something—even if it is just that the chrysanthemums have started to bloom or Junior has added a new word to his vocabulary. He has been gone a whole day, and in those eight or 10 hours you must have done or noticed or thought something worth telling him about.

In the second place, he is hoping against hope you won't have any bad news for him or that he'll have to listen to you complain about how tired you are or what little demons the kids have been. He has had his own troubles. He wants to forget them—and not take on any of yours.

There may be some bad news you'll have to report. But the moment of greeting isn't the time. Wait until he has had a chance to relax, to eat a good dinner, to settle back into the comfort of home life before you make him face anything unpleasant. Then he'll be better able to take the bad news in stride.

All a woman has to do to know about greeting a homecoming husband is how to put herself in his place mentally.

If she can do that, she'll know he wants a warm welcome from a cheerful wife who has a bit of good news she is eager to share.

Failing Power

ELECTRIC power cooks food, provides light, runs the washing machine, radio and television, refrigerates and performs like essential tasks around the house.

So when it goes off persons suddenly face the fact that they cannot cook, have light, run the washing machine, radio and television, and that food in the refrigerator is in grave danger of spoiling.

Members of a family faced with a crisis of this sort are naturally concerned. They feel that something should be done about it. Fortunately, the telephone can still be used to notify the world of their predicament. The person to rescue them from disaster is obviously the head of the house.

But the man of the family may be the calm, imperturbable type. He will reply that he is going to do nothing. He will point out that he has confidence in the power company. He will protest that he cannot image the power staying off long enough to give them time to die of starvation.

He will remind them that the power has gone off before and that it has always gone on again before disaster has overtaken them. As for notifying the power company he is confident their more excitable neighbors will have done that long ago.

This attitude will shock his family. They cannot image how he can sit there idly doing nothing when the power has gone off. At least he might annoy the power company. If the power company is not annoyed it will be doing this all the time. But if the man of the house will not annoy the power company then the family will annoy him.

It is too bad that when he behaves in this obstinate manner and does nothing, so often, just as he prophesied, the power goes on.

CHRISTOPHER BILLOPP

Social Problems

By Emily Post

"I HAVE just recently returned home from the hospital after having undergone an operation. Many of my friends have come to see me since I have been home and quite a few of them have brought me boxes of candy. My sister-in-law came in to see me the other day and she also brought me a box of candy. I have more candy now than I know what to do with and my husband and I eat very little of it. When my sister-in-law left I asked her to please take the box of candy she had brought me home with her for the children as we could not possibly eat all of the candy we had and I knew the children would enjoy it. She didn't want to take it but I persuaded her to do so. After she left, my husband said it was a very unappreciative thing to do and that I perhaps had hurt his sister's feelings."

EMILY POST

Although you obviously meant to be kind and it is scarcely a serious matter, it would have been more tactful had you offered her one of the other boxes instead of her own.

★ ★ ★

DEAR MRS. POST: My husband claims it is proper, or at least permissible, to leave the soup spoon in the soup bowl. I disagree with him and believe it belongs at the side on the plate. Which of us is right?

Answer: Best taste is to leave it in the bowl. If, however, the soup is served in a cup the spoon is left in the saucer.

"St. Joseph Aspirin For Children is so much more than just a child size tablet"

Says Mrs. Leona Keim Wash., D.C.

It's a specialized tablet, creamy, smooth and fast dissolving with a pleasant, pure orange flavor. Each is 1¼ grains, the preferred standard of accurate dosage measure. No cutting or breaking necessary.

Lady Baltimore Frosting

Ingredients: ½ cup chopped raisins, ½ cup coarsely cut figs, two tablespoons rum flavoring, ½ cup water, two cups sugar, ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar, two egg whites, ⅛ teaspoon salt, one teaspoon vanilla, ½ cup coarsely chopped pecans.

Combine raisins, figs and rum flavoring and set aside to soften, about 30 minutes. Put water, sugar and cream of tartar into one-quart saucepan over medium heat, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Boil egg whites with salt to soft peaks. Pour hot syrup slowly into egg whites, beating constantly. Add vanilla and beat until frosting is very thick and stands in firm peaks. Fold in fruits and nuts. Spread between layers on top and sides of cake. Yield: Frosting for a two-layer eight-inch cake.

Mint Sauce

Any bottled mint sauce in the house? Pour it over cooked green peas and chill. Serve on crisp greens as a salad with lamb chops.

* * *

Jane Powell has been signed for the television version of "Ruggles of Red Gap" at a fee of $25,000.

* * *

Peter Lawford's ready charm has boosted his TV fee to $10,000 a performance.

* * *

Loretta Young's Trendex rating has passed that of the $64,000 Challenge" program, which appears opposite her on the CBS-TV network. At last report, her rating was 22.4 to the quiz show's 21.5.

* * *

* * *

A replacement for Robin Morgan as "Dagmar" in the soon-to-be-renewed "Mama" series has been found after a long search. She is 13-year-old Toni Campbell, a girl who looks like her television big sister, Rosemary Rice. Robin gave up the part to seek other roles in her theatrical career.

Lily Pons

* * *

BUZ SAWYER—By Roy Crane

SNAP OUT OF IT, CHRISTY. STOP WORRYING ABOUT BUZ FLYING THE SKY WITCH. HE'S THE NAVY'S CRACK TEST PILOT.
BUT WHY CAN'T HE BE CONTENT TO FLY ORDINARY PLANES INSTEAD OF CRAZY, EXPERIMENTAL PLANES LIKE THE SKY WITCH?
FOR THE SAME REASON COLUMBUS WASN'T CONTENT TO SAIL AROUND IN THE BAY. HE HAD TO REACH FOR THE HORIZON— DARE THE UNKNOWN.

Uncle Ray's Column

By Ramon Coffman

ONE of the quaint birds of the world is the puffin. It nests in northern parts, sometimes above the Arctic Circle. The coasts of Greenland and Spitzbergen have puffin nests (in early summer) and so do the Bird Rocks of the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Other nesting places include Labrador, Nova Scotia and the state of Maine.

* * *

Q. What is "quaint" about these birds?

A. Chiefly their looks. They have big red, blue and yellow bills. Their legs and feet are red, changing to orange in winter. When they walk, they waddle.

* * *

Q. Can puffins sing?

A. What could we expect from such a bird? It croaks instead of singing.

* * *

Q. How big is a puffin?

A. Only about 14 inches long. It is a bulky bird, and seems larger than its length suggests. The female puffin follows an old rule of her family, and lays only one egg in a season. The nest is a shallow hole in the ground, and is lined with grass.

The parents take turns in warming the egg. More than a month passes before the young one comes out of the shell. The adults go to the sea to obtain food for themselves and the offspring. They have a strange skill—they can keep on catching fish without dropping the ones first caught. On a single trip a puffin may take home from five to 10 smelts.

* * *

Q. Where do puffins spend the winter?

A. Some fly to the coast of New Jersey, or even to Delaware bay. Others winter on the Canary islands.

* * *

Q. Do some puffins live around the Pacific ocean?

A. Yes, there are Pacific puffins. They make their nests on the Kamchatka peninsula, which belongs to Russia, and on the Aleutian islands. A Pacific puffin has a feathery tuft above and behind each eye.
